Kissinger: Geneva huddle only alternative

U.S. will seek Russian parley to avert Middle East war

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will support a Middle East peace conference in Geneva as the only apparent alternative to a new war, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today.

He told a nationally broadcast news conference the world faces "a moment of potentially grave danger" in the wake of the collapse of his step-by-step approach to a Middle East settlement.

To head off a new war, the United States will be in touch with the Soviet Union "in the near future" about convening the Geneva conference and will go to Geneva, Kissinger said.

The two superpowers are cochairmen of the conference, which has been suspended since the fall of 1973.

Conceding his step-by-step approach in the Middle East "has suffered a setback," Kissinger warned the Arabs and the Israelis to moderate their public statements and actions in what he said was still a time of "great danger."

"A moment of potentially grave danger is not a time to . . . engage in recriminations," Kissinger said.

He added in an indirect reference to the Soviet Union that this is also not the time for outside powers to act irresponsibly.

Saying he would entertain any other ideas for a Middle East solution, Kissinger stated that the Geneva approach now appears the only alternative.

The United States is prepared to go to Geneva and will be in touch with Moscow, the co-chairman, about restarting the Geneva conference, Kissinger said.

Turning to Southeast Asia, Kissinger said the real question is "whether we will deliberately destroy an ally by withholding aid."

He referred to congressional resistance to giving $222 million in emergency military aid to Cambodia and $300 million to South Vietnam.

U.S. policy in the Middle East is linked to Southeast Asia, Kissinger said. "The United States cannot pursue a policy of selective reliability."

A breakdown in one area reduces U.S. ability to influence events in another, he said.

Asked whether problems in getting congressional approval for aid to Indochina was a factor in the breakdown of his Middle East negotiations, Kissinger said, "On the part of our friends it raised the question of the durability of our assurances."

But he added that the major factor in the breakdown was unrelated to congressional action.

As to the Middle East, Kissinger said a reassessment of U.S. policy there, ordered by President Ford, "is not aimed against Israel."

The United States remains "irrevocably committed to the survival of Israel," Kissinger said.

The question of a reduction in aid to the Jewish state is "academic" at this time, he said, since the assistance request has not been formally settled.

Israel has asked for $2.5 billion in military and economic aid for the upcoming fiscal year.

"We are not approaching this assessment with an attitude toward cutting aid," Kissinger said, only at achieving peace in the region.

"Our approach is ... aimed at lessening the chance of war," he said.

Gown catches fire

Burns fatal to elderly Chino woman

A 90-year-old Chino woman burned to death in her small home this morning after her nightgown caught on fire from a stove in a kitchen.

Margaret Jones, 90, of 13085 Ninth St., Chino was found dead by her daughter, Mrs. Irene Burnett of the same address about 7:55 a.m. Mrs. Jones lived alone in a small, one-bedroom home behind her daughter's home, police said.

The San Bernardino County Coroner's Office said that the woman apparently suffered the fatal burns shortly after 4 a.m. Police investigating the fire said that it appeared the woman was trying to light the stove when flames caught her nightgown on fire. There was no damage to the house.

Mrs. Jones managed to stagger into her bedroom in the flaming nightgown and fell on her bed.

Mrs. Burnett said she began to worry about her mother when she did not appear at her home for coffee about 6 a.m. as she normally did each morning.

Temps will drop

Storm leaves, but high winds to buffet valley

Fair weather returned to the valley today after a brief storm Tuesday which dropped up to a half-inch of rain on the area.

The change in the weather brought strong winds from the north that prompted forecasters to post warnings for the mountain and desert areas.

The winds were expected to stay here most of the day, ranging from 25 to 45 miles an hour in the valley, and up to 50 miles an hour in the mountains and desert areas, occasionally reaching gusts of more than 75 miles per hour.

Travelers were warned of pitting from sand storms on the Pomona and San Bernardino freeways east of Ontario.

The cold front is expected to drop temperatures tonight into the middle 30s as winds begin to subside. Fair weather is predicted for Thursday through Easter.

The wind storm here was mild compared with other parts of the Southland.

Progress on tax cut bill good sign for Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford was described today as encouraged by progress Senate-House conferees are making on a compromise tax cut bill. The assessment came as the conference committee met again behind closed doors to hammer out a bill that could win quick approval in both chambers.

With Congress ready to recess for Easter, the Senate and House negotiators were at odds over a tax credit for new home buyers and the oil depletion allowance.

The conferees agreed Tuesday that the final bill will include a general 10 per cent rebate of last year's taxes up to a $200 maximum. There would be a minimum $100 rebate, except that anybody who paid under $100 last year would just get all of it back from the government.

Under pressure from the President to reduce the size of the tax cut, the conferees also began to trim the $34.4 billion tax bill voted by the Senate.

Draws the line at Da Nang

Thieu: we'll fight to the death

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The United States began a massive airlift of refugees from Da Nang today and President Nguyen Van Thieu vowed his troops would "fight to the death if necessary" to defend the isolated northern city.

Thieu also urged the United States to take "immediate and strong reaction and rapidly provide sufficient support for our troops to fight."

In Washington, meanwhile, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told a news conference today that his concern about Indochina was the potential betrayal of loyal allies if Congress goes through with plans to cut off aid to South Vietnam and Cambodia.

The fundamental question, Kissinger said is "whether we will deliberately destroy an ally by withholding aid."

In an effort to rally the nation after the loss of 11 of 44 provinces and half its territory to a North Vietnamese drive, Thieu made two radio addresses during the day. He said he had ordered the army to hold all of the remaining land.

He acknowledged that the central highlands and most of northern South Vietnam, including the old imperial capital of Hue, had been lost. But he said he would draw the line at Da Nang against the North Vietnamese advance.

Thieu also pledged to mount a counteroffensive and vowed to stay in office "until our complete victory."

The American evacuation flight, which also flew some American consulate officials, began shortly after Viet Cong rockets smashed into the giant Da Nang air base.

U.S. officials said a World Airways Boeing 727 made two runs between Da Nang and Saigon to start the evacuation of 350,000 to 500,000 refugees from the northern city. At last count there were more than 300 Americans in Da Nang, 380 miles northeast of Saigon.

It was expected that a second plane, a Flying Tiger Boeing 747 jumbo jet, would be put into service Thursday. Officials said it can carry between 1,200 and 1,600 persons. The bulk of refugees will be flown to Cam Ranh Bay, 250 miles south of Da Nang.

Scared she'd get nothing

Blind woman settles for $165,000 before court awards her $900,000

NEW YORK (AP) — A blind college student, apprehensive about the outcome of a malpractice suit over her loss of sight, accepted an out-of-court settlement for $165,000 while a jury was deciding to award her $900,000.

Gail Kalmowitz, 22, insisted that she wanted to accept the peviously offered settlement after the jury of one woman and five men began deliberations Tuesday following a three-week trial in Brooklyn state Supreme Court.

"She was scared that she wouldn't get anything," explained her mother, Yetta Kalmowitz. "Handicapped people don't get jobs so easy. It's a chance she took. She doesn't feel bad about it." Shortly after the settlement had been made legally binding, the jury returned and announced it had decided on an award. Justice Julian Greenspun told them of the agreement and dismissed them.

In the hallway outside the courtroom, Miss Kalmowitz and her lawyer, Mark Welsen, approached the members of the jury and asked what award they had decided upon. The jurors said $900,000.

She began crying and embraced the jurors. Some of them kissed her.

Miss Kalmowitz had sued Brookdale Hospital and two doctors for $2 million over alleged malpractice in her care when she was born, a 2-pound, 8-ounce premature baby on May 5, 1952.

She was placed in an incubator at the hospital and her lawyer charged during the trial that administration of an "uncontrolled" amount of oxygen over a six-week period led to the loss of sight.

One eye was removed and there's little sight remaining in the other. Miss Kalmowitz, who is studying psychology at Brooklyn College, uses a cane and reads Braille. She lives with her mother.

"We tried to talk her out of it," said her mother referring to the settlement. "But she was afraid and she began to cry. I can't stand to see her cry. To her the settlement was an awful lot of money.

"She was thinking of her future. It's something in your hand, what's done is done."

Doberman earns his keep by helping run a gas station

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Brutus, the doberman pinscher who helps his master run a Chattanooga service station, is finding out how dog tired one can get being a celebrity.

It was Brutus' ability to collect money from customers with his mouth, take it to his master and return the change that led to a story that was printed in many newspapers around the country.

Since then, station owner Walter McNamara says business at his Union 76 station on Cherokee Boulevard has been "unbelievable."

"A man and his family drove over from Nashville Sunday, but we were closed," he said. "They came back Monday morning and the man said I had cost him a hotel bill because his children insisted on staying to see Brutus in action.

He said that one woman gave Brutus a $5 bill so he would have to bring her the change.

McNamara said he's been getting a lot of telephone calls from people wanting to know what hours Brutus will be working.

"Many won't buy anything unless he's here," he said.

McNamara said Brutus has begun to receive fan mail.

One youngster, aware of the reputation dobermans have for being vicious, drew a picture of Brutus at the pumps with a sign saying, "Pay up, buddy."

Brutus has made so many trips in and out of the station in the past few days that he's suffering from a cold and fatigue, his master said.

Favoritism, obscenity

Municipal judge stripped of job

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court has kicked Judge William D. Spruance off the San Leandro-Hayward Municipal Court bench because of favoritism, making an obscene gesture with his finger and uttering a raspberry sound in court.

In ousting Spruance Tuesday, the high court said, the record showed he "engaged in a pervasive course of conduct of overreaching his judicial authority by deciding cases on reasons other than merits, by improperly influencing another judge, and by using the judicial process to gain special favors for friends and political supporters.

"The record also shows that the petitioner has, under color of judicial office, repeatedly committed petty, vindictive, vulgar and otherwise unjudicial acts."

The court noted that Spruance conducted his court in a "bizarre and unjudicial manner" — that he "gave the finger" in an obscene gesture to a defendant and uttered a "raspberry" noise to another.

Spruance, 49, is only the second judge ever ousted by the State Supreme Court. Leland W. Geiler was removed from the Los Angeles Municipal Court bench Oct. 25, 1973, for willful misconduct and vulgar behavior, including obscene language.

Spruance, elected to the judgeship in January 1971, may return to practice of law if otherwise qualified in view of his prior unblemished 20-year legal career, the court said.

Complaints leading to Spruance's ouster were filed in 1973 and three special masters appointed by the Supreme Court held 19 days of hearings and found 11 specifications of misconduct. The Commission on Judicial Qualifications then voted 5-4 for his removal, with the minority four favoring censure.

The judge's petition for a review was argued before the Supreme Court March 7. His argument that there were mitigating circumstances was denied in Tuesday's removal order.

"We would be remiss in our duty if we allowed petitioner's claim of justification to mitigate against removal, in view of the clear evidence of petitioner's petty tyranny and favoritism which has led to our determination that petitioner had acted in bad faith," the court said.

In specifying four counts of willful misconduct against Spruance, the Supreme Court said that in addition to "reprehensible conduct" on the bench, Spruance had:

—Used his office's prestige to influence disposition of criminal cases to help friends and political supporters.

—Solicited another judge to dismiss a personal traffic citation and altered it to show he had attended traffic school.

—Made illegal and unjustified appointments of two attorney friends to represent criminal defendants.

Pomona board opposes teacher bargaining bill

Pomona school board Tuesday went on record opposing Senate Bill 275, legislation working its way through the legislature to give public employes collective bargaining rights.

The motion to oppose the measure, as recommended by Schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz, was made by Don Donnelly and seconded by James Bell.

The vote was 3-0. Board President Ken Pine voted with Donnelly and Bell. Mary Montez, who earlier had made a motion that no action be taken, abstained. Her motion died for lack of a second. Phillip Wessels, the fifth board member, was absent.

The voting followed a rather lengthy discussion of the pros and cons of the pending legislation which was initiated by Wentz. He said he opposed SB 275 because "the scope of negotiations is much too broad" and it "does legalize strikes."

"I'm philosophically opposed to that," he said.

Board member-elect C. Allan Braswell, who will be seated April 8, rose from the audience to disagree with Wentz.

"In this enlightened age, a strong employe organization is morale lifting," said Braswell. "It has a positive effect among employes. Every group should have the right to collective bargaining."

Concepts to be challenged, he continued, are "certain benefits in public employment. But by refusing the right to strike, you're saying they're incapable of making a moral decision."

Donnelly, who with Pine had asked that this issue be placed on the agenda for board action, said "binding arbitration as provided by SB 275 is a copout. We're giving somebody not answerable to this public the right to make our decisions. That is the worst part of the bill."

He predicted that if passed, SB 275 would bring about "open warfare" between school boards and employe groups in California.

Donnelly said the solution lies in a compromise bill (SB 160) which has been introduced in Sacramento and which has a provision "that allows the public to speak, too" during negotiations.

Pine said he was opposed to the "present format" of SB 275 but added, "I think the board should take a position.

"When we accepted tenure we began to accept a degree of mediocrity," said Pine. "If you have binding arbitration coupled with ability to strike plus tenure, I begin to question the need for school boards."

SB 275, by Sen. Ralph Dills, D-Gardena, still is undergoing change in Sacramento. It comes up for a vote in April in the Senate Governmental Organizations Committee.

As presently written, it extends collective bargaining rights with binding arbitration and right to strike to some 1.2 million public employes in California.

Teacher tenure is written into law and allows for dismissal of tenured teachers and administrators only for specific causes. These are immoral or unprofessional conduct, dishonesty, incompetency, evident unfitness, persistent violation of state school laws or district regulations, felony conviction, any crime of moral terpitude and known membership in the Communist Party.

Seniority rights also are contained in the tenure laws.

The Reform of Intermediate and Secondary Education Commission (RISE) this week in Sacramento voted 16 to 11 to recommend that tenure for California teachers be abolished.

Close vote looms on no-NOx bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation to scrap a controversial smog control program for older cars in the South Coast Air Basin probably faces a closest test in the Assembly next week, its author says.

Sen. Omer Rains says his measure should have no trouble in the Assembly Ways and Means Committee next Tuesday, even though it was approved last week by only one vote in the Assembly Transportation Committee after three weeks of hageling.

Rains' bill would eliminate the requirement that all 1.8 million 1966-70 cars in Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, Riverside, Ventura and Santa Barbara counties be equipped devices to cut oxides of nitrogen (NOx) emissions.

Asking $1 to $15 apiece

165,000 file for snack rebates

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A big bite has been taken into a rebate plan involving potato, corn and tortilla chips.

About 165,000 asserted purchasers of the snacks have filed claims for $1 to $15 under terms of a tentative settlement of a price fixing case, U.S. District Court officials said Tuesday.

A total of $2.27 million in rebates to consumers have been provided for in the case brought by lawyer Jack Corinblitt against several chip makers. A hearing will be held May 19 by U.S. District Court Judge Manuel Real on whether to approve the settlement.

The money will be mailed to claimants after the expected approval.

Announcement of the rebate was contained in advertisements placed in major newspapers throughout California. Included in the ads was an application for the rebates. The forms must be mailed by April 21.

Corinblitt filed the class action suit as a followup to criminal and civil actions filed by the government against some of the companies, which pleaded no contest to price fixing accusations.

Opposing parties in the suit agreed to a $6 million settlement, which included the $2.27 million allotted for consumer rebates. Other eligible for rebates are eating and drinking establishments, liquor stores, retail grocers and public entities.

Only persons who bought the chips between Jan. 1, 1967, and Dec. 31, 1970, in California, Arizona or Nevada are eligible for rebates up to a maximum of $15.

Defendants in the suit were Laura Scudder, Inc.; Pet Inc.; Pepsico, Ind.; B.B.F. Liquidating, Inc.; Eggo Food Products, Inc.; Fearn International, Inc. and Clover Club Foods, Inc.

Forms can be obtained by applying to the Office of the Clerk, U.S. District Court, Central District of California, P.O. Box 76852, Los Angeles 90076.

Emphysema risk higher in whites

LONG BEACH (AP) — A genetic defect that increases risk of the respiratory ailment emphysema has been found only in whites among a group of seventh graders from several ethnic backgrounds.

Testing for the defect among 917 youngsters determined that 3.5 per cent of the whites but none of the nonwhites had the defect.

State to give tax break to elderly in rented housing

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Special state income tax refunds are now available for thousands of elderly Californians who receive federal welfare benefits and who live in rented housing.

The Franchise Tax Board has changed a ruling made last year and agreed that persons receiving Supplemental Security Income (SSI) can be eligible for the renter's refunds or tax credits, the state Office on Aging said.

Not only are the refunds or credits available to elderly Californians on their 1974 taxes, but also on their 1973 state income taxes, the agency said in a statement Tuesday.

To qualify for the refunds, the agency said elderly persons must meet several standards:

—They must have been living in rented housing — other than public housing or other tax-exempt housing — on March 1, 1974;

—They must have income in addition to the SSI checks: Social Security, pension checks or disability allowances;

—They must not be claimed as dependents on anyone else's state income tax returns; and —They must file a 1974 state income tax return by April 15.

Even if the elderly renter did not have enough income to owe any taxes, he must file the return in order to receive the refund that can total up to $45.

If the elderly renter did not receive a refund or tax credit for 1973 and he lived in rental housing on March 1, 1973, he can file an amended 1973 return now to receive that refund.

The Office on Aging said elderly persons seeking more information should contact their local Franchise Tax Board offices, regional offices of the aging agency or senior citizens groups.

Strict enforcement cuts fast driving

CHP speed tickets double in year

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Highway Patrol wrote more than twice as many speeding tickets last year then it did in 1973 and Commissioner Dante Lanza says the crackdown will continue.

"As long as we don't have compliance we've got to continue," said Lanza, a holdover from the administration of former Gov. Ronald Reagan. Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. hasn't said if he'll be replaced.

Lanza says stricter enforcement has cut about 11 miles an hour from the average speed on California highways. It's down to 57.5 miles an hour on rural freeways, 54.4 on urban freeways and 53.6 on two-lane rural roads.

The 5,650 uniformed CHP officers wrote 1,060,319 speeding tickets last year, compared with 500,377 in 1973.

He conceded that a lot of drivers are still exceeding the limit.

"The opinion polls tell us that 70 per cent of the people are highly in favor of the 55 mile limit," he said, "but our radar polls show that 80 per cent are exceeding it."

He acknowledged that "it's tough to keep a car down to 55 when the road is built for 75 and the car for 110."

But he said the 55-mile limit is absolute.

"The Congress says this is it. The President says this is it. The legislature says that's what we shall enforce, and the governor says that's what we shall enforce," Lanza said.

While the strict enforcement hasn't kept everybody down to 55, it has kept most of them under 60, Lanza said.

"We don't have the high speeder or the constant speeder so much any more," he said.

Besides the anti-speeding program, the CHP has been out for drunk drivers, too. Drunk driving arrests were up by 5,000 last year to 124,179.

The patrol is doing other things to make the highways safer, too.

As an experiment, patrol cars have escorted convoys back from weekends in Las Vegas, at the 55-mile limit. It got mixed reviews—safer, but boring and regimented.

Patrol computers are pinpointing high-accident areas, so officers can concentrate on them.

Helicopters and planes spot trouble, and on one occasion helped smash a truck hijacking ring by spotting some color-coded stolen pipe in a Porterville auction yard.

The patrol has arranged for 50,000 abandoned vehicles to be hauled to junk yards, some lifted by helicopter off beaches and out of parks. There's still an estimated 135,000 junkers to be removed.

Seven teams of CHP officers are stopping noisy cars, trucks and motorcycles, and the patrol is working on getting noisy mofieled exhausts off the market.

They've found that 16.4 per cent of the motorcycles exceed the noise limits, while only 2.3 per cent of the cars and 1.1 per cent of the trucks do.

The patrol has hired 27 women officers — probably more than are on the highways of all other states combined. It's an experiment, and more will be hired if these work out.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. trimmed nearly $10 million from the patrol's $170 million budget for next year by deleting a passenger car inspection program. The legislature is squabbling about whether to put it back in.

Lanza said the budget won't require trimming back any other programs, but there is no new money for further innovations.

Blonde lived with accused assassin in U.S.

CHRISTINE SURMA

PRINCE FAISAL
. . . accused assassin

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The former girlfriend of Prince Faisal — accused in the assassination of his uncle, King Faisal — says the prince was always horrified whenever he heard news of an assassination.

Interviewed by KNBC-TV late Tuesday at her West Hollywood apartment, Christine Surma, 26, said she was "completely baffled as to what possessed him to do such a thing."

"I remember how shocked he was whenever there was an assassination in this country or around the world. It used to just horrify him," said Miss Surma.

The attractive blonde, who said she lived with the prince for five years while he attended the University of Colorado and U.C. Berkeley, said she did not feel the 27-year-old Arab was mentally deranged or fanatical as some reports have indicated.

"I felt that he was actually brilliant. He had a very brilliant mind," said Miss Surma.

But she said that in her opinion the prince had become more radical while attending Berkeley. There was no elaboration.

Miss Surma, an auctioneer who was interviewed last week about her profession on NBC-TV's "Tonight Show," said she had made global travels with Prince Faisal and had been amazed at the number of friends he seemed to have around the world.

"I remember when he and I were in Paris together — he was the only person I knew that could go to any country in the world and walk down the street and know people. It was amazing!"

Miss Surma said she last saw Prince Faisal in July, shortly before he left the United States to return to Saudi Arabia.

Lived among campus radicals

Prince involved with drugs

By Associated Press

Prince Faisal Ibn Musaed Ibn Abdul Aziz was a teen-ager when he came to the United States to study. When he went home to Saudi Arabia last year, he had been involved with drugs, had lived among campus radicals and had the death of his brother to avenge.

In announcing that the 27year-old prince killed King Faisal on Tuesday, Radio Riyadh called him "mentally deranged."

The official Saudi Arabian broadcast gave no hint of the fate of the prince, whose father, Prince Musaed Ibn Abdul Aziz, was King Faisal's stepbrother.

The Saudi Arabian Embassy in Lebanon said Prince Faisal was once confined to a mental institution.

The semiofficial Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram said his father, Prince Musaed, was once sent to prison by King Faisal after a quick trial for killing someone in Jidda, Saudi Arabia.

Al Ahram described Prince Faisal as "a nervous person with aspiration for power, worldly joys and fame."

The newspaper said members of the royal family frequently complained to King Faisal about the young prince's behavior, but the king dismissed them, saying, "May God redeem him."

Prince Faisal came to the United States in the mid-1960s to study. In 1966, while he was attending San Francisco State College in California, his brother, Khaled, was shot to death by Saudi Arabian police during a violent demonstration.

In 1969, while enrolled at the University of Colorado, the prince was arrested and charged with conspiracy to sell the hallucinogen LSD. He pleaded guilty and was placed on probation for one year.

In Boulder, Prof. Edward Rozek of the University of Colorado said if the prince was the assassin, he was probably motivated by drugs.

"As I look now in retrospect to try to trace a cause which led to this kind of tragic action, I think it must have been drugs. He must have been hooked," said Rozek, who taught the prince in three comparative government courses in 1969 and 1970.

Rozek described the prince as a "very decent, likeable, shy, unassuming person who never acted like a member of the royal family....

Arab world mourns Faisal; burial without fanfare

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Thousands of wailing Arabs mobbed the coffin of assassinated King Faisal before the world's richest monarch was buried in an unmarked grave today.

It was the only public portion of the simple funeral rites proscribed by the puritannical Wahabi sect of Islam.

Bathed by Moslem holy men, shrouded in a seamless white sheet, Faisal's bullet-torn body lay in El Eid mosque in Riyadh, the capital of Saudi Arabia, while princes and commoners chanted "Allah akbar," God is great.

Faisal's brother, the new 62-year-old King Khaled, wept as he prayed over the body. He was flanked by members of the royal family and 16 other kings, presidents and premiers.

Radio stations in Kuwait, Egypt, Syria and the United Arab Emirates hooked in with Riyadh state radio to broadcast live coverage of the event.

The wailing of the crowd outside the mosque could be heard over the chants of the muezzin, the Moslem priest. He intoned:

"Regard not as dead those that are killed for the sake of God ... O ye tranquil soul, return to thy God willingly and join my slaves in paradise."

The prayers lasted for 10 minutes. Then the body was placed in a simple wooden coffin and carried outside the mosque from shoulder to shoulder by the waiting crowd.

An emotion-choked radio announcer said crowds of mourners fought to touch the coffin before it was turned over to the Ulema, the Moslem holy men, for private burial without fanfare or a tombstone. The Wahabis do not mark graves because they believe veneration of the dead detracts from worship of Allah.

Earlier, King Khaled and his 53-year-old brother, Crown Prince Fahd, received pledges of allegiance from princes of the royal family, military commanders, Moslem religious leaders, Bedouin tribal chieftains and commoners.

Khaled, and Fahd at his side, were dressed in traditional flowing white robes with brown cloaks trimmed with gold. For 90 minutes, the new king's subjects approached the throne one by one, placed their hands on the Koran, and made their pledges.

The hundreds of Saudis in the royal court and thousands of citizens massed outside the government palace chanted "God is great" and "May Allah be with you."

A sobbing radio announcer reported that King Khaled burst into tears, starting a chain reaction among the audience.

King Khaled in the first public statement of his reign pledged to follow Faisal's policies.

Diplomats in Beirut interpreted this as a pledge to continue seeking friendship with the United States and other Western powers while contributing liberally from Saudi Arabia's vast oil revenues to pressure on Israel to withdraw from East Jerusalem and all other Arab territories occupied in the 1967 war.

No change in oil policy seen in assassination

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Middle East oil experts expect no immediate change in Saudi Arabia's oil policy as a result of King Faisal's assassination.

This was the outcome of a survey published today by Arab World, a respected Beirut-based daily digest of Middle Eastern affairs.

"It is the considered opinion of Middle East oil experts in Beirut that the world's largest oil exporting country will not depart from its current oil policies," the publication said.

"We expect continuity," one unnamed expert was quoted as saying. "What happened was not a change of regime. The main oil policy makers still are there in power."

He was evidently referring to the Supreme Petroleum Council — SPC — which has long been the mastermind of Saudi Arabia's oil policies and handles its estimated $30 billion yearly income from oil.

Prince Fahd Ibn Abdul Aziz, who heads SPC, became crown prince and first deputy prime minister after Faisal's death. His increased power is expected to help maintain the Saudi policy of seeking reduced oil prices, Arab World said.

Fahd went on record in an interview published last October as supporting a price cut.

"Oil producing nations are all duty bound to bear their responsibility toward the world society," Prince Fahd said.

Faisal also was an advocate of price cuts, accepting the current freeze only in the interest of safeguarding the unity of the powerful Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries — OPEC. The late king boycotted the OPEC summit conference in Algiers this month, reportedly because most other member-states, including Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi of Iran, opposed the Saudi drive for lower prices.

Rockefeller makes stopover in Spain

TORREJON, Spain (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller, making his first overseas journey as vice president, stopped here briefly today en route to Saudi Arabia to offer President Ford's condolences on the assassination of King Faisal.

An Air Force plane carrying Rockefeller and Assistant Secretary of State Alfred L. Atherton and a party of aides landed at the U.S. air base here, some 12 miles from Madrid, at 10:59 a.m. 5:59 EDT for an hour-long refueling stop.

Boys playing turns into tragedy; 7 dead in fire

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Police said it began with two small boys playfully poking a stick into a gas heater in the cellar of a narrow, 3½-story row house on the South Side.

It ended with the building in charred ruin and seven persons burned to death in a flash fire. The victims included a pregnant woman and five children.

"Me and my friends saw smoke and ran to a firebox," said a youth who was at a nearby playground when the fire started Tuesday afternoon. "The firemen came and before I knew it they were carrying bodies out."

Firemen estimated 15 persons from several families had shared the dwelling. The remains of eight dogs were also found in the rubble.

Homicide Detective Michael Gorney said the two boys who were playing in the basement, aged 4 and 8, told him the stick caught fire in the heater and that one of them used it to ignite a shopping bag and push the bag under a bed.

The two boys were rescued by Gloria White, 42, but firemen summoned to the scene said the flames spread so quickly that they were unable to respond to cries for help from the second floor.

Later, firemen found the body of Doyle White Jr., 20, stretched across the bodies of two dead children on the second floor.

The pregnant woman, Marlene Wood, 23, was found on top of two more dead children in a second-floor bathtub.

The dead included two of Mrs. Wood's children, Marlena, 3, and Raymond, 4. Also killed were three brothers, Robert Bailey, 10, Ralph Bailey, 7, and John Bailey, 11.

Firemen said the Bailey children's father, John Bailey, was at work.

25-cent ceiling on school hot lunches defeated in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic leaders in the House are hoping to convert some critics of a proposal to establish a 25-cent ceiling on the price of a hot lunch for school children.

A backlash against subsidizing the middle class when budget deficits are soaring resulted in a 265-144 vote on Tuesday against the ceiling.

Final action on the school lunch bill was delayed until after Congress' Easter recess with the Democratic leadership hoping to change some minds by then.

The poor and lower middleclass children already are eligible for free or cut-rate hot lunches. However, costs have risen sharply for students whose parents make more than $10,000 a year, up to 85 cents a meal in big cities.

Education and Labor Chairman Carl D. Perkins and Rep. James G. O'Hara, D-Mich., argued that middle-class students were being priced out of the program and that unless the government subsidized their meals, schools would drop the entire luncheon program, leaving needy students in the lurch.

They said the federal subsidy wasn't a middle-class ripoff but the only way to save the overall program.

But Republicans and a sizable bloc of Democratic liberals said the subsidy would cost between $600 million and $1 billion and was inappropriate at any time, let alone when budget deficits are predicted to be above $70 billion for next year.

Rep. George A. Goodling, R-Pa., said rising prices hadn't been the principal reason for the nearly 3 million student dropout from the hot lunch program in the last three years. He said the major factors were decreasing school enrollment, a dissatisfaction with the food served and the availability of hamburgers and milk shakes nearby.

Perkins and O'Hara had revised their plans, after the initial critical response to the 25-cent maximum fee during debate Monday, and had a compromise ready setting the maximum fee at 35 cents instead.

They never got a vote on their substitute, however, because of the adoption of Goodling's proposal to eliminate the entire maximum-meal fee section.

General going to Viet to assess need of U.S. aid

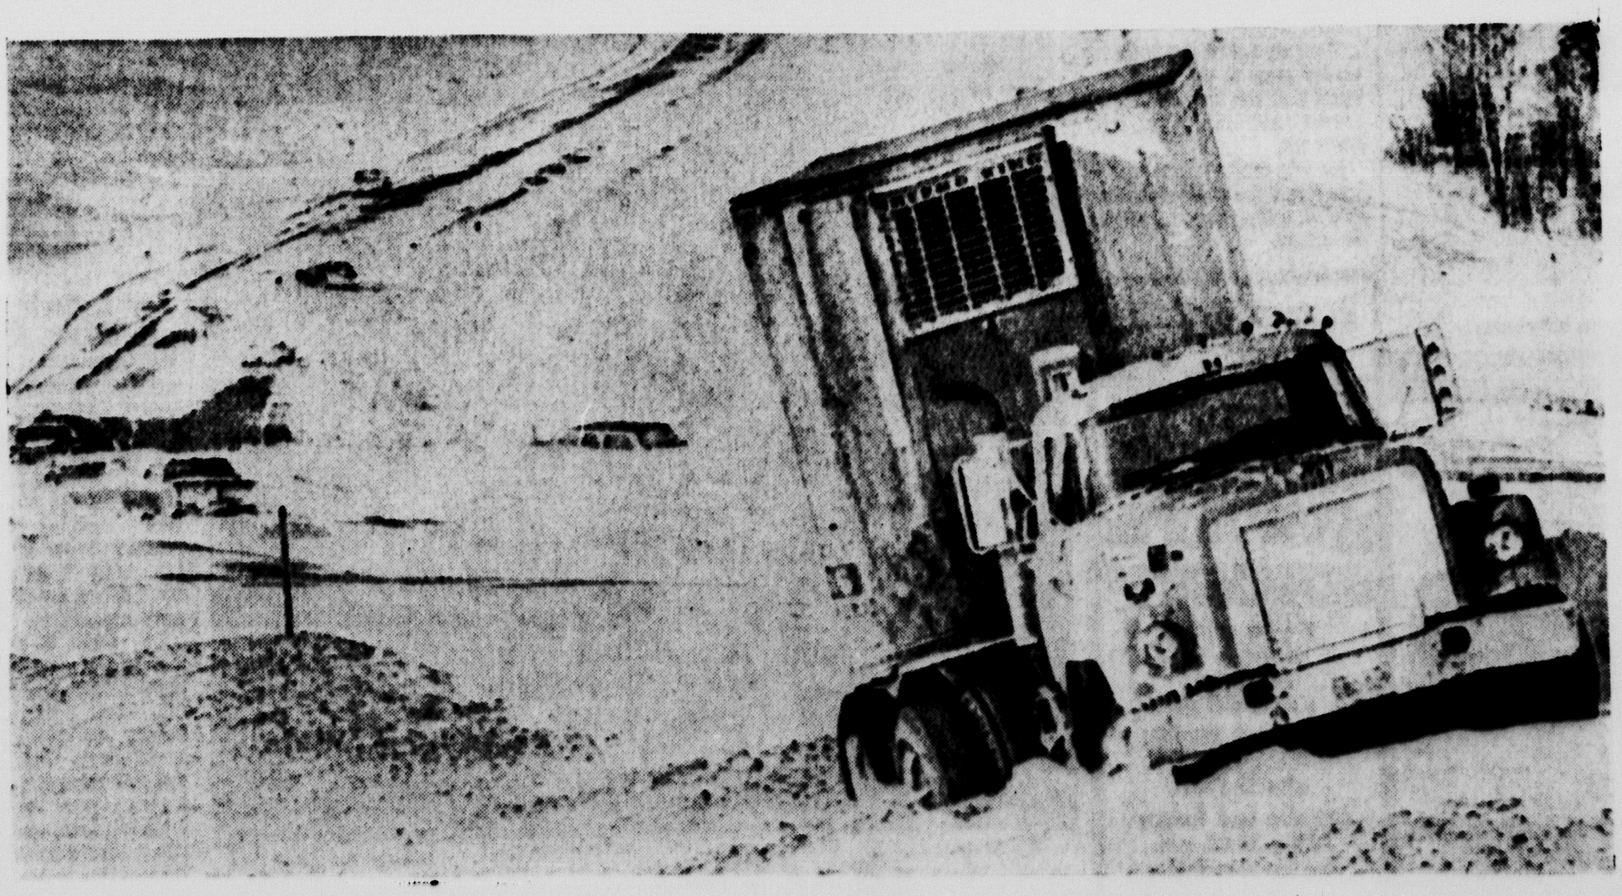
WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Frederick C. Weyland, Army chief of staff, is flying to Saigon with orders from President Ford to assess the military situation and determine what additional help might be needed.

Weyland was the last American commander in Vietnam and was picked for today's trip because he has a wide acquaintance with military and government leaders there, said White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

Ford, described as "deeply disturbed" by reports of increased fighting in South Vietnam, instructed Weyland to convey to President Thieu and the South Vietnamese people expressions of "strong support," Nessen said Tuesday.

In a meeting with a delegation of South Vietnamese legislators and Ambassador Tran Kim Phuong, Ford also said he would try to obtain additional aid for their country.

The President has asked Congress for $352-million in military aid for South Vietnam and Cambodia. Congress has taken no action beyond committee hearings on Ford's proposal for $300-million military aid for South Vietnam.



SNOW-BOUND Interstate 35 in Duluth, Minn. is lined Tuesday with cars that had hit the ditch in blizzard conditions. A Duluth newspaper photographer counted 40 cars and trucks deserted along a 40-mile stretch.

Cambodian troops quit, won't fight

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Three hundred government soldiers walked away from a defensive position east of Phnom Penh while troops west of the capital were reluctant to fight because of a possible cutoff in U.S. aid, field reports said Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Communist-led insurgents blasted Phnom Penh's airport and the city itself with 64 rockets, killing eight persons and wounding 20. The U.S. airlift of rice, fuel and ammunition continued without interruption. Military sources said the insurgents also drove government forces from more than half a dozen positions east and west of Phnom Penh.

On the political front, President Lon Nol's powerful younger brother, Brig. Gen. Lon Non, resigned from the army to give his full attention to politics. Observers said he would try to strengthen the rightist elements of the ruling government.

Viet beaches reminiscent of Dunkerque in WW II

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

DA NANG, South Vietnam (AP) — In a desperate military operation reminiscent of the British evacuation of Dunkerque in World War II, tens of thousands of Vietnamese soldiers and civilian refugees are scrambling to evacuate from Communist-shelled beaches of northern South Vietnam.

Some soldiers ripped off their boots and trousers and threw away their rifles before plunging into the light surf and swimming the 500 yards to the navy ships and civilian vessels standing off the coast, according to the first groups to arrive in Da Nang Tuesday afternoon.

"It was an ocean of people on the Thuan An Beach waiting from early morning," said a civil servant who arrived on the first ship. "We fought to get out there."

The mass exodus by sea followed a decision Monday to abandon Hue rather than defend the old imperial city against what South Vietnamese military people claim was an overwhelmingly superior force. A Vietnamese photographer who was on one of the last helicopters to land at Hue Monday afternoon said troops of the South Vietnamese 1st Division were fleeing with their families down the 10-mile highway to the beach. He said they did not seem to be withdrawing in units.

At dawn Tuesday an armada of Vietnamese navy and civilian vessels of all sizes had assembled off the Thuan An Beach. Several large transports had mocred to a jetty and were loading heavy 175mm artillery guns and trucks. There were thousands of vehicles and artillery pieces in and around Hue. Vietnamese sources said it was unlikely that many of these could be moved out in time.

The first swimming soldiers quickly filled several small boats. The vessels headed off on the six-hour journey to Da Nang, about 50 miles to the south.

When they arrived in Da Nang harbor, crowds of women were waiting at the dockside crying out the names of loved ones.

Most of the men who disembarked were without boots. Some were without trousers. About half of them had no weapons.

By evening, about 3,000 had arrived. The major part of the armada was expected to pull into Da Nang Tuesday night and this morning. Da Nang itself is cut off from the rest of South Vietnam except by air and sea, and Western diplomats said a U.S. financed airlift would take 10,000 refugees a day out of the city.

A freighter with a capacity for about 7,000 passengers sailed to the Hue beaches early Tuesday from Da Nang.

The crowds of soldiers and refugees from Hue will swell what is already a city bursting at the seams with refugees.

The refugees were camped on the main highways in Da Nang. They live under blankets, ponchos and pieces of plastic spread over fences.

Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city, ordinarily has a population of 500,000. Now it is believed tripled by the influx of one million refugees.

Scores of children are begging on the streets. In a park, refugees are camped around two Soviet-made 130mm howitzers and a Russian tank captured near Hue in the 1972 offensive.

Tarpaulin draped over the barrels of the guns shelter them from occasional light rain. The weather generally has been clear.

It was the threat of numerous Communist guns such as these that convinced the Saigon high command it should give up Hue this time without much of a fight.

Unlike some other Vietnamese cities, there is no sign of anti-Americanism in Da Nang. But there is a sense of hopelessness as the ring tightens around the city, hour by hour. In addition to the loss of Hue, two provinces to the south of Da Nang have been overrun by the Communists in the last 24 hours.

As the soldiers left the boats, they just drifted off into the crowd. There seemed to be no attempt to organize them.

Mingling with them on the sidewalks of Da Nang were troops from the 2nd Infantry Division. They had fled from Quang Tri Province in the south.

This disorganized, hopeless group of men were, up to two weeks ago, regarded as the best two infantry divisions in the country.

In Hue, there was the 1st Division, two brigades of marines, two brigades of airborne and parts of two armored regiments. They amounted to as many as 20,000 troops.

These people reported shelling in Hue but no fighting. Western diplomatic sources reported the South Vietnamese abandoned the city without a fight.

Pope in impassioned plea to end Viet war

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI, his voice filled with emotion, today called for end to war and suffering in Vietnam. He appealed to all men to turn their attention to the "indescribable agony of tears and blood" the Vietnamese people are suffering.

It was the pontiff's most impassioned plea for peace in Vietnam in five years. Addressing some 20,000 people gathered in St. Peter's Basilica for the weekly general audience, the Pope said:

"At the beginning of this audience we cannot withhold our voice from calling the attention of the world to the tragic and painful experience of Vietnam.

"At a time when our heart gets ready for the joy of Easter celebrations a nation is suffering an indescribable agony of tears and blood in a frightening exodus which has really taken up very serious proportions."

Pope Paul said it was a "sad and dangerous hour for mankind."

"After the Paris agreements which were the fruit of so many efforts one believed that thanks to a fair accord entrusted to the loyal observance of the conflicting parties the end had come to an already too long sufferance," he said.

"Now instead one can see that it was good for nothing. They have started all over again. They have started shedding blood again.

"In the name of the One who came to save men we express our pain, our anxiety for all these dear populations. Brothers, children, awaiting the forthcoming Easter and knowing that thousands of men and women, children and innocent ones are suffering, let us do everything to relieve the tragedy of those people and to deliver them evidence that our world is not indifferent to the crying of brothers.

"Let us join our efforts in worldwide solidarity and pray to the Lord in whose hands rests the destiny of man."

Jewish council member walks out on Arab vote

LOS ANGELES (AP) — City councilman Joel Wachs says he "just didn't feel in good conscience" that he could join other councilmen in voting to adjourn in memory of slain King Faisal of Saudi Arabia.

Wachs left Tuesday's council session rather than join a 9-0 vote for adjournment, saying "I don't want to have anything to do with this." Wachs offered no further explanation.

Councilman John Ferraro presented the resolution, calling Faisal "a moderating force" in the Mid-East and "certainly pro-American."

"I just didn't feel in good conscience I could vote to adjourn in his memory," Wachs said later. "I didn't want to make a big thing of showing my disagreement. I have never seen anyone vote no on one of these."

Wachs is one of the council's two Jewish members. The other, Marvin Braude, had left shortly before Ferraro made his motion.

Cancer deaths lower among Mormons

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Because of their temperate life style, the rate of cancer deaths among devout Mormons is about half the national average, says a non-Mormon physicist.

Dr. James Enstrom of UCLA said that surveys of Mormons over age 35 in Utah and California disclosed cancer mortality rates ranging from 25 per cent to 70 per cent below that of non-Mormons in the same age group.

Enstrom reported his findings Tuesday to the American Cancer Scoiety's science writers seminar here.

"The cancer rates as well as the mortality rates (for cancer) for Utah are the lowest in the United States," Enstrom said. Seventy per cent of Utah's 1.2 million people are members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, the Mormons' formal title.

His findings applied to all known forms of cancer, he added.

Enstrom linked the reduced cancer rates to the Mormons' belief that the human body is sacred and must be well cared for.

He said that Mormon teachings forbid the use of tobacco, alcohol, coffee, tea and addictive drugs.

Automen see spring upturn

DETROIT (AP) — The nation's auto industry spokesmen are optimistic that a seasonal upturn will buoy new car sales this spring despite the fact mid-March deliveries fell 29 per cent from a year ago.

"There always is a spring upturn in this business, and this year will be no exception," one company analyst said Tuesday, after the four major auto makers reported sales were at a 14-year low for mid-March.

"We bottomed out in November and have been logging slow but steady improvements ever since," the analyst said. "There's nothing in the latest figures to suggest a new industry slump."

Some analysts said the sharp decline in the March 11-20 period provided the first evidence that the close of most cash rebate plans has slowed consumer interest in new cars.

Analysts also attributed the drop to the absence of widespread dealer incentive contests, which boosted deliveries in last year's period well above expectation levels.

General Motors, Ford and Chrysler each launched extensive contests last year to counteract the large car slump precipitated by the Mideast oil embargo and consumer fears of gasoline shortages. This year, however, only Chevrolet was conducting a sales contest in the mid-March period.

Cash rebates programs ended last month at all companies except Chrysler, which is extending discounts this month on a smaller scale.

Sales for mid-March were 175,674, compared to 246,551 in 1974. The daily selling rate of 19,519 was the lowest since 1961, when the mid-March rate was 16,826.

For the year, sales were 1,313,699, down 13 per cent from a weak 1,509,123 a year ago.

The latest sales rate was up only 12 per cent from the previous 10 day-period, compared to an average 30 per cent increase in recent years.

Mamie Eisenhower enters hospital after bleeding

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Mamie Eisenhower is in an Army hospital for tests to determine what caused her to suffer internal bleeding.

A spokesman said the illness of the 79-year-old former first lady was not serious.

"Her doctors have her in here for a series of tests to determine just what is causing this," said Maj. George Foster of the U.S. Army Medical Center at nearby Ft. Gordon.

Mrs. Eisenhower was spending the winter at Mamie's Cabin at the Augusta National Golf Club. The cabin is a cottage purchased by President Eisenhower for use during his frequent trips to Augusta National, home of the Masters Tournament. He was an avid golfer.

Insurgent Khieu Samphan

Cambodia's future leader?

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Khieu Samphan, the 44-year-old star of the Cambodian insurgents, was Prince Norodom Sihanouk's harshest critic in the 1960s.

Eight years ago Peking reported that Samphan had been killed on orders from Sihanouk, then Cambodia's chief of state.

Now the two are allies against President Lon Nol and his associates, who overthrew the prince and forced him into exile with Samphan in Peking.

Some expect Samphan to be the head of cambodia's future Communist government, but some Western analysts in Phnom Penh don't think he is the top man among the Khmer Rouge insurgents, little known leaders. Sihanouk's government-in-exile in Peking lists him as its deputy prime minister, minister of defense and commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

As a young man, Samphan was an intense, hard-working socialist who was willing to sacrifice to change Cambodia's feudalistic society.

The son of a civil servant, he is the eldest of five children, studied in Paris and took a doctorate in economics.

His younger brother, Khieu Seng Kim, 31, a journalist, recalls, "As a high school student, he was serious. He studied a lot and didn't run around."

After five years in leftist Parisian university circles, he returned to found a French-language newspaper, The Observer, and wrote about corruption and social inequities.

His writings, plain dress and simple life style won him the enmity of Sihanouk's rich friends. He never owned a car and tried to identify himself with the poor.

Khieu Samphan said he did not marry because his life was committed to politics, and a man with a family "must think of them first."

In 1960, he was beaten on the street and stripped to his underwear by 10 Sihanouk thugs — one of whom took pictures, his brother said. "He was very ashamed by this," a classmate recalled.

His newspaper was closed in 1961 as a Commpunist propaganda outlet. He was arrested several times.

His brother tells this story: In jail after his paper was closed, Samphan told police officers, "I have no money, no car. Look at my home." When he asked them where their money, cars and big houses came from, "they were silent."

In 1962, he was a successful candidate for the National Assembly and later that year joined Sihanouk's cabinet as secretary of state for commerce. He resigned the next year because of rising prices and a purge by Sihanouk that almost resulted in an assembly vote of censure.

Meanwhile, the Khmer Rouge rebels had become active, and Samphan and his friends were more and more the target of Sihanouk's ire. At a Buddhist ceremony in April 1967, the prince accused Samphan of leading a peasant revolt. Samphan disappeared that evening. Two days later Peking radio said he had been killed on the prince's orders.

Measles outbreak in state

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Measles outbreaks struck four Northern California counties recently, a state health official said Tuesday. He asked parents to make sure their children are immunized.

Outbreaks occurred in Monterey, San Francisco, San Mateo and Santa Cruz, said Dr. James Chin, chief of the state Department of Health's infectious disease section.

Junior high and senior high school students were hardest hit.

"Some parents might as well still be living in the Dark Ages when plagues raged uncontrolled and nothing could be done for they don't bother to get their youngsters the one-time inoculation required to provide lifetime protection against measles," Chin said.

Doctors also should consider immunizing children again who received shots before 1968 because older vaccines might not have been powerful enough, Chin said.

In the first 12 weeks of this year there were 888 cases of measles in California, compared to 357 during the same period last year.

By Mar. 22 this year the four counties where outbreaks have occurred have had the following number of cases: Monterey 20; San Francisco 175; San Mateo 187; and Santa Cruz 25.

In an interview, Florence Morrison, a health Department senior statistician, said if the "vaccine is utilized fully, the virus shouldn't be occurring at all."

Last year 1,115 cases occurred in California, Mrs. Morrison added that was considerably lower than the measles cases in the early 1960s, for example. In 1961 there were 39,201 cases.

"But one case is too many since it can be prevented," Mrs. Morrison said.

The measles vaccine was first generally available to the public in 1963. Measles can lead to encephalitis, pneumonia, blindness and death, the Department of Health statement said.

Man convicted after his confession frees another

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A San Diego man whose confession freed another convicted of murder, has been convicted of the same slaying.

A Superior Court jury found Clarence Richard Blunt, 18, guilty Monday of first-degree murder and robbery in the death of Robert A. Hoke, slain with a hatchet in a 1973 gas station holdup.

Sergeant Herbert Jackson, 21, of San Diego, was originally convicted in the case. He served 10½ months of a life sentence in state prison until Blunt walked into police headquarters and confessed to the crime.

In his confession, Blunt also implicated Andrew Donnelly, 19, of San Diego, who eventually pleaded guilty as an accessory to murder.

Donnelly was sentenced to an indefinite term in the California Youth Authority.

PLAY BALL — Sam a miniature poodle wearing an Oakland A's baseball helmet, sunglasses, rhinestone necklace and a green turtleneck sweater, creates quite a stir as he takes an automobile outing with his mistress Betty Webber of Sacramento. Ms. Webber says they aren't particularly Oakland A's fans. It just happens the helmet fits Sam's head and he seems to enjoy dressing up and the attention.

Worldwide news briefs

'Markspersons' for Army

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has decided that all women soldiers donning their new uniform after June 30 must become qualified "marks-persons" with the M16 rifle.

Although women are barred from serving in combat units, the Army said it feels they should be trained to help defend their supporting outfits if emergencies arise while they are stationed overseas.

The Marine Corps reportedly is considering a similar step, although it probably will be on a selective basis determined by a woman Marine's assignment.

In the Air Force, weapons training for women is a voluntary matter. The Navy has its Waves fire .22 caliber rifles and revolvers, but only to familiarize them with the weapons.

The Army said voluntary rifle training for enlisted women has been part of their basic instruction since last August, but that about one-fifth of the girls have chosen to stay out of it.

"Therefore, the voluntary weapons program did not fully meet the Army's need to have all its soldiers adequately trained and a change in policy was required," an Army spokesman said when asked about reports of the switch.

All enlisted women joining the Army, National Guard or the Army Reserve after June 30 will be required to become qualified with the M16 rifle. They will be told of this before they sign up, the Army said. There now are around 40,000 women in the Army.

Sniper receives death sentence

INDIO, Calif. (AP) — A death sentence has been ordered for Richard Hicks for his conviction in a freeway shooting spree that left three persons dead.

The sentence handed down recently by Riverside County Superior Court Judge Richard Marsh was automatic under state law because the jury found Hicks was sane and that he had personally committed the murders.

Marsh denied defense motions for a new trial and for reduction of the sentence.

Hicks was expected to be taken to San Quentin prison to await the automatic appeal of the death sentence to the California Supreme Court.

Drug charges filed against 69 sailors

YOKOSUKA, Japan (AP) — The U.S. Navy has charged 69 enlisted men on the amphibious transport vessel Dubuque with either possession or sale of narcotics aboard the ship, a Navy spokesman said Friday.

Lt. Julius A. Glow said 13 of the men will be tried by courtmartial at Yokosuka naval base south of Tokyo. He said the other 56 were referred to the Dubuque's commander, Capt. R.W. McLain, for disciplinary action to be determined by him.

Two more sailors from the Dubuque, which arrived in Japan on March 5, are being investigated on similar charges and also may be court-martialed, the spokesman said.

Hiker falls to death in off-limits area

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — A 22-year-old Riverside man fell more than 100 feet to his death while hiking in the off-limits Tahquitz Canyon area, authorities said.

Officials said Richard Henderson apparently lost his footing on a cliff and fell just before dark Saturday.

His body was not recovered until Sunday from the canyon, which is closed due to fire danger, officials said.

Palomares home cited nationally

Casa Primera de Rancho San Jose, the first home in the valley, has been nominated for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places.

The historic Pomona home, located at Park and McKinley avenues, was nominated for the register by the State Historical Resources Commission along with eight other sites throughout the state.

Casa Primera was built in 1837 by Don Ygnacio Palomares, who was granted in that year, along with Don Ricardo Vejar, the Rnacho San Jose, which included the land now occupied by the cities of Pomona, La Verne, Claremont and portions of San Dimas.

Mine safety chief resigns under fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — James M. Day, the Interior Department official in charge of enforcing federal coal mine safety laws, resigned today following a massive campaign for his ouster by the United Mine Workers.

An administration source said that the United Mine Workers' opposition to Day had been a key factor in the resignation.

A California Easter for Ford

PALM SPRINGS (AP)—President and Mrs. Ford are expected to arrive in California on Saturday for a 10-day Easter vacation in the Palm Springs area.

The Fords will land at the Palm Springs Airport and stay at the exclusive Thunderbird Country Club in nearby Rancho Mirage until April 7, when they will depart for Washington.

While in Southern California, President Ford will make a side trip to the naval petroleum reserve at Elk Hills, near Bakersfield, about 200 miles from Palm Springs.

On his way back to Washington, President Ford will stop to address the National Association of Broadcasters in Las Vegas.

None of the Fords' children is expected to accompany them.

Scuba diving recertification April 5

New Los Angeles County legislation on scuba diving requires divers certified before last December to be recertified or show a log book of 12 scuba dives on separate dates in the last 12 months.

On April 5, the La Puente Community Adult School is holding a recertification day at La Puente High School. The only charge will be for the recertification card. It will be $1.50.

Any certified diver may attend and receive the legal recertification if he holds a valid scuba diving card from Los Angeles County, the National Association of Underwater Instructors, The Professional Association of Diving Instructors or the National Association of Skin Diving Schools.

A member of the Board of Underwater Instructors Association in Los Angeles County will be in charge.

The adult school will offer an advanced diving skills and a basic diving course following the recertification.

The advanced course will meet on Wednesdays with weekend field trips. The basic course will meet Tuesdays and Thursdays for eight classes and will include three field trips.

Registrations will be accepted opening night. Additional information may be obtained by calling 968-8452 or visiting La Puente High School between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. April 5.

St. Louis bank cuts rate to lowest--7%

NEW YORK (AP) — A small St. Louis bank cut its prime lending rate a full half-point to an industrywide low 7 per cent.

Southwest Bank of St. Louis, that city's eighth largest bank, said in making the announcement that 90-day Treasury bills now are yielding less than 5¼ per cent and prime commercial paper about 6 per cent.

The prime rate is not directly related to consumer loan or mortgage rates, but often indicates where those other rates are headed. The prime has been dropping steadily as a result of the recession, and a lower level of business borrowing as well as efforts by the Federal Reserve to make more money available.

Earlier, Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third largest commercial bank, joined several other large banks in lowering the prime rate to 7½ per cent, effective immediately.

A spokesman for Chase said ¼-point cut in the rate charged on loans to most creditworthy business borrowers is effective immediately.

S.S. pension incomes are worth less

NEW YORK (AP) — Most Social Security and pension incomes are worth 6 per cent less than they were in 1970 although these incomes are larger than they were then, according to the Bankers Trust Co. of New York.

While the dollar has declined 27 cents in purchasing power since 1970, Social Security has replaced 18 cents of the decrease and higher paying private plans have compensated another three cents, the bank said.

The figures are the results of a survey by the bank of 190 of the largest corporation pension plans. These plans cover some 8.4 million persons, about one fourth of those participating in private programs.

The industries studied included automakers, steel companies, banks, electronics firms, aerospace, food processors, oil companies and others.

Charles Selinske, who headed the study, said "the retirement age is still 65 years in 95 per cent of the plans studied, but that's about all that is the same."

Sixty-four per cent of the 190 plans have increased their pension benefits in the past five years; eligibility requirements have eased; plans requiring employe contributions are fewer, and early retirement benefits are bigger now in the average plan than in 1970.

Workers with one year of service or who are 25 years old qualify for 72 per cent of the plans checked, compared to 69 per cent in 1970.

Five years ago 53 per cent of the companies surveyed reduced an employe's benefits if he retired early and one-fourth of the companies did not allow workers to elect early retirement.

Now at least 85 per cent of the companies in the study pay an early retirement benefit in excess of the worker's contributions, making it less costly for a person to leave before age 65.

In case of a worker's death before retirement, 70 per cent of the private plans now pay the widow or widower some form of benefit. Five years ago, only 47 per cent of the plans had such a provision.

THE LION'S SHARE — Bobo relaxes for a well-deserved rest on a cool shelf at Louisville, Ky., Zoo. Officials say that because of a surplus of lion cubs, the prolific breeder may be sterilized.

Prolific patriarch of zoo is blamed for overpopulation

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The days of parenthood may soon be coming to an end for the prolific patriarch of the Louisville zoo's lions, Bobo.

Zoo officials say Bobo has fathered so many cubs — and the cubs are so hard to give away — that the animal may have to be sterilized.

Robert Bean, zoo director, says a vasectomy would solve the problem of too many cubs and would still leave the 17year-old lion with his masculine traits and thick mane.

The zoo now has six surplus cubs, which officials say once would have been easy to give away to other zoos across the country.

Now, however, zoo officials say some captive species have become overpopulated. They also say federal regulations restrict their ability to buy and sell animals to other zoos.

In particular, they point to the Endangered Species Act of 1973, which barred commercialization of animals in danger of extinction.

Department of the Interior regulations require permits that take at least five to eight weeks to obtain, says Robert Wagner, chairman of the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums' legislative committee.

An Interior Department spokesman, however, said the agency is just trying to follow the intent of Congress.

"The Congress wanted to insure that the American people knew what its government was doing for endangered species and set out some very strict administrative procedures that we have to follow," he says.

Award of merit

MYSTIC, Conn. (UPI) — Maynard E. Bray of North Stonington, Conn., recently was awarded the annual Award of Merit from the Connecticut League of Historical Societies for coordinating the refloating and restoration of the whaleship Charles W. Morgan at Mystic Seaport.

The Morgan, built in 1841, has been at the maritime museum since 1941 but lay embedded in sand until her refloating in December, 1973. The vessel was hauled from the water for the first time in more than 50 years for extensive hull repair.

Cigarette smoke can harm vision

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nicotine and carbon monoxide, two of the most harmful ingredients in cigarette smoke, can reduce a smoker's vision at night, says the American Optometric Association.

In some individuals, nicotine may cause blood vessels in the eyes to become smaller and this reduces the oxygen supply.

Carbon monoxide reduces the blood's ability to combine with and carry needed oxygen, and this lack of oxygen can interfere with dark adaptation to light.

Americans using less electricity and paying more

In January 1974, the average residential customer of Florida Power & Light used 833 kilowatt hours of electricity and had a monthly bill of $24.98.

This January, the same customer used 799 kilowatt hours and paid $31.62.

The amount of electricity used decreased by 4 per cent; the bill increased by 27 per cent. The base rate stayed the same, but the so-called fuel adjustment charge went from $1.83 to $8.47 — up 363 per cent.

The Florida situation is typical of what's happening across the country: Americans are using less electricity and paying more.

An Associated Press sampling showed electric bills have risen sharply in every area of the country, with most of the increase due to fuel adjustment charges which reflect higher prices paid by the utilities for oil, coal and natural gas.

The rate of increase varies sharply, from less than 10 per cent in some of the Western states to more than 100 per cent in Vermont, which, like other New England areas, is heavily dependent on expensive, imported crude oil. The average increase is about 25 or 30 per cent. That compares with an 11.1 per cent increase in all retail prices from February 1974 to February 1975, according to the latest Consumer Price Index.

Sens. Lee Metcalf of Montana and Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, both Democrats, reported over the weekend that a survey they took showed the nation's utility bills increased $9.6 billion last year. They estimated that two-thirds of the jump came in the form of fuel adjustment increases, most of which are passed on to the consumer automatically.

State and federal authorities already are investigating claims that utilities may have been overcharged millions of dollars for oil and that farmers paid more than they should have for propane gas.

The AP sampling of utilities in 30 states showed rate increases have been granted in the past year or are currently pending in all but two states. In one of the two, Mississippi, a proposed increase was rejected; no boost has been approved or suggested in Louisiana.

Officials in almost every area said customers were continuing conservation measures started last year at the height of the energy crisis. In many cases, however, the major impetus for the saving drive is money rather than the energy shortage.

"People are still mindful of conservation and they're very aware of the higher costs of energy," said a spokesman for Public Service Electric & Gas Co. of New Jersey.

Public Service said the current charge for 500 kilowatt hours of electricity is $26.44, covering a $17.26 base rate and a $9.18 fuel adjustment. The bill is 25.7 per cent higher than it was a year ago when there was a $16.49 base rate and a $4.54 fuel adjustment charge for 500 kilowatt hours of electricity.

Over the year, there was a 5 per cent increase in the base rate and a 102 per cent increase in the fuel adjustment charge.

The rate increases have touched off strong consumer protests in some areas. The Department of Public Utilities in Virginia added two employes to help handle a flood of complaining telephone calls.

"The volume had reached the point where our engineers were spending too much time handling them," said a spokesman.

About 30 protesters in Fairfax County, Va., picketed the home of William F. Vosbeck Jr., a member of the board of the Virginia Electric & Power Co.

The company, known as VEPCO, was granted rate increases totaling $126 million in 1974 and a request for another boost is pending with the State Corporation Commission.

The average VEPCO residential customer paid $22.83 for 750 kilowatt hours of electricity in May 1974. The current charge for the same amount is $28.85 — a 26 per cent increase. If the latest increase proposal is approved, the bill for 750 kilowatt hours would go to $29.37, up almost 30 per cent from last May.

The situation generally has been better in the West, particularly in those areas where there is no automatic increase reflecting fuel adjustment charges.

The average customer of the Cheyenne, Wyo., Light, Fuel and Power Co. used 518 kilowatt hours in January 1974 and paid $11.55. The average customer this year used 542 kilowatt hours and paid $12.36. That's a jump of about 4½ per cent in the amount of electricity used and a rise of about 7 per cent in the bill, reflecting an increase in the base rate that took effect last March.

Pacific Gas and Electric, serving northern California, has not raised its base rate in the past year, although requests for increases in regular charges and fuel adjustment fees are pending.

The company already has boosted fuel adjustment charges by $1.88 in the past year for the customer using 500 kilowatt hours, meaning an increase of 15 per cent in the monthly bill. The current charge for 500 kilowatt hours is $14.28.

The pending increases would add $7.10 or almost 50 per cent to the bill for 500 kilowatt hours.

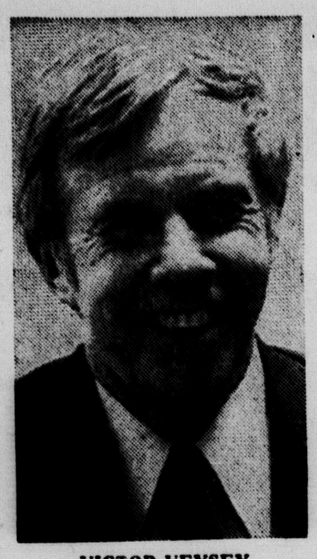
Veysey takes a new job: Army assistant secretary

Victor V. Veysey, former Claremont resident who was defeated in a bid for Congress last November, has been sworn in as the Army's first assistant secretary for civil works.

The new civil works program will involve improvements to rivers and harbors for navigation, flood control, shore line protection and beach erosion control, hydroelectric power production, hurricane protection, water quality control, and fish and wildlife conservation.

Veysey, sworn into office by Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger in a brief Pentagon ceremony, will establish and review proposals relating to national water resources policies guiding the civil works program, review legislation and testify before Congress on legislation affecting civil works, review, analyze and evaluate survey reports, environmental impact statements and other project proposals of the U. S. Corps of Engineers, and approve the civil works budget.



VICTOR VEYSEY

He will also establish Army-wide environmental policies and be responsible for policy and guidance to the Canal Zone government, the Panama Canal Co., and for sea level affairs.

Veysey, 59, was the Republican candidate for the newly created 35th Congressional District. He was defeated in a close election by Jim Lloyd, a Democrat, of West Covina. Veysey had earlier represented the 43th District in Riverside County.

A civil engineer, Veysey will be in charge of 31,000 civilian employes and have a $2 billion annual budget. He will receive $38,000 annual salary.

Passport fact

Passports originally were official letters. The first United States passports bound between hard covers were folded, single-page letters issued in 1918. U.S. passports first assumed booklet form in 1926.

Sister city seeks youths for exchange

Applications will be accepted until Monday for the Chino Sister City Youth Exchange.

Those selected will spend five or six weeks living with a family in San Juan del Rio, Mexico, Chino's sister city, at no cost.

Chino residents between 15 and 18 are eligible to apply for the trip to San Juan de Rio. Applications may be obtained from Marcia Albiol at Chino High School, or by calling 627-3950.

San Juan del Rio is a small city about 100 miles north of Mexico City. It has about the same population as Chino and is also agriculturally oriented.

Chino and its sister city have exchanged five students each summer for the past five years. Students live in private homes and experience life as it is in a foreign country. Other than "spending money," the visit for students is free.

Swift action can curb heart deaths

The goal of the newly launched Save a Life project of volunteers of the American Heart Association in Los Angeles County is to reduce the 8,000 needless heart attack deaths that strike county families each year.

Target of the public education campaign is "every man" — that individual who is nearby when another person shows signs of or describes what appear to be the early warning symptoms of a heart attack.

The campaign message is simple and direct: "Act fast. Be a lifesaver. Call the Fire Department Rescue Squad."

According to Dr. Lawrence Herman, volunteer Save a Life director, patient delay is the major cause of premature death from heart attack. The typical patient delays almost two hours from the onset of symptoms to when he seeks any type of medical help. The pattern of heart attack mortality indicates that 50 per cent of the deaths have occurred by that time.

The other three factors that delay the heart attack patient's entry into the emergency heart care system in Los Angeles County — transportation delay, emergency room admission delay and delay in contacting one's personal physician — have been virtually abolished.

The Fire Department paramedic teams and hospital emergency rooms that meet Heart Association care standards have almost eliminated these delays.

The physician delay time is being bypassed by educating the public to call the Fire Department rescue squad or go directly to a Heart Association approved emergency room.

Approved hospitals in the eastern section of Los Angeles County are Foothill Presbyterian Hospital, 250 S. Grand Ave., Glendora; Glendora Community Hospital, 638 S. Santa Fe Ave., Glendora; Inter-Community Hospital, 275 W. College St., Covina; Pomona Valley Community Hospital, 1798 N. Garey Ave., Pomona; Queen of the Valley Hospital, 1115 S. Sunset Ave., West Covina; and San Dimas Community Hospital, 1350 W. Covina Blvd., San Dimas.

The Save a Life public education campaign is being directed to the entire Los Angeles County through April.

ROWLAND HIGH OPEN HOUSE — The 11th annual open house at Rowland High School will be held April 16 at 7:30 p.m., according to Principal Thomas M. Aney.

Parents, students and friends of the school are invited.

Students in each department will make presentations of their work. Scheduled are a fashion show, drama skits, industrial demonstrations, aquatic show and art displays. Teachers will be there to discuss objectives and works of students.

EASTER BUNNY IN UPLAND — The Easter Bunny will visit Upland at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Children between 3 and 5 are invited to seek over 1,000 foil-wrapped chocolate Easter eggs to be hidden on the baseball diamond at Memorial Park, Upland.

Children are requested to bring their own basket, according to Sue Baker, Carol Root and Laurie Tipton, instructors for the Upland Recreation Department sponsoring the hunt.

Prizes will be given to the child finding the "golden egg" and to those youngsters finding the most eggs.

STUDENT CAR WASH — Students from Upland Junior High School will conduct two car washes on Saturday to help raise funds for their trip to Washington, D.C., in May.

The benefit project is sponsored by the Washington, D.C., Committee, consisting of parents of 60 eighth grade students who hope to visit Washington from May 7 to 12.

The car washes are from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at Gulf Service Station, 775 W. Foothill Blvd., Upland, and Mobil Service Station, 12358 Central Ave., Chino.

The students are also seeking odd jobs to help raise additional funds. Persons wishing to hire the youngsters may call 982-0418.

Actor charged with slugging PSA employe

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Actor Dan Dailey has been booked on investigation of assault and battery and public drunkenness for allegedly slugging an airline employe at San Francisco International Airport, police said Monday.

San Mateo County Sheriff's deputies said PSA employe Everett Hemenway told them he refused Dailey a boarding pass for a departing flight because Dailey appeared drunk. Hemenway said the television and film actor threatened him and then struck him in the face.

Dailey, 59, of Malibu, was released on his own recognizance Sunday morning. He was scheduled to appear April 1 in municipal court.

Leaderless

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) was without a president for nearly two years after John Taylor died, July 25, 1887, while in hiding from federal officials enforcing antibigamy laws. Wilford Woodruff became the church's fourth president April 7, 1889.

Training for Pacific State patients questioned

Pomona Adult School has close call on state aid

Interpretation of law by the state Finance Department has for the past month threatened some $1.5 million state income to the Pomona Adult School, it was revealed at the school board meeting Tuesday.

Under this interpretation, state-paid average daily attendance (ADA) funds for some 1,500 patients at Pacific State Hospital enrolled in a basic education program administered and staffed by the school district could have been stopped.

"They could even have asked for rebates on what had been paid in the past," said Lynn Rountree, assistant superintendent of personnel services.

However, Rountree continued, "We think we were able to right the ship with the finance people" for this year.

As a safeguard for next year, the district has asked Assemblyman William Campbell, R-64th Dist., to carry through the legislature corrections in AB 749 which eliminate the word "penal" from the language.

AB 749 was intended to grant funds for residents of mental hospitals. However it contains the word "penal" as well as "institution" and has resulted in confusion.

As Rountree explained, the language had been interpreted to mean penal or prison inmates rather than hospital residents. "Actually," he said, "there is other legislation which provides for the education of inmates in penal institutions."

Pomona Adult School began its program at Pacific State Hospital, a facility for the mentally retarded, two years ago, according to Schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz.

The adult school has on hospital grounds 80 teachers and 100 classified personnel conducting the basic education program for the 1,500 patients.

Through this program the district is receiving the $1.5 million state income. However, as much as 25 per cent to 30 per cent is above the cost of the program and therefore represents "a sizeable gain to the district," said Rountree. This gain goes into the general fund, Wentz said.

Rountree explained to the school board that "we're the logical agency to do this (provide basic education to hospital residents) and since we have, this income is critical to us. This is one source of money that has helped us carry on and is particularly meaningful to Pomona.

"We can't plan next year's budget with the hatchet hanging there," he said, referring to the uncertainty caused by the conflicting interpretation.

Sidney Moses, assistant superintendent of educational services, said the adult school teachers at the hospital were teaching such basic education classes as personal hygiene, nutrition, arts and crafts, health and recreation, physical development skills and language development. He emphasized that this is not a vocational education program.

The total adult school ADA currently is 3,134. Residents at Pacific State Hospital account for nearly half that ADA.

Claremont mayor fumes

Council smoking banned

The Claremont City Council Tuesday night became the second city council in the area to ban smoking at council meetings.

Following the lead of the Montclair council, the council by a 4-1 voice vote, with Mayor Bertye Smith the only puffer on the council voting no, banned smoking at all public meetings held in the council chambers.

Such a far-reaching decision will also affect commission members such as Jim Norris who smokes a pipe at Planning Commission meetings, Hanne Ansell, Judy Kern and Bill Johnson on the Parks and Recreation Commission who smoke cigarettes.

Mayor Smith smiled and said, "I feel it is a personal attack."

"Councilwoman Claire McDonald said, "If other city councils are taking this kind of action, I think it is time our council took it up."

"This is nothing personal," commented Councilwoman Eleanor Cohen, who with Mrs. McDonald proposed the smoking ban.

Councilman Frank Hungerford who had quit cigarette smoking said that the council chambers are stuffy, and "I'm going to support the idea. I feel the smokers are in a minority."

City Atty. William Bergman commented that if the council wanted to make the ban binding, it could adopt an ordinance and make the first smoking offense a misdemeanor.

Mrs. McDonald moved for a resolution, which passed.

About 9 p.m. 1½ hours after the meeting had started, Mrs. Smith reached for a cigarette, but held off until a 9:15 p.m. council break.

In other action, the council tabled a request for emergency funding of $750 for Our House, crisis intervention center, for rent, back pay and phones.

The council felt it should receive a complete financial statement from Our House, and that the request should have come from the Our House board of directors, not from the Our House director, Debra Terry.

Given reason for the emergency funding request was back payment of salaries for the office manager and the assistant director who both quit, maintenance of two hot-line phones and answering service, and rent for the house at 480 N. Indian Hill Blvd.

The Council also approved "in concept" Pomona Valley Operation Increased Attendance, a project of the Pomona Juvenile Diversion Project, but said that the program not go into effect until the Claremont Unified School District board has approved the program.

Chino Civic Center cost figure rises $906,000

Due to inflation and other factors, the final cost estimate on the Chino Civic Center has exceeded the preliminary figure by $906,000, it was revealed Tuesday night.

City councilmen heard project architects tell them during an adjourned meeting that the final estimate for the city's share of the county-city complex will be $5,433,000. This compares to a preliminary estimate made last April of $4,527,000.

Mayor Bob McLeod said, "We're right on the borderline. If the actual construction cost exceeds the estimate, we'll have to go back and analyze it."

McLeod said he was optimistic about the actual cost, however. And he indicated assessed valuation has risen in the city, so "dollar-wise we're all right."

The city apparently would have the extra funds to handle the project, but McLeod was hopeful the actual cost figure would be lower than the final estimate.

The mayor explained the $5.4 million final estimate is the city's share for the proposed city hall, police building, on site improvements, land and demolition costs.

Bonds will be issued by the civic center joint powers authority to handle the project, and a big change in the final cost is a 7½ per cent interest rate on the bonds, earlier figured at 6½ per cent.

"We're hoping the market will change, however, and the rate could be lower."

Bell, Wessels cited for work on school board

James Bell and Phillip Wessels were retired from the Pomona school board Tuesday night.

Each was cited numerous times for distinguished service to the school district and the community. However, only Bell was present to receive the certificates and plaques.

Wessels, ending eight years service on the board, was kept away by a business commitment. He was first elected in 1967, re-elected in 1971, served as vice president in 1971-72 and president in 1972-73.

Bell was elected in 1971 and served as board president in 1973-74.

Pomona Mayor Ray Lepire was first to commend the two. He awarded Bell a certificate of appreciation from the city. Daniel L. Towler, president of the Los Angeles County school board, presented meritorious service awards.

There were letters of appreciation from the Baldy View Regional Occupational Program which were read by Schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz, and commendations from the Pomona PTA council presented by President Shirley Abrams.

Ralph Taylor, president of the Pomona Administrators Association, added his appreciation, and Jack Jones, president of Chapter 14, California School Employes Association (CSEA), sent letters.

Delbert A. Pfeifer, executive director of Associated Pomona Teachers, presented an engraved plaque to Bell and said a similar plaque would go to Wessels.

Board president Ken Pine praised Bell as the "catalyst that has kept the board together through a couple of tough years" and said he had appreciated Bell's "calming effect, stability" on the school board.

Pine presented Bell a plaque in appreciation of distinguished service from the school board.

Bell and Wessels will be succeeded at the April 8 board meeting by Gene E. Whitlock Jr. and C. Allan Braswell, new board members who were elected March 4.

2 Upland police challenge point system for arrests

Two Upland police officers in a special hearing have testified that a point system used to grade the performance of patrolmen is "unfair" and has caused them to lose their educational incentive pay.

The two officers, Arthur Lindars and Walter Ciszek, asked for the public hearing before the Upland City Personnel Board of Review last week claiming that the point system used by the department was often abused and manipulated by officers.

Last Thursday when the hearing opened the officers testified that patrolmen in the department were given points for the number of arrests they made and that the number of points earned determined their field efficiency that could lead to promotion and receiving educational incentive pay.

Lindars, the first to testify, claimed that the officers would engage in point contests, and sometimes take credit for arrests they did not make. Lindars said that officers would often take credit for arrests made by detectives, since the detectives were not graded on the point system.

He said all the officers and detectives knew about the point system, but were not told exactly how many points they would have to earn a month to qualify them for the department's educational incentive pay.

In testimony Tuesday Lindars retreated somewhat on his original statements saying that the officers assisting detectives in making arrests or transporting prisoners would receive some credit in points.

Lindars hinted that by working the graveyard shift, when activity on the streets in relatively limited, an officer could not always gain enough points to make the 20-point-a day requirement that would qualify an officer for educational incentive pay.

For example, officers under the point system, which has been suspended pending the outcome of the hearing, would earn 25 points for a felony arrest, 10 points for misdemeanor arrests, five points for moving traffic citation, and one point for parking violations.

The hearing continues today in the Upland City Library community room.

Condition of man wounded in bar improves slightly

A Pomona man who was shot early Monday inside a Pomona tavern was reported slightly improved but still in serious condition today at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Aurelio Garcia Herrera, 38, was wounded in the stomach at El Herradero, a tavern at 1142 W. Second St. Witnesses said the shooting occurred after Herrera smashed several bottles in a dispute over being served.

Meanwhile, the man named by police as the one suspected of shooting Herrera has been released on $3,000 bail. He is Rafael Luguez Navarro, 32-year-old owner of the tavern. Navarro was returned to Pomona later Monday from Barstow where he was being held by San Bernardino County sheriff's deputies following his arrest by highway patrolmen near there. They reported finding a pistol under the seat of his car.

Widow of construction worker to get $170,000

The widow of an Ontario construction worker and her five children were awarded $170,000 damages Tuesday in West Valley Superior Court in the death of Burt Abril, 48, who was crushed under a crane.

The trial lasted seven days, and the jury deliberated its decision one day before making the award against the city of Ontario. The case was tried in the court of Judge Edward P. Fogg. Claremont Attorney William M. Shernoff represented the Abril family.

The accident occurred Jan. 14, 1972. Abril was directing the operation of an 11-ton crane in the placement of sewer pipe along Walnut Avenue east of Grove Avenue in Ontario.

When Abril saw the earth giving way beneath the crane, he shouted a warning to other workers. They managed to get out of the way and crane operator Leo Knott also jumped clear. But Abril, who was standing half inside a protective cage, was crushed by the 20-foot boom as the crane fell into the excavation.

The suit charged the city with failing to properly supervise and inspect the project.

Tree complaints fall on panel--cleanup headache

Requests for removal of trees and complaints about them will be considered at the Claremont Parkway-Tree Commission meeting Thursday at 4 p.m. in the City Council Chambers.

Five residents on or near Indian Hill Boulevard north of Base Line Road have complained that the alder is an "extremely dirty tree, which creates a daily maintenance problem year round for property owners." They are asking for trees of a "more attractive and desirable species."

But Parks Supt. Brian Thompson in a memo to the commission reported that Oxford Avenue north of Base Line Road and Notre Dame Avenue have drawn far more complaints recently than other streets.

Oxford residents complain that Eucalyptus trees are "blowing over, are too messy, and are unattractive," Thompson said.

Complaints about the white alder on Notre Dame are "root problems, messy tree problems, and wire entanglements."

Thompson has recommended that the commission make probable tree designation requests on those streets.

City Parks and Recreation Director Fred Hawkins has recommended that the commission appoint a subcommittee to study tree varieties suitable for the Highpoint area.

VAC board to ponder goals

The governing board of the Valley Association Cities (VAC) will meet Thursday at 3 p.m. at the Ontario Public Library.

Among the agenda items for the meeting will be discussion of the future functions, goals and purposes of VAC.

VAC, which is an association of 10 cities, was formed one year ago to combat abandoned housing in the valley area. Recently city officials in La Verne and Chino have questioned VAC's future role and expressed hesitancy over approving the organization's movement into new areas not specifically dealing with abandonments.

Drug recovery center back on planners' agenda

The Pomona Planning Commission tonight will consider once again a request for a drug recovery center to be operated in an apartment house at 998 W. Ninth St.

Being sought is approval of an environmental impact report and a conditional use permit.

Planners had previously received testimony on the use permit application but deferred a decision pending the submission of an impact report.

Walter Ellison, the center's program director, proposes to operate the four apartment units as a board and care facility. His program will provide individual, group and family counseling, parole assistance, welfare and medical aid and college counseling.

The commission will meet at 8 p.m. in the City Council chambers.

In another item, planners will consider a request to use an apartment building at 1230 W. Third St. as a board and care facility for 30 adults who are mentally retarded. The applicant also proposes to add a dining and kitchen area, recreation room and more bedrooms to house the 30 occupants.

The commission will be asked to approve an impact report and use permit allowing 52 condominium units to be constructed on 2.5 acres at 1804 S. Towne Ave. The property, now vacant, is zoned R-3 for multiple family units.

Chino parents plead for end to violence

A newly formed Mexican-American parents organization in Chino has joined with valley police chiefs to appeal to residents to keep their teen-age children off the streets in the troubled areas of the barrio where acts of violence are increasing.

Taking it one step further, the Community Action Council is appealing to parents to join together to seek solutions to the increasing gangland-type violence that in the last few months has cost the lives of two youths and left more than 10 others seriously wounded.

Martin Salgado, chairman of the group that was formed following a community meeting on March 10, said "The only way that we can resolve our problem is for us to unite and work together as concerned parents for our children's welfare in true friendship."

In a public appeal to the parents in the barrio last week, Police Chief Frank Meehan of Chino and Chief P. P. Wallick of Pomona asked that the activities of teen-age children be watched more carefully for fear of further youth gang violence.

The police chiefs ask parents to report any caravans of youths traveling between Pomona, Chino, Upland, Ontario or Cucamonga, or other unusual youth activities in the barrios. The chiefs pointed out that by reporting such incidents, possible violence could be averted.

Salgado said on March 10 when the CAC was formed various solutions to the recent rash of gang violence were discussed. The council decided that the first step should be to encourage other parents to join the council and work together to decide what solutions would be best.

The council resolved that if parents in the barrios do not come together and try to find the answers to halting the violence and tragedy, the situation could grow far worse.

"These terrible acts of violence and gang warfare, besides leaving families in pain and misery, are also very embarrassing, belittling, and a black eye to the barrio in the eyes of the total community," said Salgado.

"We are very much aware of what the situation has been in the past, in relation to the type of gang warfare that exists today, but we are responsible and deeply concerned parents must not allow this type of irresponsible destruction to continue.

"Here in our town, the majority of the people are very much aware of the suffering and hardships that exist besides the gang activities, such as the drug problem, people being unable to go out at night to the neighborhood stores, and now even to church, in the fear that they will get mugged or shot at.

"Most people in the barrio remain silent because of their families being threatened or getting in trouble with their own relatives. Our people should not have to live in fear, nor should they be threatened by anyone."

Salgado said with all the parents cooperating the council will bring its suggestions for solutions to the City Council, the school board, the police department, the Municipal Court, and to the community's spiritual leaders. He said he hoped that other communities would do the same.

He said if any parent is truly concerned about his or her children, and would like to help in finding the solutions, to contact any of the Community Action Council officers by calling 627-2717.

The officers of the CAC include, Salgado as chairman; Tony Vicario, vice chairman; Helen Monsivais, secretary; George Gonzales, treasurer; and Mike Resendez, sergeant-at-arms.

The organization was originally formed to request federal Community Development Act funds for the city's barrio area. It now has become involved in other areas of concern.

Reduced speed saves lives

Thousands of Americans who should have been traffic statistics in 1974 are alive in '75, thanks to a variety of factors.

According to a preliminary study by the National Safety Council 17,060 traffic fatalities occurred between May 1 and August 31 last year, the peak driving months, compared with 20,630 for the same period in 1973.

More than half the savings of lives, says the Council, can be attributed to reduced vehicle speeds, or about 10 percentage points out of a total 17 percent reduction.

Even though a majority of drivers in a five-state sample taken during the study period weren't complying with the 55-mile-per-hour limit in rural areas, they did slow down from their 1973 speeds — from 70.2 mph to 62 mph. More drivers also were traveling at about the same pace on the highway, which produced a smoother traffic flow and lessened the probability of accidents.

Less travel and less night driving, fewer occupants per vehicle and greater use of safety belts each contributed two percentage points. "Unknown factors" added another two points, which would have made a total of 18.

Unfortunately, a traffic fatality increase of one percentage point had to be subtracted from the total, caused by increased use of motorcycles and small cars and increased mileage by younger drivers.

'Medical mechanization'

Americans may complain about the assemblyline aspects of modern medicine, as well as its cost, but it is precisely the trend toward "medical mechanization" that offers one of the best hopes for keeping costs down without reducing the quality of care.

The operating room, one of the hardest pressed areas of the hospital, has been successfully turning to automatic devices and disposable supplies.

For example, throwaway needles and syringes are replacing reusables that require expensive labor to clean and re-sterilize. Many hospitals are also switching to disposable scrub suits and surgical drapery, which substantially reduces laundering expenses.

The electric cautery, now widely accepted, cuts operating time and eliminates the use of dozens of expensive sutures. And where suturing is necessary, the surgical stapler has emerged as probably the most significant time and cost saver.

Surgical stapling instruments stitch automatically using tiny stainless steel staples. A surgeon can simultaneously place the equivalent of 66 silk sutures with one application, reducing operating time by as much as 50 per cent.

The use of surgical staplers is increasing rapidly. One maker, United States Surgical Corp., estimates that close to 100 million patients have been "stapled" since it introduced its Auto Suture surgical stapling line in 1967.

With costs anywhere from $80 to $100 an hour to run an operating room today, any device that saves $40 to $50 an hour is good news. In addition, "stapled" patients are said to heal faster, have fewer postoperative complications and go home sooner.

To save a life

Air crashes, firearms, lightning, are big killers, it is true. But not as big as a piece of food stuck in the windpipe.

Food strangulation actually is our sixth largest cause of accidental death. It is particularly poignant because it is swift, takes place in usually pleasant surroundings, can be alleviated but too often is not because few people diagnose it quickly enough and know what to do.

It is generally called "cafe coronary" because the symptoms mimic those of a heart attack. The victim is perfectly normal; then suddenly his eyes bulge, he turns white, then blue. He usually will clutch at his chest, stagger to his feet, then collapse.

Medical authorities, according to a Dun's magazine report, say the victim will be unconscious in four minutes, dead in seven if not treated properly. Artificial respiration is useless, so is an ambulance call. No one suffering from food inhalation, the article states, has ever survived an ambulance trip.

How to identify such strangulation? The one sure way is to ask the person if he can talk. Most heart attack victims can communicate, but a strangling food inhaler cannot.

Treatment involves placing the victim on his back, with mouth open. Using a napkin, pull the tongue forward. Often the food lodged in the air passage can be seen, and freed with the middle and index finger of the other hand. If necessary, mouth-to-mouth resuscitation can then be given. Some restaurants now carry plastic retrievers.

The key is speed. Non-panic speed. Other methods, more complicated, have been suggested for deeper seated impediments. It would be wise if we all would ask our physicians for guidance, just in case. As the saying goes, the life that is saved just might be ours.

The art of paying income taxes

Between Jan. 1 and April 15 a strange malady overtakes some of our citizens. I say strange because it is neither American nor understandable to hear our fellow taxpayers' strike to outright lying and cheating to beat our government which is really us!

Now I'm not so naive as to think our government in Washington D.C. has no officious bureaucrats and that all politicians are honest, BUT I am indignant about so-called taxpayers who think money paid to our government is a "rip-off." I'm sick and tired of having such short-sighted citizens use one crime to excuse another, such as lying in their returns to IRS or using surreptitious tricks to beat the government. Whose government is this anyway? It's OURS, NOT one of a dictator

Some think evading taxes is socially acceptable; they think it is smart — a fun crime. Of course the chances of getting caught are small and the penalties of being caught are rather light. But few people have ever liked paying taxes. It is always YOU against organized society — the establishment — at best your government; at worst a tyrant.

Yet, no one has come up with a way of government which has come closer to representing everyone than ours. We still have our faults BUT we're working on them — or at least we ought to be doing so. Even our Constitution can be amended.

It's really a privilege to pay taxes to a government which can belong to the citizens! We don't all march to the same drum-beat, and thank God for that! However, we seldom get more for our money than we do for our tax dollar. Have you had help from the police department, the fire department, the weather bureau lately? Have you ridden on thie highways, used our National Parks, or flown in an airplane. These are operating because government, your government and your taxes have a part in their operation. These are but a few of the ways we as taxpayers help keep our nation operating!

So let's get with it; pay your fair share of taxes. If you find a loophole, use it BUT write your representative to plug it. Don't let others get away with it. Let's make our democracy work! Don't sabotage it! — J. W. Cunliffe, Claremont.

Society pays for the recession

WASHINGTON — Thousands of decent but depressed Americans have been driven to crime by the economic downturn.

In cold, clinical language, an unpublished Library of Congress study describes the relationship between unemployment and crime. "As unemployment rises," declares the study, "so does the number of new prison admissions each year; as it falls, the number of prison admissions drops."

But cold studies cannot depict the human heartbreak behind the statistics. For another of our reports on the human side of the economic crisis, we checked with police forces around the nation to put faces on the statistics.

We found, predictably, that hunger, deprivation and sickness can drive the most honorable people to dishonorable deeds. Here are a few examples:

—In San Francisco, a desperate gunman held up a store to get the money his mother and sister needed for medical care. While holding the shopkeeper hostage, he called his family in Texas to inquire how they were doing. The merchant, touched by the conversation, offered a donation to help the family. When the police arrived, they offered to fly the mother, sister and brother-in-law to San Francisco. The grateful, would-be robber surrendered, and the shopkeeper gave the desperate family $1,500.

—Not so lucky were a 45-year-old electrician and his 19-year-old son, who were charged with three armed robberies in the outskirts of Atlanta. They admitted to the crimes, saying they were both out of work and needed the money to pay pressing household bills.

—A Miami man has been holding up small grocery stores for two months now. In each case, he aplogizes to his victims, explaining that his wife is dying and needs the money for her care.

—There is also the case of an unemployed Memphis carpenter who stole $84 from a small food store. He spent the money, police discovered, at another food store to feed his family.

The Library of Congress study, prepared for Sen. Quentin Burdick, D.-N.D., points out that over 80 per cent of the changes in federal prison admissions "could be statistically related to changes in unemployment."

In state prisons, unemployment could explain "over 78 per cent of the changes in prison admissions." Although the study doesn't claim to have established "a direct causal link," it contends there is "less than one possibility in 1,000 that these relationships are due entirely to chance."

Joblessness could "pose a stark choice in economic terms," suggests the study, "for those who are on the border line of acceptable social action and must find alternative means of support."

Quite clearly, society pays for the recession in many painful ways.

KISSINGER'S CONCERN: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is so sensitive over the special relationship he has nurtured with the Chinese Communists that he personally makes all decisions on Chinese matters, no matter how trivial they may be.

At the highest levels, he keeps Peking posted on virtually all his negotiations in the Middle East. He goes out of his way, according to State Department sources, to reassure the Chinese that he is doing nothing to harm their interests.

At the lower levels, Kissinger takes extreme care not to show the slightest favor to the Chinese Nationalists, lest their mainland cousins take offense. For example, he has carefully snubbed the Chinese Nationalist ambassador, Jimmy Shen, who has sought meetings with him in vain.

The Nationalists have also expressed a desire to participate heavily in the American Bicentennial celebration. Our sources say that Kissinger had instructed his underlings nervously to keep the Nationalists as invisible as possible. The State Department is trying to confine Taiwan's participation, therefore, to the local level.

A controversy has also arisen over an insignificant project on Taiwan, involving a U.S. grant of less than $100,000. Kissinger's aides fear the Nationalists will trumpet it as a sign of American partiality toward Chiang Kai-shek. The final decision, as usual, will be made by Kissinger, himself.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: Most members of Congress try to beef up their staffs at the taxpayers' expense. But Rep. Walter Jones, D.-N.C., a hard-working, nine-year House veteran, has turned back $413,507 in his clerk hire pay to the U.S. Treasury. With the other extras that go along with Capitol Hill jobs, he has saved the taxpayers well over $500,000 . . . Ex-President Richard Nixon has been reduced to four government secretaries — Rose Mary Woods, who is paid $36,000 a year; Loie Gaunt, $18,061; Nora Vandersommen, $15,059; and Joanne Miller, $15,059 . . . Some U.S. embassies have been currying favor with the host country's high muckamucks by giving visas to their friends, according to our diplomatic sources. A high official of one Caribbean country allegedly has been taking bribes to get visas from the U.S. embassy. The State Department is quietly investigating . . . Sugar growers on the Caribbean island of St. Kitts, including some American citizens, have had their estates seized by the local government. In exchange, they have been given worthless bonds that can't be sold on the open market.

Workers escape to fantasy world

There's something about you you didn't know. Indeed, there's something about you the psychologists thought they knew which was all wet.

The artisans of an earlier era took pride in signing their names to their finished work. Today, the signed pieces by master craftsmen are prized and precious.

With the advent of mass production, men and women working in concert on a production line were able to multiply their output.

But every time they demanded more pay we'd hear from some psychologist that money will never be the satisfying reward which pride once was, that men and women on the production line will always be restive, feel unrewarded, suffer "blue-collar blues."

Then along comes some Rutgers research which says that's a lot of hooey. Rutgers researched 1,026 auto workers and 95 per cent like their jobs; 71 per cent say no part of their work is either tiring or upsetting.

So Cornell University said, "Let's make a comparison." Cornell selected at random six auto workers from Detroit and sent them to Stockholm, Sweden.

Now the Swedes make their cars differently than we do. There is no production line. In Sweden a group of three men will build an engine from its beginning to its completion.

Each team is allowed to determine for itself how work should be divided and how fast it should be done. A Swedish workman may take as long as half an hour to perform tasks which are performed on a Detroit assembly line in 1.8 minutes.

The six Detroit auto workers — ages 20 to 53 and including two women — after one week of briefing spent three weeks on the shop floor building automobiles the way the Swedes do. They didn't like it.

They liked the cleanliness of the Swedish factory, the lower noise level and the lighting, but five of the six agreed their workday back in Detroit was more relaxing, required less concentration.

Prof. Arthur Weinberg of Cornell, who co-ordinated this project, concluded that American assembly-line workers do not live their lives around the job but around themselves; that all the time we've thought the production line was a tedious, boring routine, the worker was "in another world."

They like "losing themselves in their thoughts" while working. The Archives of General Psychiatry reports the "level of life satisfaction among UAW members is high compared with studies of other populations."

Researchers on this project spent much time in the car factories. They confess that they cannot understand why workers do not express more dissatisfaction.

They, equating others with themselves, remain convinced nobody likes routine. Obviously, some do, because for some a routine job is escapable on wings of fantasy.

Just in jest

Suddenly it has dawned on me that I am growing old. This realization has come about as a result of my accidentally finding some come-on literature sent me over 20 years ago by my Alma Mater urging my attendance at an Alumni Day Class Reunion. Among the extra added attractions listed to entice me to put in an appearance were a Beer Bust, Rock Concert, Smoker and a Football Game. Today I received another such invitation. This time the bonus events listed include Art Walks, Tree Tours and Pottery Demonstrations.

Crackpot theories still cropping up

Not long ago I commented on one of the worst aspects of what might be called Watergate fallout: a spate of fresh leftwing crackpot theories concerning the assassinations of President John Kennedy and Sen. Robert Kennedy.

Since that column, several new amateur assassination experts have come forward with such theories, including former comedian Dick Gregory who — now let me try to get this one straight — says that the same gun that killed Martin Luther King was used to kill Robert Kennedy two months later.

Something like that. It's hard to pin these crackpot theories down precisely, especially the ones produced by erstwhile stand-up comedians.

Gregory, after all, is the second ex-comic to go into the field of historical revision. Mort Sahl was the first. Sahl actually became a member of New Orleans district attorney Jim Garrison's investigative staff during that fearless prosecutor's merry hayride, trying to prove JFK's assassination was part of a massive CIA-FBI-Pentagon plot.

Garrison, since removed from office by New Orleans voters in one of their rare moments of rationality at the polls, must be kicking his cat these days. It develops he was only a few years ahead of his time. Since Watergate, "CIA, is a magic password guaranteeded to trigger any wild story, so long as it's lurid and ugly.

Let an ex-CIA file clerk call an editor in New York or Washington to report that the agency was involved in anything from the disappearance of Amelia Earhart to the CCNY basketball fix of 1951, and the story is headed for the national wire.

Which is what happened a few weeks ago when an obscure former CIA snooper, probably trawling for a book contract or Mike Wallace interview, emerged from the dark cave of nonentity with a story that the voice of Lee Harvey Oswald had returned to deny he was the man who killed JFK.

Something like that. As I say, I have a tough time with crackpot theories. Oh yeah, now I remember. It seems this ex-snooper tracked Oswald's voice patterns on a lie detector. That convinced him of Oswald's innocence.

Seasoned followers of such occult scientific phenomena will immediately discern that this latest revisionist hallucination escalated the crackpots' campaign to discredit the Warren Commission Report. Until now the zealots, with their plots-within-plots, have been satisfied to argue simply that Oswald, while there with his rifle, was only one man in a larger conspiracy.

Presumably, enough time has elapsed for the revisionists to hope that the original corroborating evidence in the John Kennedy assassination case will be forgotten.

Small details — such as Marina Oswald's testimony about how her husband left home the morning of Nov. 22, 1963, with a rifle-shaped package under his arm; the testimony of his fellow workers at the Texas Book Depository; the tracing of the ownership of the murder weapon to Oswald; his brutal killing of police officer Tippett; and the struggle in the theater between Oswald and his captors, in which innocent-voiced Lee almost killed another officer.

These are facts only read, not lived through, by a generation which has reached high school and college age since that dark day in Dallas, young minds made susceptible to the wild stirrings of intellectually dyspeptic publicity hounds like Dick Gregory because of a lingering distrust of "official explanations" from government sources.

We can thank the Nixon White House's perverse Watergate cover-up for that. Young people who came to their age of political understanding during 1973-74 — when so many theories at first officially denied later proved true — can be led to believe almost anything if something gives the magic password: "CIA."

Such young minds are fertile ground for seeds of doubt and distrust against "the establishment." And the leftwing crackpots, with their Kennedy assassination theories, are trying to make the most of it.

VA emergency crew acts swiftly to repair goofup

My husband started a Veterans Administration apprentice program on June 28, 1974. It will end June 28, 1976.

So far he has been in the program 7½ months. In this time he has received only one payment of $13.80.

The accompanying card from the VA stated the payment was for the period June 28, 1974 to June 28, 1974.

He received this Jan. 16, 1975.

A few days later we went to the VA office in Los Angeles to point out the error. We were assured that it would be cleared up and my husband would receive a check within three weeks.

On Feb. 3 my husband got a certification card bearing the same wrong dates.

I called the VA and was told to send it back signed. I was assured of getting payment within three weeks.

The same thing happened twice more.

At this time we sure could use the money. We feel that we haven't accomplished anything in the past two months. —N. G., Pomona.

After we called your experience with the stuttering computer to the attention of the VA's emergency crew, you got a check for $1,500.

You still have $277 coming but you got the maximum allowable special payment in cases like yours. The rest should arrive soon.

About 3½ months ago I purchased a new brand of dry dog food.

To promote sales of their new product, the makers were offering a money back guarantee if the buyer was not completely satisfied.

When the product did not agree with my dog, I promptly wrote to the company and requested a refund of approximately $6.

Since then I have received nothing. I would very much like to wage a complaint of false advertising against the company.

Is such a thing possible and if so, where and to whom do I write? —T. P., Montclair

Since the company you wrote about has headquarters in California, you may contact the Attorney General's Office. There is a toll free phone number, 800952-5225.

If the company had been located outside California, your complaint would have gone to the Federal Trade Commission, 11000 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, 90024.

The answer to my question should be of general interest to the people of California unless I am among a minority who are still awaiting settlement.

The subject is a proposed refund of excess charges paid for certain prescription drugs over a period of several years.

If my memory serves me well, the refund program was announced last summer in circulars mailed to all California residents or households. It is based on a judgment obtained by the attorney general of California against one or more pharmaceutical companies doing business in this state.

The mailing contained a questionnaire that was to be completed and returned by a date in October, as I recall.

The claim submitted has brought no response whatsoever.

What is the status of the refund program? Have refunds been made, and if not, when will they be made? —A. L., Pomona.

The latest information we have is that refunds will be made in May or June of this year.

Claims which were submitted numbered around 900,000. The magnitude of the refund job is the reason for the delay.

When mailing begins, it will be widely publicized.

About this and that

The first known system for delivering water to cities was built by the Phoenicians. The Greeks copied the system of digging tunnels to bring water to their cities, and the Romans developed it with aqueducts 50 to 100 feet high that brought water to Rome from more than 60 miles away.

The first oil pipelines in the United States were laid about 1867 because there were not enough oaken barrels to transport all the oil being produced.

'Grief-stricken' relatives often just nothing more than 'vultures'

Dear Ann Landers: Perhaps if you print this letter it will alert the unwary to how hoggish relatives can be.

My uncle died two weeks ago. Before he was even buried a horde of "grief-stricken" relatives descended on the house and picked the place clean. The vultures rummaged through the closets, drawers, and toolshed — grabbing whatever they saw.

My poor aunt was so out-of-it she just said, "Take what you want." What really teed me off was when my cousin Hilda latched on to a beautiful sweater my aunt had bought Uncle two months before he died. Hilda said, "You won't be needing this now and it would just about fit my son."

Please warn your readers against giving anything away until they get darned good and ready. After the grief subsides, they'll discover plenty of things missing — things they could use very nicely. — Can't Stand Grabbers

Dear Can't: Thanks for a good letter. Benjamin Franklin said, "If you want to know the true character of a person, divide an inheritance with him." Old Ben was never more right.

Dear Ann Landers: What do I want in a husband and bedmate? Exactly what I have — a considerate, passionate, appreciative, sensitive, stimulating, ego-building, helpful, sharing, aggressive, bashful, beautiful hunk of male!

We both came to our marriage bed as virgins, not fumbling novies, but eager-to-learn, sensitive sweethearts. Together we have experienced a love affair that is still growing and is highly stimulating. Besides sex we have shared many new exciting experiences. Together we earned my law degree and I am now a lawyer. Together we experienced childbirth and we have a beautiful son to share. Together we are obtaining his airplane license. What lies ahead? More exciting years of sharing. Sign me — Lucky

Dear Lucky: So is he. Thanks for writing...

Dear Ann Landers: I doubt this letter will ever appear in the paper, but I must take the chance and hope and pray you'll choose it. I can't get any mail at home because I am 13 years old and my mother opens everything. Here is my problem:

No matter how hard I try, I can't fall asleep until midnight or later.

I have to get up at six o'clock in the morning to go to school. When my alarm clock goes off I'm so beat I can barely pull myself out of bed. I fell asleep in class three times this semester and it was very embarrassing. It is also a drag to be so beat during the day. I get peppy about supper time and when I get ready for bed my mind is going a mile a minute and I can't fall asleep.

Please, Ann Landers, you help so many people. Can you help me? I would be so grateful. — Goofed Up Clock in Freeport, Illinois

Dear Freeport: Ask your mother to make an appointment for you with a doctor. You should first find out if some physical problem is at the bottom of your sleeplessness. If there is none, I recommend counseling because the problem is emotional.

You CAN be helped but you need professional guidance. This is too big a problem for a 13-year-old to handle alone. Get moving, honey.

What's the story on pot, L.S.D., cocaine, uppers and downers, speed? Can you handle it if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers's new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Community service--what's that?

No one was more surprised than I to receive a questionnaire from England wanting to include me in Vol. II of the International Who's Who in Community Service.

This is quite an honor for a woman who (a) got pregnant so she wouldn't have to go on a field trip to a canning factory with the third grade; (b) sent out cards to 200 sports booster parents inviting them to be "athletic supporters" and (c) was relieved of my duties as PTA hospitality chairman when I served watercress salad with my house dressing — gin and tonic.

But here it was, a formal letter with an official crown with a a cross on it, addressed to "Dear Community Servant."

My community service career spans August to November 1960, at which time I served as chairman of the church bazaar to raise money for playground recreational facilities. It was my only contribution to a civic endeavor.

I base my international success on four philosophies: DON'T TAKE NO FOR AN ANSWER. In August, I called 800 parishioners out of which I conned four into serving with me. I threatened one with an unhappy death, two with phone calls at night with heavy breathing and one with the exposure of her relationship with her son's orthodontist.

BE FIRM. In September, we gathered together 20 workers at a restaurant to discuss plans for the bazaar. Shouting above the din of female voices, I raised my arms and said, "Please girls, we are not here to fritter. I would consider it a personal favor if you came to order."

They applauded, thanked me for my generosity and did indeed order $67.35 worth of food, sticking me with the bill.

KEEP RECORDS. Always remember next year's committee can learn by your mistakes. Example: Receipts from Pitch and Toss Game, $16.20. Replacement of blackboard from Pitch and Toss Game, $150. Chipped tooth of principal who was slugged by chairman of Pitch and Toss Game, $86. Bail for chairman of Pitch and Toss Game, $20.

TAKE PRIDE IN YOUR CONTRIBUTION. The path of the Christmas bazaar was paved with anxieties and frustration, but everytime I go by the playground and see those children jumping rope with the 50 feet of plastic clothes line that the proceeds furnished, I choke up.

For those of you who want this treasure of information for your personal library, the royal edition of Who's Who In Community Service will set you back $175.

I'd feel a lot better about it if the editor's signature smeared when I spit on it.

LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Insulin needed frequently varies

DEAR DR. LAMB — My son, 29, is six feet tall and weighs 165 pounds. He lost about 20 pounds over a period of one year. He was tested and his blood sugar was 360.

He was hospitalized for 18 days and his sugar brought under control. When he was in the hospital he gained about five pounds and was feeling pretty good.

When he left the hospital he was taking insulin shots, 52 units a day. He got very nervous, couldn't sleep and lost some more weight. His doctor told him it was emotional and gave him tranquilizers which made him worse. He explained how he felt, but the doctor said his insulin and sugar were okay.

Finally he came home (he was living out of town). When I saw the way he was and after reading up on diabetes, I thought it must be something about the insulin.

By that time he had to have orange juice in the morning before he could take his insulin. He had to eat every three hours and by 3 o'clock in the afternoon his nerves were terrible. He wasn't sleeping even with the pills.

My doctor took his blood sugar and cut his insulin 10 units. All of the above symptoms started to disappear. His nerves improved after the first two days and he has improved steadily since, but he's slow about putting on weight.

I wonder if you could give me some instructions or pointers on how to help him get back to normal. It might help someone else that may have the same problem.

DEAR READER — The problem in treating diabetics even with all the medicines and knowledge that exists is that they remain humans and not machines. It often happens that a diabetic will be perfectly regulated in the hospital and then be unstable after he leaves the hospital.

The amount of insulin needed depends upon both the diet and amount of activity and stress in the daily life. A person on insulin needs to regulate his life so he has the same amount of physical activity daily as well as the same amount of food. When the activity or the diet is changed there will be a change in the insulin requirement. Activity tends to lower the blood glucose (sugar) and will decrease the insulin requirements. Your son was probably much more active out of the hospital.

My best advice to you is to help your son understand that he has to lead a regulated life if he is going to use a regulated amount of insulin.

A new machine that mechanically releases just the amount of insulin the body needs at any time, or transplants into the diabetic's pancreas of normal islets of Langerhans that make insulin, should change this situation drastically. These are still in the development stage.

Loss of weight is common sign of fairly severe diabetes and is related to losing sugar in the urine. Fatigue is also a symptom. Too much insulin produces hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) and also causes fatigue.

Don't push your son to gain weight. Diabetics do much better if they stay thin. If they get obese they are very prone to develop heart and vascular disease.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on blood sugar, send 50 cents and a long self-addressed stamped envelope to the same address and ask for the "Blood sugar" booklet.

Bachelors don't trust beautiful gals

Bachelors don't trust beautiful women. Such be the findings of surveytakers who queried single males on their likes and dislikes in romance. Exactly 29 per cent of those fellows said beautiful girls make them nervous. Very nervous. Among the other 71 per cent were a few bachelors who claimed they preferred beautiful women, but the majority said they couldn't care less, they had no opinion, or they didn't know any. However, when the surveytakers asked them simply if they liked girls in general, they said yes, where, when, how and who in that order.

NOBODY yet has invented a machine that can eviscerate a chicken . . . ARE YOU AWARE it's against the federal law to transport edible snails across state lines? . . . IN FRANCE, you're expected to tip the usherettes in the movie houses, remember that.

FLUTES

Q. "What's the rarest sort of musical instrument in the world?"

A. Don't know, for sure. Flutes made from human shinbones maybe. Understand there are a few of those left in Tibet. Some in Peru, too.

Q. "WHY do we call the 'guitar' by that name?"

Comes from the Greek word "kithara" which was the national instrument of ancient Greece. A lot of people don't realize how old the guitar really is. Were you aware that Benjamin Franklin was something of a virtuoso on the guitar?

DID I mention how to tell the difference between a male a female tortoise? The belly armor of the male is conveniently concave.

GUM BALLS

You know those simple little machines that used to give you a gum ball for a penny? Their take doubled when some bright soul put mirrors on some of them. Customers who really wanted to see their reflections could do so less conspicuously if they dropped a cent into a slot at the same time.

DID I SAY snakes don't breathe when they chew their food? Let's get it right. Snakes don't chew their food.

BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Thursday, March 27, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be extra careful today in dealing with close associates. Their views and yours will be on different wavelengths.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It would be a serious mistake to sweep responsibilitues under the rug today, hoping they'll disappear. A time of reckoning looms.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You still have too much of a speculative streak in areas where you shouldn't. Take off those rose-colored glasses. Get back to earth.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Keep persons out of your family affairs who have no right to be there. Their influence will have a disruptive effect.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're a bit too resentful for your own good in dealing with authority figures. All of us have to take orders sometimes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you don't put the brakes on your spending today, you'll need a new red pen by the end of the week.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be very careful how you handle legal matters today. Don't put your John Hancock on anything unless your attorney first checks it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone you're counting on will let you down today. Don't belittle yourself by asking this person for help again soon.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're not at your best in dealing with large groups. Avoid doing things by committee — the lonesome road is best today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be extra careful today where your image is concerned. Several interested onlookers are hoping you'll lose your footing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Steer clear of an associate whose philosophy clashed with yours in the past. An old wound will be reopened if your paths cross.

Firm's employes take 2nd straight 10% salary slash

NEW YORK (AP) — For the second week in a row paychecks of 11,000 employes of REA Express Inc., a major private surface and air delivery service, were cut by 10 per cent.

The paycuts are part of the company's reorganization plan which it filed for on Feb. 18 under federal bankruptcy laws.

A company spokesman said, "We had hoped last week that would be the only cut. However, we found it necessary to make the same cut again this week."

"The employes are aware of the financial difficulties and are being most cooperative," he noted. "They want us to keep going as badly as we want to keep in operation."

The spokesman declined to say exactly how much money was being saved but said, "The amount that is saved is probably the amount that is keeping us going from week to week."

The 11,000 employes affected by the cut are members of the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks. A spokesman said they agreed to the cuts, "because we will make more than we would from union benefits or unemployment."

REA, which in 1969 succeeded the railroad-owned Railway Express Agency, has 340 terminals in the 50 states and Puerto Rico.

An estimated 800 management and nononion employes have taken paycuts up to 20 per cent since it was disclosed that the company had $44 million in assets and $55 million in liabilities.

Smoking pipe can be explosive experience

MORRISTOWN, Tenn. (AP) — Tim Trobaugh filled his briarpipe with tobacco, lit it and walked to the back of his Morristown florist shop. Suddenly he heard a boom, and a bullet whizzed past his nose and into the ceiling above him.

"For a second I didn't know what had happened. I knew it was a bullet, but I couldn't figure it out," said the 54-year-old gun hobbyist after discovering that a .22-caliber round had exploded in the bowl of his pipe.

He discovered the shell casing in the pipe and found a hole in the ceiling where the bullet struck. He speculated that the bullet must have slipped into his tobacco pouch from an old jacket pocket.

"I've got a bunch of guns, and I just keep the .22 gun at the shop for security. I haven't fired it for years . . ."

Trobaugh, who has been a smoker for 30 years, said, "I believe it when they say smoking can be harmful to your health."

But he doesn't plan to quit.

"Funny thing is, it didn't hurt the pipe one little bit," he said. "Not even a crack."

Crystal ball out of order

By Oswald & James Jacoby

North decided to jump to three notrump, rather than to use Stayman in an effort to find a 4-4 spade fit. His decision was a wise one indeed. The way the cards lie, there is no way to avoid the loss of four tricks with spades as trumps.

Three notrump makes easily, if declarer knows how to go about it. Unfortunately, South's crystal ball wasn't working for him.

East won the first trick with his king of hearts and led the suit right back. South won in dummy in order to take a club finesse. West ducked without indicating any problem. He knew all about the possibility that South would refuse a second club finesse, but West also saw that he needed to keep his king of clubs as the only possible entry for the long hearts. All of this being dependent on the chance that South would fall into the trap.

South did. There seemed to be no reason not to try to get back to dummy for a second club finesse, so South led his queen of diamonds. East took his ace and led his last heart to clear the suit for his partner. South had no reason not to take a second club finesse. As mentioned earlier, his crystal ball wasn't working.

West took his king of clubs and two hearts.

Forest inventory

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The State Conservation Commission may enter into a statewide forest inventory.

The commission already has inventoried forest cover on seven million acres in 21 Missouri counties.

Junk shop painting is rare 1779 work

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — A painting unearthed in a junk shop has been identified as a rare portrait of a black Revolutionary War sailor.

The painting probably dates back to 1779, said John F. Millar, vice president of the Newport Bicentennial Commission.

"This is one of the most significant art finds of the Bicentennial," he said.

A friend of Millar found the portrait in a Warren, R.I., junk shop several years ago and was unaware of its uniqueness until the commission official saw it.

Millar said a free black family from the Warren area probably passed the portrait down from generation to generation. He declined to place a value on the painting.

Millar said the unidentified sailor is believed to have been a crew member of the 20-gun American privateer General Washington, which appears in the background.

"The only year the Washington was privateering was 1779," Millar said, explaining how he dated the painting.

He identified the ship's type "because she is shown with the flag of the privateer, 13 stripes without the canton in the corner."

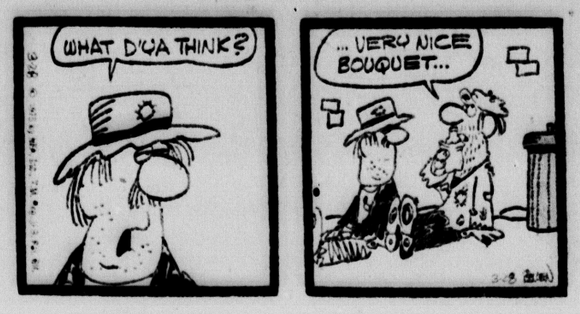
The Providence ship was captured by the British in 1780 and was recaptured the following year by the American Navy. In 1784, it was sent to England on a goodwill mission.

The ship eventually was recommissioned to ply the China trade routes.

School aid

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The State Education Department distributed more than $338,990,000 to Missouri's public schools during the 1974-75 school year.

FUNNY BUSINESS



Businessman sentenced for tax evasion

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A 53-year-old Beverly Hills businessman has been sentenced to four months in county jail, fined $5,000 and put on three years' probation for falsely claiming to be a Nevada resident to escape California's state income tax.

The sentence was imposed Monday on William Breliant, who has paid $375,000 in back taxes, penalties and interest.

Is it going broke?

Social Security problems

WASHINGTON (LENS) — The middle of the sharpest recession since the war is a poor time for Americans to begin to wonder whether their Social Security system — which provides pensions for the old, the disabled and the dependents they may have — is going bankrupt.

At the end of 1974 about 30 million people were getting benefits totalling $6 billion a month (including hospital benefits) — income maintenance on a scale which is softening the impact of hard times and probably shortening their duration. One American in every seven is a beneficiary of the social insurance which covers 90 per cent of the work force.

Unlike public assistance, pensions for the old and the disabled have seldom been controversial. But this is now changing. The tax on payrolls which finances Social Security now stands at 5.85 per cent, paid by every covered worker and by his employer on earnings up to $14,100. Since the tax rate is not progressive, and since people who earn more than $14,100 pay nothing on the excess, it is seen by many as a cruelly regressive exaction; people too poor to pay federal income tax often must pay substantial sums in social security tax.

More alarming, the moment is at hand when payroll taxes will not cover the payment of benefits; next year a shortfall of several billion dollars is expected.

Although there have been some frightening stories in the press, the immediate problem is perfectly manageable. With trust funds for the old and the disabled standing at about $50 billion, the system could run a deficit for years, certainly to the end of this decade and there is no question of pensions going unpaid.

In the long run, about the turn of the century, some much more serious problems loom, but there is plenty of time to meet them — about a quarter of a century.

Both the trustees of the Social Security system and its advisory council have been considering the range of choices in the short run. The council, which issued a report last week, seemed at first about to recommend, not an increase in the payroll tax, but its extension to all income up to $24,000 a year. In the end it turned down this course, ostensibly because it would interfere with savings, but partly, it has been suggested, because of the opposition of the private insurance industry.

Instead, the council proposed that about half of the 0.9 per cent of the payroll tax which now finances Medicare — hospital insurance for people of 65 and over — should be diverted to paying pensions, and that general revenues should be used to make up the difference for Medicare.

As the whole system of financing health care may soon be changed if Congress is able to agree on a national health insurance scheme, this seems not unreasonable. But the proposal has been turned down out of hand by President Ford.

It is understandable that at a time of high government deficits he should be reluctant to find another $7 billion or so a year for Medicare.

There is also a feeling, strongly held not only by President Ford but also by a number of experts on social security, that the system should continue to be financed entirely by cotributions and that once general revenue financing gets its foot in the door, pensions will become a political football, they will become less secure and—though there is no apparent justification for it—a means test might be introduced.

What is probably true is that the need to raise payroll taxes in step with pensions does make for more financial responsibility.

Nevertheless there are a number of advocates of a measure of general revenue financing, among them the chairman of the subcommittee in the House of Representatives which will soon be holding hearings on what is to be done.

Financing a part of the Social Security burden out of general taxes, which are progressive, would certainly ease the burden on the poor. It is worth remembering, however, that although the tax may be regressive, the poor have always had a better return on their contributions, when they start to draw their pensions, than the better off.

Reforms which would help to slow down the rise in benefits are also recommended by the council. Few people, except President Ford and his advisers, who imagined quite unrealistically that Congress would hold this year's rise in pensions to 5 per cent instead of the 8.7 per cent needed to compensate beneficiaries for inflation, want to interfere with the automatic adjustment of pensions for higher prices.

People without other resources find it hard to live on $188 a month (soon to be $205) even though pensions have risen considerably faster than prices over the past five years. But when Congress was amending the pension scheme in 1972 it introduced a kind of double-weighting for inflation; the council agreed that this should end.

Much of the criticism of the council's report concerns its calculations of the size of the deficit that is likely to confront the Social Security system by the end of the century.

Very soon the people who will be retiring will be those born during the depressed 1930s when the birthrate was low; those now in the labor force and paying for their pensions are of the "baby-boom" generation born just after the war. But in the 21st Century the relationship is likely to be reversed, since the birthrate has now fallen to 1.9 babies for each woman (below zero population growth) and seems still to be falling.

Today there are 30 people receiving government pensions for every hundred people at work; in the year 2030 it is estimated that there will be 45. Critics say that the assumption on which this estimate is based — that the birthrate will turn up to 2.1 in 1985 and remain there — are unlikely guesses. The council's other assumptions — that the cost of living will increase by 3 per cent a year up to 2048, while wages will rise on average by 5 per cent — are the same.

Best dressed: Ford, Daley, Catfish

NEW YORK (AP) — President Ford's button-down shirts, Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's kelly green fedora, and the Gay '90s touch Jim "Catfish" Hunter has lent the New York Yankees have earned the three a place on this year's "best dressed" list for men.

In its 36th annual listing, said to be a survey of custom tailors and designers, the Fashion Foundation of America said Ford's "button-down shirts, subtle neckwear, and brown plaid suits reflect confident fashion charisma in public appearances on televison."

The President's "fashion charisma" gave him the "best dressed statesman" slot held last year by the Shah of Iran.

Daley bumped former New York Mayor John V. Lindsay from the list as best dressed in civic affairs, and "Daley's correct kelly green fedora and tie and blackthorn walking stick for the St. Patrick's Day parade marched him right in over Mayor Lee Alexander of Syracuse, N.Y."

Hunter was credited with adding "a touch of the Gay '90s to the New York Yankees," earning him the best dressed sportsman title.

Others lauded in their fields for clothing taste and propriety were Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.; Cutty Sark President Edward A. Horrigan; Lee Majors, television's "Six Million Dollar Man"; Chase Manhattan Bank Chairman David Rockefeller; Actor Fred Astaire; restaurateur Van Rapoport; American Ship Building Co. Chairman George M. Steinbrenner III; Penthouse magazine publisher Bob Guccione; and singer Tony Bennett.

Gray uniforms

In the summer of 1814 a small American army, led by Gen. Winfield Scott and wearing gray, decisively defeated the British in upper Canada. In 1816, the Secretary of War approved the use of gray uniforms for West Point in recognition of Gen. Scott and his gallant troops.

Minor-Turner nuptial vows are exchanged

Miss Penny Jo Turner and Bruce Allen Minor were united in marriage during an afternoon ceremony at the Ontario Community Baptist Church.

The Rev. Bill Rice performed the double-ring ceremony.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn H. Turner of Ontario was given in marriage by her father. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Minor of Montclair.

The bride wore an A-line gown of organza wth a chapel train. Cotton venise lace accented the sleeves and skirt. She wore a picture hat with daisies on the hat and attached veil.

A nosegay of blue and white carnations, baby's breath stephanotis and pom pons was carried by the bride.

Pam Lin Turner was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Miss Marian Kay Phillipson and Mrs. Peggy Ann Freehauf with Miss Colleen Ann Stecker as junior bridesmaid.

Sally Ann Stofa was flower girl and Jason David Freehauf was ring bearer.

Serving as ushers were David Eugene Freehauf, Doug Wayne Minor, Pat Glenn Turner and Rick Lynn Minor while Larry Eugene Minor was best man.

A reception at the church honored the newlyweds who honeymooned in northern California. They reside in Ontario.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Remarriage jitters

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Ever since my older brother was divorced three years ago he's had a series of small accidents. I've a feeling a good many of these accidents could have been avoided if he hadn't been so unhappy. My husband and I were relieved when he finally decided to go through with the divorce, but now we feel he's almost more unhappy than he was in his marriage. He finally met a woman he says he loves but he's terrified to marry again for fear he'll make the same mistakes and go through the same misery.

My husband is making me very angry and rather hurt because he agrees with my brother. At first, I thought my husband was trying to kid me and deliberately make me angry and upset. Now, I'm beginning to wonder if he really would prefer the single life. —M.G.

Dear M.G.: Your husband may occasionally share many married men's dreams about the joys of the single life. According to studies, romantic notions about single life, especially for the male, are just that—dreams. Men have a very poor track record when it comes to adjusting to living alone. Single males tend to have a higher suicide rate, a higher rate of alcoholism and of mental illness. Generally, most freely admit that the typical life of the bachelor is not a happy one.

It's not uncommon for a high accident rate to reflect a high anxiety level. Most accidents aren't really accidents at all. Often, children and adults may have accidents to punish themselves for something they feel they've done wrong or they may simply be crying out for much needed attention that often comes when a person has injured himself. As adults, people who have frequent accidents often have childless marriages or a high divorce rate.

According to Dr. Manuel Rodstein, a New York physician and medical professor, these people tend to make frequent changes in many types of jobs. They also tend to be aggressive, irresponsible and unusually adventurous. Under stress, they're apt to make up their minds quickly and often have problems with authority figures. The accident-prone person becomes even more susceptible when he or she is bored, lonely, frustrated or suffering from some special inner conflict. Often a specific worry or anxiety precedes the accident.

The divorced person often feels a sense of failure and that a part of himself has died. Many individuals who've once been badly hurt have trepidations about remarriage. Your brother might get some comfort from the fact that more than one out of every four marriages now ends in divorce and more than three-fourths of all divorced men remarry. Once exposed to marriage, most men find they can't live without it.

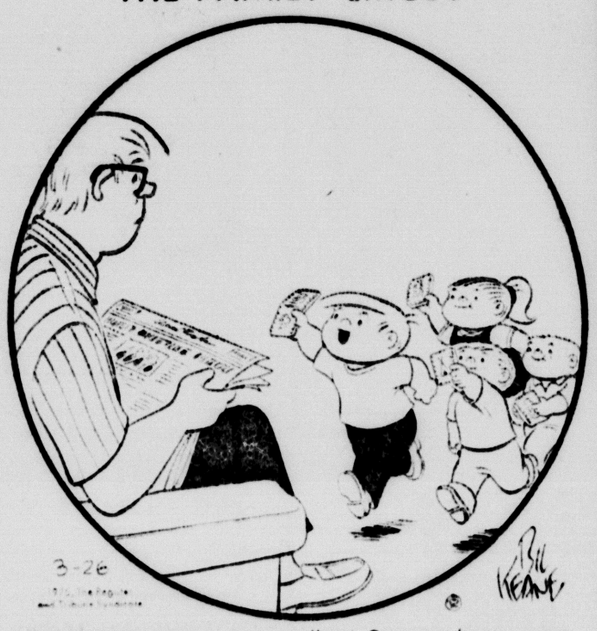
Many men and women learn a great deal from an unsuccessful marriage and profit from their earlier mistakes. Usually, the remarried man tries harder. He's willing to work hard to make his second marriage a success—if he's ready to take the step. Only your brother can answer this vital question. However, you and your husband can support and encourage him if he seems to want this extra backing.

As Dr. Allan Fromme, noted psychologist and author says, "The second-time marriage choice may not always be more rational, but the second time around the individual works more rationally at keeping it going."

As for your own marriage, you might select a time when neither you nor your husband is pressured and ask him if he's serious about his suggestions to your brother, or if he's only kidding.

He may have special knowledge about your brother's choice of woman, and if he has, it might be better to be direct and bring his feelings out into the open—at least with you.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS



"Grandma sent us new wallets! Can we have something to fill 'em up?"

Program announced

The second session of the Extension Program at the Woman's Building, 743 S. Grandview, Los Angeles, will begin April 14.

Classes and workshops in graphic arts, design, architecture, film, mass media, poetry, dance and music will be offered. The courses are all taught by professional and university women and may be taken for college credit.

A special feature will be a studio workshop taught by Betsy Damon, visiting artist. She is a painter and sculptor who organized an independent feminist art studio in New York. She has exhibited extensively on the East Coast and will have a show at the Woman's Building this spring. Her workshop is aimed at creating art which speaks directly of female experience, past and present, and will be open to all women.

Most of the spring session courses will run for eight weeks, through June 7. Fees are $40 per course, and the last date for preregistration by mail is March 31.

Wax prints at library

A collection of wax intaglio prints by Diamond Bar artist Gerhard Schulz is currently on display at the Pomona Public Library.

The wax intaglio process was developed by Schulz and is a form of printmaking that employs a wax plate and a combination of water, ink, poster paint and enamel.

No machine is used in pulling the finished print, pressure being applied in transferring the image from plate to paper only by the artist's hand.

Schulz is a native of East Germany. Following World War II, he studied commercial and fine arts in West Germany and subsequently emigrated to America. He became a U.S. citizen in 1961.

When the paycheck stops and bills come due, what do you do?

Talk with your banker, the utility company credit manager and others who are in a position to help.

Never mind those old-time dramas showing bankers sneeringly twisting mustaches while threatening eviction.

Modern bankers and credit managers want to help. The key is talking.

Paul J. O'Brien said so in response to a question about strategy when one can't pay the mortgage and other bills.

O'Brien is chairman of the Housing and Real Estate Finance Division of the American Bankers Association.

"A family who sees potential financial difficulties should consult with its banker immediately and not wait until an emergency of disaster proportions develops," O'Brien said.

There are three things to keep in mind:

Talk before your financial crunch fully develops. Your banker may be able to help you over the rough spots if he has advance notice.

Level. Be realistic about your personal economic future and employment outlook.

Don't just go to the bank, make a long face and say you won't be able to pay your mortgage or car loan. Gather major monthly bills, mortgage records, credit card debts, business records. It's something like going for an income tax audit. Without all the financial facts, the banker won't be able to help you work out a viable plan.

Other alternatives to just letting things go, damaging your credit record or plunging more deeply into debt depend on the particular bank.

Some banks may allow you to make alternate mortgage payments for a year or two, after which you make up the deficit when income picks up.

Another option outlined by O'Brien "is to reduce monthly mortgage payments by paying only the interest on the loan with the difference being added later, or at the maturity date of the loan."

Still another plan permits refinancing installment loans for cars, appliances, home improvements and college tuition. Refinancing usually reduces the size of the monthly payment.

A survival plan put forth by Girard Bank of Philadelphia provides up to six months relief in meeting loan obligations for persons temporarily out of work.

Other help may be on the way. Congressional support is growing for new laws to help homeowners who lose their jobs due to the recession.

Almost 100 solons have joined Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, D-Ohio, in sponsoring HR 34. This bill would authorize the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to make loans of up to $375 a month to homeowners whose income has dropped at least 20 per cent.

The plan, still in the embryonic stage, proposes government mortgage-payment loans for up to two years. The amount lent each month would vary with an individual's financial circumstances.

The loans would be applied to the mortgage principal and interest.

A similar bill is expected to be introduced in the Senate.

Mortgage delinquencies usually hit their peak about three to six months after the national unemployment rate stops climbing.

Thirty-five million American homes are mortgaged. About 4.1 per cent are delinquent.

Stagflation

Altered eatery scene

Dessert-sharing, bill-splitting by dating couples, lunch-skipping and more doggie bag carriers are signs of changing times on the restaurant scene.

Even some upper crust, luxury restaurants are offering early evening specials at reduced prices in an effort to make up in volume what they are losing to higher costs of food and overhead such as labor, rent and energy for heating and cooking.

As an alternative to price increases, some restaurants are cutting out menu items, switching from beef to less expensive meats and-or reducing portion sizes, says Henry W. Bolling, president of the National Restaurant Association, Chicago.

Bolling, himself a restaurateur with both service and self-service operations in downtown Chicago, said in an interview that he thought the customer count nationally had not decreased last year, but that many customers are trading down in their choice of food and the number of courses they order.

"I have the impression that many people are coming in on their coffee break, buying breakfast and skipping lunch. They order (such things as) eggs, bacon, wheatcakes. We've seen an increase in the average check at that hour."

"There are more coffee pots in offices nowadays, and people buying bakery sweet rolls."

A spot check of eleven table service NRA-member restaurants in widely scattered cities showed business up in some, down in others, or holding steady.

In Dallas, Michael Glynn estimated that about 25 per cent fewer customers were coming into the restaurant he manages. Glynn said wine sales in particular have dipped but that more customers are ordering full dinners instead of a la carte items.

In a popular Cincinnati restaurant, co-owner Michael Comisar reported wine sales up, heavy volume on fresh fish items and business in general sensational.

Martin Wetten, district manager for the restaurant atop the John Hancock Building in Chicago was also optimistic. He said his customer count was up, dollar volume had increased by 10 to 20 per cent and buying habits appear unchanged.

Victor Gotti, owner of a famous San Francisco restaurant whose entrees range upward from $6.75, said sales were up 22 per cent for 1974.

"The West Coast does not seem to feel the current pinch that we read about in other sections of the country," he added.

But in Boston, Louis Amirsakis, owner of a landmark seafood restaurant, said his marginal customers have declined in number although regulars were coming in as usual. Marginals are people who drop in between 6:15 and 7 p.m. for a drink and a piece of fish or appetizer.

To Paul Shank, who operates the dining room and coffee shop in a Scottsdale, Ariz., hotel, the inflation-recession situation is a mixed blessing. He said sales volume dropped 15 per cent in January, compared with the same month in 1974. Customers still ate in the hotel, he said, but they were trading down from the dining room to the coffee shop.

In Atlanta, restaurateur A.J. Anthony said his dollar volume and customer count had dropped about 10 per cent, but attributed part of the decrease to the season, noted for its absence of conventions, which represent a large part of the restaurant's business. To offset the decline, Anthony laid off only one waiter but cut his work week from six to five days.

Despite inflation and recession, Americans now eat one third of all their meals outside the home, says the restaurant association. And it estimates that the figure will increase to one half by 1985.

Enhance Easter-Passover feast with lamb

Tender cuts loaded with vitamins, niacin and iron

Passover and Easter come early this year. This means that March can go out with lamb on the table. Lamb, of course, is customary fare for Easter dinner and for Passover Seder meals.

In addition to being traditional and versatile, lamb is a good source of vitamins B-1 and B-2, iron, and niacin. And, most cuts of lamb are naturally tender because they come from sheep under one year old.

When buying lamb look for the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) grade shield. This is a reliable guide to eating characteristics — tenderness, juiciness and flavor.

There are three USDA quality grades that the consumer may find in a retail store: Prime, Choice and Good.

LAMB CHOPS CAN SUBSTITUTE FOR CUBED LAMB SHOULDER

USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) says the grade you are most likely to see in stores is USDA Choice. This is very high quality meat, and is tender, juicy and flavorful. Choice lamb chops and roasts are suitable for dry heat cooking.

Prime grade lamb is the highest quality but is not carried widely at retail level. It has generous marbling—flecks of fat within the lean—which contributes to the flavor and juiceness. Prime chops and roasts are excellent for broiling and roasting.

In addition to quality grade, AMS meat grading specialists advise consumers to pay attention to the cut of meat. Regardless of quality, some cuts of lamb are naturally more tender than others. Cuts from the less-used muscles along the back of the animal — the rib and loin sections — will be more tender than those from the active muscles such as the shoulder, flank, and leg.

The most tender cuts make up only a small proportion of the lamb carcass — and they are in greatest demand. Therefore, they demand higher prices than other cuts.

Consistently tender lamb cuts include the sirloin chop or steak, the loin chop, loin roast, rib chop, and rib roast. You will find that most cuts of USDA Prime and Choice lamb — including shoulder cuts — are tender and can be oven roasted, broiled, or pan-broiled. A leg of lamb graded Choice or Prime, for example, is a delicate delight when oven roasted.

The less tender cuts — the breast, riblets, neck, and shanks — are sometimes more economical — and can be braised slowly to make excellent lamb dishes.

If you would like to know more about lamb grades and cuts write for the U. S. Department of Agriculture booklet "How to Buy Lamb". Copies are available from AMS Information Division, 630 Sansome Street, Room 702, San Francisco, California 94111.

LAMB SALONIKA WITH WHITE RICE

- 2 pounds lamb shoulder, trimmed, cut in cubes or strips
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ cup butter
- ¼ teaspoon garlic, instant, granulated
- ½ cup onions, chopped
- 1 can (10-½ oz.) cream of celery soup
- 1-3 cup water
- ¾ cup mushrooms, sliced
- ¾ cup plus 2 tablespoons sour cream
- 3 tablespoons chives, chopped

Combine flour, salt and pepper; mix well. Dredge lamb with seasoned flour. Melt butter in large skillet. Add lamb, garlic and onions to skillet. Cook over low heat until lamb is browned on all sides. Drain excess fat. Add water, soup and mushrooms to lamb. Cook over low heat for 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Gradually raise temperature of sour cream by adding small amounts of hot mixture. Add warmed sour cream to the hot mixture being careful not to let it boil. Add chives before serving or sprinkle over top as garnish. Serve over white rice. Serves 6.

JAVANESE CURRY

- ¼ cup butter
- 1 cup (4 oz.) onion, chopped
- 2 cups chicken broth
- 1½ teaspoons curry powder
- ¼ teaspoon garlic, instant, granulated
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 No. 2½ can whole peeled tomatoes
- 3 cups (1¼ pounds) lamb, cooked and cubed
- Cooked rice as needed

Melt butter, add onions and cook until soft, stirring constantly. Add chicken broth, seasonings and tomatoes. Heat to simmer, mash tomatoes. Add lamb. Simmer 45 minutes until sauce has thickened and flavors blended. It may be necessary to add more water during cooking time. NOTE: This recipe can be made using raw stew cut lamb by following this method: Brown meat cubes in small amount of fat. Drain excess fat if necessary. Add chicken broth and briase until cubes are tender. Use liquid in which meat is braised as liquid in Javanese Curry. Serves 4.

The Inflation Fighter

If you use your dishwasher with discretion, it doesn't have to use more hot water or energy than washing dishes by hand would.

Run the dishwasher only when you have a full load. Open the dishwasher and let the dishes air-dry rather than using the drying cycle. This cuts energy consumption in half. The dishes will be hot enough to dry quickly. — S.H., Franklin, La.

Cut heating costs by keeping furnace filters clean. Hot air filters can get clogged with dust and dirt that slows air flow. Vacuum about once a month for best results. — H.M., Augusta, N.J.

Keep an old-fashioned rag bag handy for all the clean-up jobs you'd normally use paper towels for. It will not only save money spent on paper towels, but rags can be cleaned and reused for years. — M.K., Maricopa, Calif.

When a bed sheet is worn out in the center, take the four corners that still are in good shape and make two pillow cases from them. — I.V.M., Monroe, Wisc.

Never use an open pan for boiling water. If you cover the pan or use a tea kettle it will come to a boil much more rapidly, which takes less energy (and patience). — U.L., Munsing, Mich.

(Have you a clever way to save energy or fight inflation? Send your idea to The Inflation Fighter in care of this newspaper.. The best ideas will be used in future columns, and their au-. thors will be rewarded with a free copy of the $1.50 book. "Save Money-Save Gas.")

Are $$ trickling down the drain?

Billions of gallons of water are going down the drain literally and figuratively every day.

The considerable percentage of it that is wasted adds to the worries of conservation experts — who point out that the supply of potable water is not inexhaustible — and raises water bills everywhere.

There are many ways to save water. Most of them we know, but too often we overlook them simply because we don't make the mental effort necessary to take action. And sometimes we take what we think is a watersaving step, but really isn't. Placing a brick in a toilet tank is a much-discussed method of using less water when flushing, but it really isn't very practical. Most conventional toilet units require a certain amount of water (five gallons or more) for proper flushing. Reduce that amount and you reduce efficiency, sometimes resulting in a second flushing and the use of more water rather than less. There are some new toilet units that work well with only three and a half gallons of water.

What are some of the techniques for conserving water? I directed that question to James Sledge, president of a major plumbing products company (Borg-Warner). He came up with this list:

1. Repair or replace dripping faucets, leaking toilets.
2. Don't run drinking water until it gets very cold. Keep a container in the refrigerator.
3. Water lawns and gardens only when really necessary.
4. Use a glass of water instead of running the faucet when brushing your teeth.
5. Reduce showering time; lower tub bath water level by one inch.
6. Wash dishes or laundry only when you have accumulated a full load.
7. Wash your car in the shade with the water turned low, and shut the hose off when you're not using it.
8. When possible or necessary, install up-to-date watersaver toilets.
9. Don't shave with running water.
10. Rinse dishes in the sink compartment, not under the faucet.
11. Sweep, rather than hose down, driveways.
12. Cover children's out-of-ground swimming pools when not in use and you won't have to change the water so often.

Remember Bonnie Prudden?

She's now 61 but quite fit

By Aileen Snoddy

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Can it be? Bonnie Prudden, a guru of physical fitness in the late 1940s and 1950s, is now 61.

How many persons remember when she shocked Eisenhower-land with her outspoken advocacy of exercise to improve a woman's sex life? Well, Bonnie has never really been away. Just traveling the country promoting physical fitness as a healthful, happier way of life.

It was her report on the comparative fitness of American and European children (we flunked) to President Eisenhower that was instrumental in setting up the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports. In her most recent book "How to Keep Your Family Fit and Healthy," (Reader's Digest Press) she is still in there, putting her trim 125 pounds behind her theory. With her associate and photographer Lenna Payton, she holds forth in her Bonnie Prudden Institute for Physical Fitness in Stockbridge, Mass.

BONNIE PRUDDEN

She conducts regular exercise seminars for flabby executives, teachers, young mothers, pregnant women and children. What does she do to get in shape for the 8-to-10 hour sessions when she actually works out with her students? There's an oval track around the house and she jogs several miles each day plus doing a variety of regular exercises. "I have to keep ahead of the class," she says with a mischievous smile.

Among her most rewarding experiences in the last few years has been her work with older persons — those over 50 who've let themselves go and those in their sixties and seventies who reject the idea of sitting in a rocking chair or a wheelchair but often are laughed at by younger persons if they even whisper the word "exercise."

"What most older persons don't realize," Bonnie says emphatically "is that those in their fifties, sixties and seventies can be put in shape in eight weeks of supervised exercises. They have a better chance than today's teenager or his parent of getting in shape."

Why does she say this? "The older person grew up with gymnastics in school and a lot of walking. Most were in pretty good shape as a result. It takes two years for the average teenager to get in good shape because most of his exercisde is getting in and out of a car."

At a time when most women keep silent about their age, Bonnie Prudden uses hers as an encouragement to those reaching out for help.

She has worked for many years with physical therapists and geriatric specialists.

Her enthusiasm is endless. "Older people are not embarrased to learn. I've had those in their late seventies and eighties who start simply. In one home for the elderly I didn't have one person under 70. Their first question was, 'Is it too late to start?' I wound up with a class of 30 and you should have seen them in their leotards and tights.

"I remember," she continues, "one woman in bed with a chronic backache. Her doctor had told her, 'What do you expect at your age? If you want to go out to play bridge with your friends, get a wheelchair.'"

Her doctor approved exercises and now, Bonnie says, the woman goes out . . . without a wheelchair.

Many problems in working with older persons exercise programs starts with the basic fact that like an unused hinge their muscles and joints get rusty. But if they're young in spirit and get a medical okay there is no reason they can't limber up. Much pain comes from poor movement or no movement, she adds, and exercise and sports done properly do help get rid of pain.

Mental attitude toward one's age has so much to do with physical health and getting a lot out of life, for little money, Bonnie Prudden believes. She cites herself as an example.

"I was 25 and pregnant with my first child. I thought I should be dignified and matronly and the whole bit because that was what I had been led to believe. After the baby was born I suddenly realized that it was nonsense. Why be old and dowdy at my age?"

And this is the attitude she tries to install in her students and those she reaches through lectures, books such as "How to Keep Your Family Fit and Healthy," and TV interviews.

"You know older persons are in tension for 30 years or more and kids normally don't get the tension thing until they are 14, so we older persons need sports and physical exercise to get us over the hump," she adds.

Older persons also need a better diet and more protein, she adds, than young people because much deterioration of the elderly is due to poor nutrition.

What is sad in America, she feels is that too many persons give up at 50 or 55. They need support from others, especially their own family. Too few get words of encouragement. Such works, for example, which she got from a grandson, 7.

"We had been romping around and climbing trees," she relates, "and on our way back to the house he said he'd had a great time because 'I never had a playing grandmother before.'"

It wouldn't hurt for Mom and Dad to join in the fun, says Bonnie Prudden but notes:

"We're still in a twilight zone because Americans are more frightened of physical exercise than in any other country because we don't know our bodies."

Energy plus

College, camping cookies

With all the ongoing changes on the college campus, one fact remains constant — college students love to eat. And they appreciate those care packages from home that are filled with tasty tidbits. With many students camping, hiking and backpacking a good selection of energy-filled cookie bars always is welcome. To mail, wrap cookies in waxed paper. Pack firmly in an airtight container lined with aluminum foil. An empty coffee can makes a good container. Either pack this in a cardboard box and wrap box with brown craft paper to mail, or wrap can with packing material and then craft paper for mailing.

ENERGY-PLUS BARS

- ¾ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 cup dark corn syrup
- 1 egg
- ½ cup orange juice
- 1 cup non-fat dry milk (dry form)
- 2 cups unsifted flour
- 1 cup wheat germ
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup chopped walnuts
- 1 cup raisins

Grease 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking pan. In large bowl, cream butter until light and fluffy. Beat in sugar, corn syrup and egg until smooth and well blended. Stir in orange juice. Add dry milk, flour, wheat germ, baking soda, cinnamon, nutmeg and salt; stir until well mixed. Fold in nuts and raisins. Spread mixture in prepared pan. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 45 minutes or until richly browned. Cool in pan. Cut into bars. Store in airtight container. Makes 36 (2 x 1-and-one-half inch) bars.

OATMEAL BARS

- 2 cups prepared mincemeat
- ½ cup light or dark corn syrup
- ¼ cup water
- ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- Grated rind and juice of 1 lemon
- 1 cup chopped walnuts or pecans
- 1½ cups unsifted flour
- 1½ cups quick oats
- ¾ cup firmly packed light or dark brown sugar
- ¾ cup butter or margarine

Grease 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking pan. In large bowl stir together mincemeat, corn syrup, water, cinnamon, lemon rind, lemon juice and nuts. Set aside. In another bowl stir together with pastry blender flour, oats, brown sugar and margarine until coarse crumbs form. Pour one-half of crumb mixture into prepared pan. Press firmly and evenly into place. Spoon on mincemeat mixture. Sprinkle remaining crumb mixture evenly on top and gently press into place. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 40 to 45 minutes or until light golden and firm to touch. Cool in pan. Cut into 36 (1-and-one-half x 2-and-one-fourth inch) bars.

GINGER SLICES

- 1 cup shortening
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1 cup dark corn syrup
- 1 cup chopped nuts (omit if mailing far away)
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 4½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- 1½ teaspoons ginger
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 3 tablespoons milk

Cream soft shortening with sugar. Add corn syrup, then finely chopped nuts. Sift together dry ingredients. Add half to shortening mixture. Add milk, then remaining flour mixture. Shape into two rolls on waxed paper or aluminum foil. Chill overnight or at least 6 hours. Cut in thin slices. Bake on lightly greased cookie sheet in 375-degree oven 10 to 12 minutes. Do not over-brown or cookies will be hard. Makes about 6

Homemade Easter decorations and goodies

Along with its joyous religious significance, Easter has evolved into a festive family celebration that evokes magical delight for both children and parents.

Easter is a marvelous time for making things as a family — coloring eggs, preparing for an Easter egg hunt, making your own Easter bunny complete with a basket to deliver homemade candies that will satisfy a youngster's sweet tooth while contributing valuable nutrients.

The whimsical bunny is easy-to-make and inexpensive — she consists primarily of egg-shaped containers from supermarket hosiery, a soup can and scraps of fabric and trimming. As a family project, each child can make one, with his or her own personal touch. Or if you are having an Easter party, make several bunnies as party favors. The Easter Candy Bunny brings delicious candies based on nutritious peanut butter, that universal favorite that's high in protein as well as phosphorous, thiamine and niacin.

In her basket she carries Fudgy Peanut Butter Easter Eggs coated in luscious chocolate. Surrounding her are No-Cook Peanut Easter Jewels, a blend of honey, coconut, raisins and peanut butter — all flavor favorites of youngsters.

EASTER CANDY BUNNY

Materials:
1 soup can modeling clay plastic cement and white glue
1 whole egg-shaped container from 1-eggs hosiery plus 1 small half white and pink felt pink floral trim (½ yard) black waterproof felt tip pen purple fabric 18"x4" needle and thread
yellow rick rack
x-acto knife, razor blade or pointed knife yellow paint
3 pipe cleaners

Directions:
Fill about half of can with modeling clay.

Glue hosiery egg together to make bunny head. Cut ears out of white felt, fold at bottom, glue together and to hosiery egg head. Cut eyes and nose from pink felt and glue in place on head. Cut small scalloped circle out of felt; trim with floral trim and glue on head as hat. Draw face and glue head onto can.

To make dress, sew or glue fabric at open end. Make large stitches about ½ inch from top and gather. Glue around top of can. Glue rick rack trim around gathers. Cut paws from felt (4 pieces) and glue two togther with pipe cleaners in between.

Make 2 slits in sides of dress (razor blade) and insert paws — glue to can under dress.

Paint small hosiery egg half and pipe cleaner yellow. Make two small holes (pointed knife or x-acto) on sides of egg and attach pipe cleaner. Hang basket over paw and glue paw to dress to hold basket securely. Fill with candies.

Note: Use plastic cement when gluing to plastic or metal.

FUDGY PEANUT BUTTER EASTER EGGS

2 cups granulated sugar
2-3 cup milk
½ jar (7 ounces) marshmallow creme
1 cup smooth or crunchy peanut butter
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
4 ounces (4 squares) semi-sweet chocolate
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Combine sugar and milk. Bring to a boil and cook at a boil to soft-ball stage (234 degrees). Remove from heat and stir in marshmallow creme, peanut butter and vanilla. Cool to lukewarm, then shape in egg-shaped balls about the size of a large olive.

In a saucepan over low heat, melt chocolate and butter, stirring until smooth. Using a fork, dip egg-shaped candy one at a time into melted chocolate, rolling candy to coat completely. After candy is coated, lift fork from chocolate mixture and allow excess chocolate to drain back into pan. Place candies on wax paper-covered cookie sheet. Chill until firm. Makes about 50 candies, depending on size of eggs.

NO-COOK PEANUT EASTER JEWELS

1 cup peanut butter
½ cup honey
1 cup seedless raisins
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups angel flake coconut

Mix peanut butter with honey, raisins, and vanilla. Spread coconut on waxed paper or flat pan. Drop spoonfuls of peanut mixture on coconut and roll to coat completely with coconut. Chill. Yields about 3 dozen candies.

Cleanliness is thrifty as well as Godly

Spring cleaning probably brings a big yawn from the entire family. It usually means shaking out the rugs, washing down the greasy kitchen ceiling and emptying the garage of last year's accumulation of junk. Make this spring a little different — "springerize" the house. It means saving dollars and saving energy.

When was the last time you cleaned your air conditioner filters? or caulked the windows? or sealed up the cracks in exterior walls? Sounds like a plug for winter heat protection, but just as importantly, it's a chance to save dollars on cooling and provide year round protection.

Judi Hampton, consumer affairs director for Mobil Oil Corporation, has gathered some hard-nosed facts on saving dollars by developing good cooling habits. Here are some of her suggestions to save 20 percent on cooling costs from Mobil Oil Corp.

Proper insulation has double-edged savings. Fiberglass insulation of the top-floor ceiling and all the walls in your home will keep cool air inside in summer and reduce heat loss in winter. Depending on how thorough an insulation job you do, your fuel and electric bill will decrease drastically.

On blistery days, ceiling and attic floor insulation keeps hot air from blowing back into ther house. Proper attic ventilation is the key to keeping hot air moving out. It also prevents humidity build-up.

Attic fans suck up hot air with about one-ninth the energy consumption of an air conditioner.

Stuffy unventilated attics can reach 140 degrees. Sleeping under one at this temperature is like sleeping under an oven.

Look out for the windows. A one-time energy saver is to leave storm windows or double glass up all year round. It prevents cool air from escaping and hot outdoor air from entering.

Shade the windows exposed to sun. By shutting blinds or draperies, heat gain is reduced by 50 percent.

Draperies should be light colored. "Dark ones absorb heat and light ones reflect the sun. Blinds, shades and louver-screens are even better because of their density.

Shading from the outside is more effective than shading from the inside. Awnings, porches with long overhangs and low-hanging eaves protect walls and windows from enormous amounts of solar heat build-up. That "do-it-yourself" porch can be an energy saver in disguise.

Take advantage of nature. Plant leafy trees near sun-exposed windows. The trees work for you in both summer and winter. In winter, the leaves fall off to give the sun's extra warmth. In summer they prevent the rays from penetrating the house.

A roof with white pebbles is far better than a roof with dark pebbles.

Air conditioning care is as important as radiator care. Don't block your unit with furniture or curtains. A room unit should be the right size for that particular room. Don't waste energy with a larger unit than you need.

Just as you keep furnace and filters clean in winter for best heat efficiency, you should change air conditioner filters every six weeks.

An air conditioner working at peak efficiency will save up to 25 percent of cooling dollars. An annual check-up is a must. Vacuum to keep dust down throughout the year. At the first sign of summer, have a professional steam-clean for maximum output. Remember, the right size air conditioner saves money. Too big will shut off before moisture is out of the room. Too small will make it work full time.

Learn to live on the warm side. Seventy-five degrees is cool enough to be comfortable and when you go outside you won't notice a big difference between indoor and outdoor temperatures.

For Easter

Sabra duck dinner

If you observe Easter or Passover, a pleasant addition to mealtime festivities is the taste of Sabra, the native liqueur of the Holy Land. Made from Jaffa oranges with a touch of chocolate, it provides many interesting variations in food and drink. Among these are Sabra duckling, orange fruit cup, Sabra sour and Sabra screwdriver.

SABRA DUCKLING

½ cup honey
½ cup Sabra liqueur
1 large or 2 small ducklings
4 or 5 dried apricots, plumbed by covering with a bit of hot water and letting stand a few minutes
Thyme, rosemary, cloves

Rub duck nicely with salt and pepper and a bit of thyme or rosemary. Set a clove in each of the apricots and place in cavity of duck.

Set duck on rack in roasting pan and roast in 325 degree oven about 1½ hours. Prick skin often during roasting so that fat can escape.

About 20 minutes before duck is finished, spread with mixture of honey and Sabra. Baste several times, until nice glaze is formed. Cut into 4 serving portions with pultry shears and serve.

ORANGE FRUIT CUP (Serves Four)

Halve 4 oz. of green or black grapes and remove seeds. Halve 12 canned cherries and remove stones. Cut the tops off four large oranges about a quarter of the way down. Loosen flesh by cutting with a sharp knife, then remove carefully with a spoon. Cut edges of orange cups into points with kitchen scissors. Chop up orange flesh and mix with grapes and cherries. Return to orange cups and sprinkle with Sabra liqueur. Top each with an orange slice and lightly chill.

CODFISH FILLET BOCALAO

Deep dish seafood

All-in-one casseroles

Do you remember those wonderfully good, all-in-one casseroles that Mother used to make? She served them frequently because it saved time for other duties, and because they were economical but fed the family well.

This meal-in-a-dish features cod or other thick fish fillets which are in plentiful supply either fresh or frozen. Fishery products have so much to offer with an abundance of high-quality protein and other essential nutrients. They are also low in fat, cholesterol, and calorie content, and the delicate flavor complements other foods.

Fish fillets, in particular, are a good buy to help stretch food budgets because there is practically no waste in these tender sides of the fish cut lengthwise away from the backbone. Fish fillets are ready to use as purchased.

Bacalao is the name of the new NFEC all-in-one casserole. It is an up-to-date version of a recipe long popular in the Mediterranean where fish is such an important part of the economy. The cod in the original recipe is dried in Norway and exported to the Mediterranean where it is made into a popular seafood dish. Potato and onion slices are partially cooked before being added to the fish chunks, green pepper rings, and tomato slices in a baking dish. Garlic, cooked with the onion, and a bay leaf add their own inimitable flavors to the savory combination.

Bake until the fish flakes easily, and the finale is brushing the food with butter or margarine and broiling briefly. Add a crisp salad and dinner is ready to serve. We'll guarantee that Bacalao will delight the family, and chances are it will be one of your serve-often favorites.

BACALAO

- 2 pounds cod or other thick fish fillets, fresh or frozen
- 2½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 3 cups thinly sliced potatoes
- 3 cups thinly sliced onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons olive or cooking oil
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 medium-size green pepper, cut in rings
- 1 medium-size tomato, thinly sliced and cut in half
- 1 bay leaf, broken in half
- 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine (optional)

Thaw frozen fish; cut into large chunks. Combine salt and pepper. Add potatoes to large pan of rapidly boiling water; bring to rapid boil. Drain at once. Cook onion and garlic in oil and butter or margarine until onion is just limp. Layer onion mixture, sliced potatoes, green pepper rings, fish, and tomato into shallow 2-quart baking dish, sprinkling each layer with salt mixture. Add bay leaf. Cover with aluminum foil, crimping it securely to edges of dish. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees F., 1 hour or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. If desired, brush fish and potatoes with melted butter or margarine. Broil about 3 inches from heat 3 to 4 minutes to brown lightly. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Frantic quest for oil changed it

Once sleepy Mexican town is now bustling

VILLAHERMOSA, Mexico (AP) — At midday the town square lay empty under the hot sun. The sluggish brown river beside it stood almost still. Nothing seemed to have changed in the 37 years since Graham Greene wrote about the heat and the lethargy here.

But as the evening sky grew dark, the clouds began to grow an unnatural orange and the twin towers of the Tabasco Cathedral stood out against the flickering light from scores of new oil wells.

For in the last year, engineers for the state-owned oil monopoly, digging deeper than they ever had before, had discovered that this isolated city is sitting above a sea of oil.

Production has started at a feverish pace, even as exploration continues. Nobody knows just how vast the finds will prove to be, but already they are the largest ever in Mexico, once the world's second leading producer of oil.

Although the Mexican government has played down the extent of its discoveries, the finds here in the Tabasco and Chiapas provinces are expected to be just the beginning. The most optimistic guesses are that they may stretch north to the Gulf of Mexico and east to merge with the Guatemalan oil fields.

Officials of the oil monopoly, Pemex, say there may be even more lucrative finds in northern and western Mexico, in the states of Chihuahua, Coahuila, Tamaulipas and Baja California.

"They could change the whole complexion of the world oil market," one foreign oilman said. "Mexico may well be sitting on one of the world's largest deposits of oil and all it needs to do is go after it."

But on the little alleys below Villahermosa's town square, the pale night sky and the distant geysers of flame rushing up from the wells appear to have had little effect on the complexion of life.

Graham Greene described Villahermosa in 1938 as 'Heat and flies, heat and flies.'

Children chase each other through streets that are busier than daytime with strollers. And from the open doors and windows comes the buzz of television sets like cricket song in the night.

Just a half hour's drive from the town, the flames are almost blinding as they thunder 100 feet from the jungle floor, beating against the damp night air.

Beside them, a bustle of sandaled and hard-hatted laborers work around the clock, drilling sometimes as deep as three miles below the earth to tap the oil deposits.

In the last year, some 6,000 oil men and their families have gathered in the Villahermosa area to work on the exploration, drilling and construction of pipelines.

But they have not brought the kind of boom town atmosphere that has accompanied most oil finds around the world.

Since all the work is controlled by the government monopoly, one Pemex official said: "There is no oil rush, no hundreds of prospectors crowding hotels, no company representatives lobbying with the government."

An aide to Tabasco state Governor Mario Trujillo Garcia said he had not authorized the opening of a single new bar in Villahermosa since the new drilling began, and that the few local houses of prostitution were doing a poor business.

The only apparent boom has come in the small village of Reforma near the Cactus oil fields 20 miles from the city.

Here almost every house has become a restaurant, and wooden huts have sprung up on either side of the jungle road to sell everything from beer and tacos to plastic sandals and straw hats.

When Graham Greene visited Villahermosa in 1938 — using it later as the setting for his novel "The Power and the Glory" — he described it simply as "heat and flies, heat and flies."

It was in that same year that Mexico nationalized the British and American oil fields and created Pemex.

But the exploratory wells in Tabasco-Chiapas, first drilled in 1911, had not been greatly productive, and it was not until 1970 that the Mexicans began their own explorations in earnest.

And it was not until new drilling techniques tapped deposits three miles below the swampy jungle floor in 1972 that Pemex officials realized that Mexico was oil-rich.

Drilling began in earnest last year, and production in the region soared from 24,000 barrels a day in May 1973 to more than 240,000 today.

Pemex officials have estimated that the nation's oil production will grow from the current 675,000 barrels a day to more than 800,000 by the end of the year.

"This is just the beginning," Trujillo Garcia said. "The experts of Pemex have not even finished drilling their exploratory wells, and we are profiting now exclusively from their exploratory work."

Gasoline retailers fight back

ATLANTA (UPI)—Georgia's independent service station operators who sell major gasoline brands are an angry and militant group in these uncertain economic times.

A delegation from the Georgia Association of Petroleum Retailers recently took its grievances to Washington, armed with petitions signed by almost 55,000 motorists who agree with the retailers in opposing anything that will add to the price of gasoline at the pump.

The retailers vented most of their anger at the big oil companies whose products they sell, charging the companies are discriminating against them and are guilty of "price gouging.'

Retail gasoline sales for the past several weeks are off an estimated eight to 12 per cent across Georgia and for the dealers in major brands the statistics are even more dreary. Sales for them are down 20 to 25 per cent from figures for last year, and they say the main reason is obvious.

"The buyer is shifting to the other, smaller brands," Jack Houston, director of the retailers association, said in an interview. "For a period of months there has been as much as a 12 per cent (a gallon) difference in price from the major brands."

Houston said his organization asked Congress to investigate how many of the sellers of small, lesser-known brands could stay in business with the price that low. He suggested the major companies could be selling to them "through the back door" at an unreasonably lower price than they are selling to their own retailers.

"There's no way to justify that kind of difference," Houston said. "In the public interest there ought to be some kind of answer. We think there may be some price gouging involved. This is what has happened in this industry in the past and it's probably happening now."

The retailers' spokesman said the big companies selling to dealers of secondary brands of gas is legal but questioned the ethics of the practice. He said gasoline sold to retailers is allocated according to the retailers' sales volume in March 1972, and the price is determined on the basis of what the retailer paid then.

In 1972, Houston said, the major companies were selling their large surplus of gasoline at a greatly reduced price to the retailers of the lesser known brands. And now the companies are doing the same thing, even though there is less gasoline available.

The petitions delivered to Georgia's congressional delegation by Houston and 22 members of the retailers group oppose any additional taxes on gasoline and support mandatory allocations to retailers as the best solution to cutting back on energy consumption.

Houston said without mandatory allocation to retailers, the big oil companies would be free to run small, marginally profitable service stations out of business, or take over the stations as company-owned operations.

H. Frost, vice president of Gulf Oil for its southern region, responded to the petition campaign by saying Gulf's position, "which we believe would serve the best interest of our dealer organization and the ultimate consumer, is to eliminate all controls and allocations. Supporting mandatory allocation is clearly not in the best interest of Gulf dealers."

Houston said if the average price of gasoline at the pump should go to 65-70 cents a gallon —a possibility if a heavy tax is added in an effort to cut consumption — "it will eliminate 40 per cent of the 200,000 gasoline dealers in this country.

"These people will simply not be able to stay in business," he said. "And it does not make sense to put that burden on the American people. There's no way to predict what the 'ripple effect' of that would be on the economy."

Ali-Wepner just a show

Don Bradley
Progress-Bulletin Staff Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — If heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali had taken his fight against Chuck Wepner seriously, he probably could have ended it in a few rounds. But winning as expeditiously as possible no longer is the name of the game in boxing.

The name of the game Monday night was putting on as much of a machismo show as possible for people who for some reason want to pay a lot of money to watch it on theater television.

Wepner, who showed an awesome amount of courage for his $100,000 moment in the limelight, probably illuminated the situation in the post-fight interview when he said Ali only fought 30 to 40 seconds a round.

Ali leaned on the ropes, covered up, allowed himself to be pummeled with body blows that did no damage. He ran out the string.

Without suggesting that the fight was fixed, one has to wonder how close the heavyweight boxing championship came to professional wrestling.

It was not until Ali went down in the ninth round that he got mad and started fighting. Whether it was a real knockdown, as the referee contended, or whether Wepner was standing on Ali's foot, as the champion contended, Muhammad still was down with a look of amazement in his eyes.

At that point, he began taking himself seriously and cut Wepner to pieces. In the 15th round, Ali used the challenger as a punching bag, and suddenly it was over with Wepner a battered hulk.

Boxing has its history of "bum of the month" clubs. The difference lies in what you can do with your bum. In the old days, the champion would pad his record and his pocketbook by taking on fellows of questionable ability. But in those days the champ usually dispatched the chump as quickly as possible.

Wepner, for all his courage, was used as a toy for the machismo machine. Ali played with him the way a cat plays with a mouse before killing it. He hit Wepner, and hit him hard, whenever he pleased. His lefts were devastating. It was not a pleasant sight and it did not qualify as sport. It was a show, purely and simply—a method of making money.

The whole pre-fight promotion pointed to the kind of travesty witnessed by two-thirds of a full house at Cleveland Coliseum. At the weigh-in ceremony Sunday, Ali came into the room before the live network telecast began and warmed up his act. He got into the racism bit and the machismo bit and the joking bit.

Then he was ushered out and brought in again when the cameras were on—perhaps so the audience would think it was real. He went through the same routine he had just rehearsed.

Howard Cosell, a man who stuck by Ali when he was unjustly robbed of his title and helped to promote Ali's return to the top, told his audience: "Same old act."

Then Cosell got on an airplane and went back to New York. He didn't stay for the unworthy performance Monday night. For that, one must admire Cosell.

After the fight, Ali returned to his routine of trying to whip up a racial frenzy. This time he used referee Tony Perez. It was unhandy that Perez was Puerto Rican, so Ali said Perez was trying to act like a white man by not stopping Wepner from rabbit punching. He called Perez a "racism referee," a "dirty dog" and a dirty referee.

Ali also said he wanted to fight Joe Bugner of England in about eight weeks. He said he would give Frazier a chance at the title for $10 million or George Foreman a rematch for $8 million. No mention was made of the fact that Ali had announced in New York several weeks ago that his winnings from now on would go to charity.

By Tuesday, the tune had changed and both Ali and Dundee indicated the champion might go next for a big fight with Foreman or Frazier.

There probably will again be a real fight between Ali and Foreman or Frazier. Either man would have had an excellent chance of beating Ali Monday night if Ali had toyed with him the way he toyed with Wepner.

The fact that the fight went 15 rounds and that both men were exhausted did not turn it into a real contest.

Promoter Don King said after it was over: "I'm so thankful people got their money's worth."

If that is what they were paying for—a machismo show and an exercise in butchery—then they did get their money's worth.

So do spectators at a pro wrestling match.

Ali-Wepner bout like a Brooks script

To those who saw the Ali-Wepner fight, either at the site or on closed circuit television, Monday night, it may have been a bloody, gruesome sight.

But in the P-B newsroom, reading the round-by-round dispatches as they came over the Associated Press wire, an entirely different picture was presented, especially in the early rounds.

It was funny, often hilarious. One would have thought it was a Mel Brooks (Young Frankenstein, Blazing Saddles, etc.) script.

Picture Gene Wilder and Kenny Mars (or any of Brooks' talented stock players) as the protagonists in the following scenes (The only liberty taken with the original AP copy was to change past tense to present tense)

Wepner does all the punching. Ali complains to the referee that he has been hit with a rabbit punch behind the neck.

Wepner hits Ali with a rabbit punch and Ali reponds with nine blows to Wepner's neck (Referee separates fighters and warns Ali. Also warns Wepner for rabbit punching).

ROUND TWO: (Before round starts, referee goes to both corners to warn against rabbit punching) Round begins and Ali refuses to punch, talking to Wepner daring him to hit. Wepner walks to center of ring. Ali pursues and hits Wepner behind the neck twice.

ROUND THREE: Ali lands 10 or 12 left jabs to Wepner's face in the first minute of the round. Wepner cannot get to Ali. Ali goes to ropes. Wepner tries to get to Ali and Ali complains of foul tactics (No foul blows are apparent).

Tit for tat

ROUND FOUR: Ali lands some jabs as the round begins then goes to ropes where Wepner lands six shots to body. Ali pushes him away and referee again warns Wepner for hitting behind the head. First half of round is very slow. With Ali in close, Wepner lands a right hand behind Ali's head. Ali complains to referee and then lands two left-handed rabbit punches himself.

ROUND FIVE: (Before the round starts, referee warns both fighters about rabbit punches) Ali is dancing in the final minute as Wepner plods after him.

ROUND EIGHT: Ali dances around the ring and Wepner stands in center and motions Ali to come to him, but Ali is content with occasional jab and some fancy footwork.

Ali glances up to watch himself on the TV screen while dancing around the ring.

ROUND 11: (Round follows pattern of the preceeding ones with Wepner chasing Ali and occasionally throwing some body punches.)

ROUND 12: Wepner is wild with a left and almost falls down. As round ends, Wepner waves to crowd and is cheered.

ROUND 15: Ali knocks Wepner down and when count reaches eight, referee signals the fight is over. Ali immediately falls to floor of ring near his corner. It is not apparent what has happened, but Ali appears groggy after he gets up.

At that point you knew Mel Brooks wasn't scripting the scenario. Brooks would have had Ali fall to the canvas as soon as Wepner hit the deck and the referee would have counted them both out.

Wooden, Crum clash in semis

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Coaches John Wooden, the teacher, and Denny Crum, the pupil, know each other well and renew acquaintances when UCLA meets Louisville in Saturday's NCAA Championship semifinal basketball game.

"I've often said that in coaching, as in other things, it isn't as much fun to play against one of your ex-players or former assistants because someone has to lose," commented Wooden, the 64-year-old mentor who is coaching his 40th season.

His UCLA clubs have set tremendous collegiate records— nine NCAA titles including seven in a row 1967-73 and an 88-game winning streak.

Crum was part of that success. He played for Wooden in the late 50s, coached the Bruin freshman two seasons and then came back as the chief assistant to his former coach.

He helped recruit such stars as Sidney Wicks, Curtis Rowe and Bill Walton.

Crum became Louisville coach in 1971 and that first season he ran up against his old coach when his club, with Jim Price the star, fell to UCLA 96-77 in a semifinal game in the NCAA national tournament.

This Saturday in San Diego, it will be Louisville vs. UCLA again and Kentucky vs. Syracuse.

"I want to see Denny do well, very well," commented Wooden. "But I don't want to see it happen at our expense and I don't doubt that Denny feels the same way.

"From what I can gather, Denny has stuck close to our high post offense. He's done an excellent job. I know he's added some of his own ideas...you know you can take almost anything and improve it by adding your own ideas and I think he has done that."

Crum says he feels about the same way facing UCLA as he would any other club "with a couple of exceptions." He explained:

"We like to play anyone who is very close personally and where you are professionally involved. You do everything to try to beat them."

One thing on which there is no doubt—the clubs use about the same warm-up drills. Bill Bunton, the only Louisville player still on the squad who was in Los Angeles for the 1972 loss, commented, "Watching them practice, I thought they were us."

Crum adds that his current team has more depth than his 1971-72 club.

"I have felt and I believe Denny also feels that defense wins championships," Wooden said. "So he must have a fine defense. His teams seems to be very quick, very fast. Indications are it's the type of team that might give us trouble like Arizona State did. We handled them (ASU) but stylewise they might be somewhat similar."

UCLA, voted No. 1 in The Associated Press poll, has compiled a 26-3 record while Louisville, No. 4, is 27-2.

Williams says Angels' bullpen is much better

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — California Angels manager Dick Williams, who has said his team will have a winning record and be a contender, has added a new prediction.

"If the bull pen was close to zero last year, it will be 100 per cent improved this year," he said Tuesday after a six-run seventh inning carried the Angels to an 8-5 exhibition victory over Chicago.

It hardly seems possible, but Williams is talking about the famed "Arson Squad" which received most of the credit for last year's 68-94 record, good for last place in the American League West.

Night after night at Anaheim Stadium last year the Angels took an early lead, the visiting team rallied, and the call went to the bull pen. Most of the time the firemen threw gasoline on the flames.

But now Williams says he likes what he's seen this spring. Steve Blateric, Gary Ryerson and Chuck Hockenberry, all newcomers, are unscored upon in 7, 4 1-3 and 4 innings respectively. Another newcomer, Mickey Scott, has yielded one earned run in nine innings while Ed Figueroa, a returnee, has given up just one in eight.

Williams, who has 14 relief pitchers vying for five jobs, originally had told Figueroa and 39-year-old veteran Orlando Pena that they had made the squad. Now he says he's changed his mind.

"I haven't told anyone he has a job," Williams said, adding that there have been too many pleasant surprises.

Scott, Pena, Charlie Hudson and Dick Selma threw two innings each and Ryerson one inning against the Cubs Tuesday.

The Cubs suffered their fifth successive Cactus League loss despite two homers by Rick Monday and one by Steve Swisher.

The Angels, trailing 4-2, went ahead in the seventh on the rally that included a double by Denny Doyle and singles by Jerry Remy, Mickey Rivers, Winston Llenas and Dave Chalk.

LEANING ON SHOULDER

Golden State's Phil Smith uses a hand on the shoulders of the Lakers' Cazzie Russell as he drives for a basket.

Lakers can't run with Warriors

OAKLAND (AP) — "When you get into a running game with the Warriors, you don't have a chance," conceded Coach Bill Sharman of the Los Angeles Lakers.

Al Attles' Golden State Warriors, two days after clinching the Pacific Division championship, left the Lakers in the dust and ran to a 139-122 National Basketball Association victory.

"They ran us off the court in Los Angeles last week. Al reminded us of that," said Golden State rookie Phil Smith, who scored 20 points Tuesday night.

But when the Warriors lost 111-95 to the last place Lakers on March 16 at The Forum, they gave Rick Barry a night off to rest a sprained ankle. Barry scored 40 points in the final game of the season between the teams, making 17 of 26 field goal attempts before leaving with 1:17 left in the third period.

"Our object has always been to get as many players into a game as possible. I'm not interested in how many points I score," said Barry, who also had six assists and eight steals in his 35 minutes of play.

All 12 Warriors got in on the scoring, with Keith Wilkes' 21 points the second high individual total.

"Al has them running well and going to their strengths— Rick and Keith," said Cazzie Russell, the former Warrior who tallied 26 points for the Lakers.

Russell made 12 of 18 field goal tries, and the Lakers shot 53 per cent as a team. But the Warriors hit at a 55 per cent clip and got off 111 shots to the Lakers' 88 by taking advantage of 25 steals.

"I think we were playing a lot looser after clinching the championship," said Smith.

"They believe in themselves," said Sharman. "Early in the season, I thought they were lucky to be winning. Now, they're not only lucky, they're good."

Both teams played mostly second stringers through the final period, after the Warriors' lead reached 29 points. The Lakers are in Seattle to play the Sonics tonight, the Warriors' next game is here Thursday night against Kansas City-Omaha.

The victory was the Warriors' seventh in their last nine games, and they're in a battle with Chicago and Kansas City-Omaha of the Midwest Division for the $40,000 in extra prize money going to the Western Conference team with the best regular season record.

Elks Tourney resumes

After a day's delay because of rain, the 40th annual Pomona Elks Baseball Tournament resumed this morning.

Sixteen varsity teams are still in action with eight bidding for the championship and the other eight playing in the consolation bracket.

Two championship semifinal games are slated for 7 p.m. this evening at Ralph Welch Park. The winners of this afternoon's Compton-Upland and Edgewood-Workman games will play on the south diamond while the winners from the Northview-Chaffey and Anaheim-Los Altos contests meet on the north field.

Claremont, Damien, Bonita, Alta Loma, La Puente, Fontana, Glendora and Corona del Mar are the teams playing for consolation honors.

The championship game is slated for 7 p.m. Thursday following an 1:30 p.m. third place game and 4 p.m. consolation championship contest.

Action also resumes today in the junior varsity tournament with Monrovia, Claremont, Los Altos, Bonita, Edgewood, Upland, Covina and Chino still in the running for the title.

The JV championship game is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. on Thursday.

Bob Seagren to get honors from MSAC

World record holder Bob Seagren will be inducted into the Hall of Fame and the greatest pole vault field ever assembled at the Mt. San Antonio Relays will make an assault on the 18-foot barrier on Saturday, April 26 at MSAC.

That, and other attractions, will highlight the 17th edition of the largest track and field meet in the west.

More than 3,000 athletes are expected to compete in more than 240 events in the three-day spikefest.

Seagren, the current world record holder at 18-feet, 5¾ inches, will join Ralph Boston and Bill Dellinger in the Mt. San Antonio Relays Hall of Fame at induction ceremonies April 26. Boston, world record holder in the long jump, and Dellinger, head track coach at the University of Oregon, were inducted into the Hall of Fame last year.

Seagren's induction will precede vaulting competition, which is scheduled to begin at 3 p.m. on April 26.

Early entries in a top flight field, include Mike Tully and Ron Mooers of UCLA, Kjell Isaksson and Vic Dias of the Beverly Hills Striders and Dan Ripley of San Jose State university.

All have cleared 17-6 this year, and Isaksson, the flying Swede, has vowed to surmount 18-feet, according to Beverly Hills Striders Coach Pete Peterson. Isaksson owns the Relays' pole vault record of 17-7½, set in 1972.

Isaksson is expected to be fully recovered from an Achilles Tendon injury which slowed him down early in the season.

Seagren, 28, was born, reared and learned to vault in Pomona. He is an alumnus of Pomona High, MSAC and USC.

He earned world fame in track and field by winning a gold medal at the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City, a silver medal in the 1972 Olympics with identical vaults of 17-8½.

Seagren has set eight world indoor records and six world outdoor marks and he was the first vaulter over 17-feet indoors. His 17-8 indoors is the third highest by an American ever.

Expansion boom is going bust

(Editor's note: This is the first of a three-part series by the Associated Press concerning expansion in professional sports)

NEW YORK (AP) — People used to say the sports expansion boom would end when it ran out of cities. But a funny thing is happening on the way to Europe, the Orient and Smallville, USA: The boom is going bust.

For the most part, the incredible days of pro sports expansion appear over. Some teams may even disappear in the near future, victims of the deterorating economy, dilution and overexposure.

In the days before Wall St. replaced Flatbush Ave. as the capital of the sports world, there were fewer leagues, fewer teams and fewer problems. Ownership and profit margins were as constant as the New York Yankees winning the World Series.

But times have changed. The Yankees haven't won a World Series since 1962 and teams that were just starting or didn't exist then now own "world" titles. The Mets won the World Series in 1969, Milwaukee won the National Basketball Association title in 1971 and Philadelphia of the National Hockey League won a Stanley Cup in 1974.

Leagues that didn't exist in 1962—the American Basketball Association, World Hockey Association and World Football League to name only a few — have been crowning champions and losing money.

Since 1961 pro football has increased from 14 to 38 teams, hockey from 6 to 32, basketball from 9 to 28 and baseball from 16 to 24. And team sports have sprung up in tennis, soccer, track, lacrosse, boxing and volleyball, reflecting the interest in making a fast buck.

But what is becoming undeniably clear is that there is only so much gold in them thar hills. And the inflationary rush of new teams and leagues combined with a recession has left some of these teams and leagues steeped in debt.

Teams have folded in the ABA, the WHA, and in World Team Tennis. One league, the WFL, almost folded after losing $20 million in its first season. World Team Boxing, which said it would have 48 teams, began with four and has not been heard from since its first week when it suspended three of its four teams for non-payment of bills.

Consolidation may also be the case in the ABA, another league that has been bathing in red ink since its inception. League president John Y. Brown advocates trimming the fat from the 10-team league by axing its weak sisters, Memphis and San Diego.

"We're in the entertainment business," Brown says. "And people just won't pay to see inferior products. Money is tight and you can't expect people to pay and see us beat Memphis by 50 points."

In the boom of the '60s the key word was expansion. But with the threatened bust of the '70s the password may be contraction as teams and leagues grapple for a profitable share of a very competitive-and shrinking-sports dollar.

"I think you will see teams disappearing in the near future," says baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. "There has been too great overexpansion of sports."

Kings begin selling Stanley Cup tickets

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Kings start selling National Hockey League playoff tickets today at the Forum, their home ice.

Strips of tickets, priced from $90 to $178, will include all 14 potential playoff games. The sale at the Forum will continue through March 31.

Anticipating the regular-season outcome, the Kings figure unofficially they will open the Stanley Cup series at the Forum against Toronto on April 8. The next game would be April 10 in Toronto and the third, if necessary, would be at the Forum on April 12.

The winner would go into the quarter-finals with semi-finals and final rounds also scheduled and included in the ticket strips. Individual tickets for the first round go on sale April 1.

Valley junior colleges — Mt. San Antonio, Chaffey and Citrus — enter the Southern California Relays at El Camino College in Torrance Thursday, beginning a full weekend of competition.

MSAC and Chaffey will also compete in Saturday's San Jose Relays at San Jose City College.

MSAC will enter a large contingent of athletes in both meets, with 30 Mounties scheduled to participate at El Camino and 18 at San Jose.

MSAC's 440, 880 and mile relay teams are scheduled to get a good workout. The 440 foursome of Dwight Owens, Ricky Jackson, John Houston and Steve Lebovitz clocked 42.1 seconds last Friday to equal the best time in Southern California this season.

Don Reeves will join Jackson, Houston, and Lebovitz for the 880 relay and Houston will team with Dave Kellogg, Steve Simmons and Willie Davis for the mile relay. MSAC's best in the 880 this year is 1:29.6. Their best clocking in the mile is 3:19.4.

The shuttle hurdle relay team of Owens, Andre Hall, Willie Daniels and Charles Stewart will be out to eclipse the school record time of 59.7 seconds. They have the fastest time in the southland so far this season with 1.5.

In the field events, Vic Glover's unbeaten streak in the javelin will be tested in both meets. Glover threw the spear 190-3½ last week — his best ever.

In the triple jump Ehricke Scott (47-9½) and Stan Bland (48 feet last year) will be entered and in the pole vault Walt Scorggy and Kevin French will try to go over 14-6 for the first time this season.

Pomona soccer all-stars play Germans to 3-3 tie

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

International goodwill and soccer were blended together Wednesday night in a special match held at Pomona College.

And just as it should be in situations like this, everyone came out a winner.

A group of Pomona Valley All Star youths battled the visiting team from Stadt, Germany, to a 3-3 tie before several hundred spectators.

Stadt was a prohibitive favorite before the start of the match after destroying three similar All Star clubs by a combined 23-3 score.

Yet Adrian Mercado, coach of the local stars, was optimistic before the match.

"Talent-wise, I think we are equal with them," Mercado stated. "Where they have the big advantage is the fact they have played together as a club for several years while our boys have been together for only a week."

Another big difference was in the press clippings of the two, with many of the Pomona Stars being apprehensive before the start of the game.

Ron Thomas provided a relaxer better than any tranquilizer on the market when the Pomona College student banged in the first goal of the game with about five minutes elapsed.

Thomas, coming up from his fullback position, took a pass from Bobby Poaster and drilled the ball into the left side of the net.

Poaster, a Claremont Men's College student, actually controlled the tempo of the game from his midfield spot in the opening half, with his continuous aggressive style.

After Guenter Knop tied the score on a pass from Uwe Grodotcki, Poaster fed Alberto Contreras with a beautiful pass in front of the goal mouth to give the locals a 2-1 halftime advantage.

The suddenly vincible Germans gained the upper hand quickly in the second half with Wolfgang Lange and Care Loeden blasting goals past Ganesha High's Edwin Lopez, in goal for Pomona.

With about five minutes to play, Lopez' teammate at Ganesha, Dave Segura, tied things up with a rebound goal, following his own miss on an indirect free kick.

Mercado had great priase afterwards for all his players and especially some nice words for goalkeeper Lopez.

"He didn't play in goal this year at school, but I had seen him there last season in a soccer clinic and liked what I saw."

Following a farewell luncheon today, the Stadt team headed back home with a fine record, an excellent team, and many friends to correspond with.

Pincay hopes to be racing on April 2

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Laffit Pincay Jr. says he expects to begin exercising horses Thursday and to resume racing next Wednesday, April 2, following hospitalization for blood tests.

Pincay, three time winner of the Eclipse Award, said he entered the hospital because "I started feeling that something was wrong last January. I just didn't feel like myself. I felt weak."

But the 28 year-old Panamanian said Tuesday from his hospital room at UCLA Medical Center that "everything is fine."

"The doctors say it was a parasite virus. They say that my blood count looks good now and everything is fine. There is no cure for it. Your body just has to throw it off by itself."

Pincay said his broken collarbone is also healed. He has scheduled an appointment today with Dr. Robert Kerlan to examine the collarbone and get medical permission to resume exercising horses.

He had been sidelined from racing since he broke the collarbone in a spill last March 5 at Santa Anita. His absense has enabled Bill Shoemaker to tie Pincay for the leadership in victories at the meeting with 76.

Pincay has won the Eclipse Award three times. The Thoroughbred Racing Association presents it each year to the person it considers the top jockey in the nation.

Foolish Pleasure is heavy choice

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Reno oddsmakers today shaved the price on Kentucky Derby future book favorite Foolish Pleasure to 5-2 following brisk wagering on the classy 3-year-old colt.

The Reno Turt Club said the new betting line on Foolish Pleasure, who opened at 3-1, made the Flamingo Stakes winner one of the most solid choices in future book history.

Price Thou Art remained at 6-1 but took over lone possession of second choice from L'Enjoleur who slipped to 8-1 following a dismall showing in the Fountain of Youth Stakes last weekend in Florida.

Master Derby winner of the Fountain of Youth, fell from 15-1 to 10-1.

Chino leagues hold tryouts

Boys, ages 13-14, are invited to attend the Pony League tryouts while boys, ages 15-16, are welcome to register for the Colt League.

Chaffey's Lawrence tops in decathlon

John Lawrence led a near-sweep by Chaffey College in the first annual Southern California junior college decathlon championships at Mt. San Antonio College Tuesday afternoon.

Lawrence was first with 6126 points. Chaffey's Gary Wise, who led the competition with 3,184 points after the first day, finished second with 5,879, and Chaffey's Mike Myers was third with 5,606.

MSAC's Walt Scorggy, a surprise entry, took fourth place with 5,584 points in his first decathlon. Jeff Ferguson of Ventura was fifth with 5,547 points.

Sixteen athletes competed in the two-day meet. The top 10 finishers qualify for the state decathlon championships at Hancock College in Santa Maria in June.

Lawrence turned in victories in the discus and the 110 meter high hurdles in the Tuesday's rain-dampened finals. He tossed the discus 107-feet, 9½ inches and ran a deadheat in the hurdles with Hancock's Dani Eitelberg. Both clocked 16.1 seconds.

Eitelberg was second to Wise after the first day of competition with 3,181 points.

Citrus takes pair in Cuesta tourney

Citrus College will be looking for its 20th victory of the season today when it plays host Cuesta in the six-team round robin Cuesta JC baseball Tournament at San Luis Obispo.

The Owls claimed victories 18 and 19 Tuesday with one-sided decisions over West Hills, 8-1, and Grossmont, 10-1.

John Field (4-0) gained his fourth win in a row in the first game, allowing only two hits, while striking out three and walking one. Ron Walton (6-2) earned the victory in the second game with a six-hitter, striking out six and walking only one batter.

The big hitters for the Owls were Fran Convertino who went for five-for-nine with two doubles and a home run and Gary Bach who went five-for-six. John Bowman hit a three-run homer in the third inning of the first game to give Field all the runs he would need.

Greg Johnston extended his hitting streak to 19 games with a single in each contest.

Paciorek's hot bat tough to keep out

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — This may not be the year that Tom Paciorek finally breaks into the Los Angeles Dodgers' lineup, but the 28-year-old outfielder is making it hard to keep him out.

The Detroit native lashed his third home run of the spring Tuesday during a 7-2 exhibition victory over St. Louis aided by Cardinal catcher Ted Simmons' two-run throwing error.

"He's swinging the bat as well as I've seen him," Dodger manager Walter Alston said later.

That means the 6-foot-4 right-handed hitter is knocking on the door to break into the outfield which includes Bill Buckner in left, Jimmy Wynn in center and Willie Crawford and Joe Ferguson in right.

"He's playing the outfield well," Alston said. "He can play any one of the three positions, and he can help us at first base, too."

Paciorek hit .240 with the Dodgers in a reserve role last year, his third full season with the club. But before that he had knocked in 100 runs a year for three straight years at the Dodgers' farm club in the Pacific Coast League.

He says he's through making requests to play or be traded. "I'm here to work hard this spring, get into the best shape I possibly can and contribute to the team. So far, at least, it's paying off."

Tuesday he helped the Dodgers slug 13 hits as they boosted their spring record to 12-5.

"We're an offensive-minded club now, a lot different than in past years," said third baseman Ron Cey, who had two hits Tuesday giving him 12 for the spring including eight for extra bases.

Los Angeles took a 1-0 lead in the second inning and threatened again with Steve Garvey at third base and Cey on second in the fourth.

While Bill Russell was being issued an intentional walk, Simmons rifled a throw past third base and Garvey and Cey crossed the plate for the 3-0 margin.

Los Angeles rookie pitchers Eddie Solomon and Stan Wall scattered seven Cardinal hits, including a double and two singles by Ed Brinkman.

Four Dodger hits against former teammate Claude Osteen and reliever Elias Sosa were for extra bases. The loss dropped St. Louis' spring record to 8-10.

Allen wants to play again for Chicago

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Pa. (AP) — Spring is blooming and baseball slugger Dick Allen is beginning to smell the horsehides.

No, not the thoroughbreds he breeds on a farm in Perkasie, Pa., but the balls being batted around by players in Florida.

"I'm available and I want to play baseball," Allen told the Philadelphia Inquirer at Keystone Race Track here Tuesday. "I'm in good shape. I could be ready to play in five days to a week."

Allen, 32, left the Chicago White Sox in early September and said he was retiring. But he never filed the official papers and the White Sox traded him to Atlanta in the off-season.

But the slugging first baseman said he still considers himself the property of the White Sox "until I get a letter from (club President) John Allyn telling me they don't want me."

Allyn, reached in Sarasota, Fla., said "There is nothing that can be done about Dick Allen's situation. His contract belongs to the Braves. We are outside of the matter completely."

But in the interview Tuesday, Allen reiterated he did not want to play in Atlanta.

"It's nothing personal. I wouldn't do Atlanta any good,' he insisted. "They want me to be another (Henry) Aaron, a drawing card. I'm not another Aaron. They want to make money. I want to win as much as I want to make money."

The Braves, who paid $5,000 to obtain Allen's contract, responded to the controversial slugger's comments early today.

"I'm pleased that Dick Allen has finally come out and made his thoughts public," said a spokesman for Atlanta General Manager Eddie Robinson.

"There is no question that his contract belongs to the Braves. But if it's necessary for the White Sox to verify that fact, I'm sure that confirmation will be forthcoming," he said.

For the first time, Allen explained his "retirement" last summer.

"I was hurting. My back was killing me," he said. "I told the P.R. man I was retiring. That was the only way...I never officially retired.

"I'd love to play," he continued. "But at the same time, I'm not going to beg for a job."

Allen, who started with the Philadelphia Phillies in 1964 and has also played for St. Louis and Los Angeles, said he was confused by the repeated trades.

"They trade a man without ever telling him. You don't even have time to think about it," he charged.

La Verne opens tourney by defeating host UNLV

LAS VEGAS — La Verne College's baseball team won its opening round game in the Las Vegas Tournament, 9-6, over host University of Nevada, Las Vegas Tuesday.

The game was the only one of the first three on the schedule that was actually played. Because of 40 mph winds, the contests between UCSB and the Air Force Academy and California-Oregon St. were postponed until today.

Cal was slated to play La Verne at 1 p.m. and would have to make up the other game in addition.

Dan Quisenberry (4-3) went all the way for the Leopards who, at 8-7, climbed over the .500 mark. Quisenberry allowed 15 hits but threw only 122 pitches while striking out six and walking two.

Four La Verne errors helped the Rebels who meet Air Force Academy tonight at 8 p.m.

Designated hitter Ralph Valadez drove in three of the Leopards' runs with a double, single and sacrifice fly.

The host school jumped on Quisenberry for two runs on three hits including Tim Culligan's triple in the first inning.

The Leos came back with a run in the second on singles by Nick Leyva, Paul Fleming and Wayne Redfearn which loaded the bases with nobody out. Leyva scored on Valadez' sacrifice fly, but Rich Fielder forced Redfearn at second and Jim Sherman popped out to retire the side.

UNLV came right back with a run of its own in the last of the second to take a 3-1 lead.

With two out in the third inning and Art Sanchez on base via a walk, Dan Graham doubled. But Sanchez was thrown out at the plate trying to score. Graham went to third on the throw.

Leyva hit a fly ball to centerfield that was dropped and Graham scored to cut the lead to 3-2.

The Leopards took a 5-3 lead in the top of the fourth. Successive two-out singles by Fielder, Sherman, Mike Pagnotta and Sanchez plus a wild pitch by losing hurlder Mike Whitemaine gave the Leos a three-run inning.

But the Rebels came right back to score three times themselves in the last of the fourth. Three hits, a walk and Redfearn's error accounted for the damage and it was 6-5, UNLV.

La Verne tied the score in the fifth inning when Fleming was hit by a pitch and Valadez doubled him home.

What turned out to be the winning run scored in the sixth and caused an argument. Sanchez smashed a ball that appeared to hit inside the park and bounce over the right centerfield fence. But the umpires ruled it a home run.

The Leos scored insurance runs in the seventh and ninth. Fleming's single, a walk to Redfearn and Fielder's hit accounted for a run in the seventh.

In the ninth, Leyva walked and moved to second as Redfearn grounded out. Valadez promptly brought him in with a single.

Dr. Zold travels with U.S. fencers

Dr. Francis Zold of Claremont has been appointed by the International Committee of the Amateur Fencers League of America to serve as assistant chief of mission on the United States team at the Junior World Fencing Championships to be held Friday through Monday at Mexico City.

It will be the sixth time Dr. Zold has accompanied the team. He was the Junior Olympic coach in 1971, 1972 and 1973, and served as manager of the team in 1973 and 1974.

Dr. Zold was a prominent figure in European fencing before leaving Budapest during Hungary's revolution. Since 1958 he has been a professional fencing master in the Southern California area.

He is now fencing master at the Claremont Colleges, at the West End Fencing Club, and at USC.

His West End Fencing Club has won the women's national title once, taken second place twice, and placed third once. His college teams have won the Pacific Coast College Championships in women's foil three times.

One of Dr. Zold's students, Sheila Armstrong of Upland, is now ranked as one of the top three women fencers in the United States.

Tuborg 400 set for June 8 at Riverside

RIVERSIDE — The Tuborg 400, the second of two stock car road races held each year at Riverside International Raceway, has been set for June 8 this summer.

The $80,000 event, now in its sixth year on the NASCAR Grand National racing schedule, will feature most of the top names in stock car racing with entries expected from Richard Petty, Bobby Allison, Cale Yarborough and Benny Parsons.

RIR president Les Richter has announced that both the Tuborg 400 and its sportsman companion event, the California 100, will be held on the same day this year. The Cal 100 will begin at 11 a.m. June 8 and will be followed at 1 p.m. by the Tuborg 400.

Practice and qualifying for the California 100, one of the major West Coast events for sportsman class drivers, will be held on Sunday, June 1, with additional practice sessions Saturday before the race.

The Grand National cars begin practicing Thursday, June 5, with qualifying to follow Friday and Saturday. The fastest 35 Grand National cars will start the Tuborg 400 while 40 starting spots are open for the Cal 100.

Tickets for the weekend are now on sale at all Ticketron outlets, Wallich's Music City Stores and at the Raceway.

Caruthers enters O.S. midget race

SAN BERNARDINO — Fresh from winning the USAC National Championship Midget race in Phoenix, Ariz., Jimmy Caruthers of Anaheim, 1970 USAC National Midget driving champion has entered this Saturday night's 100-lap USAC Midget race at the Orange Show Speedway in San Bernardino.

Racing Director J. C. Agajanian announced that the 30-year-old driver had joined the all-star field for this Saturday's eight-event KPRO sweepstakes on the ¼-mile paved oval. Racing starts at 8:30 p.m., preceded by time trials at 7 p.m.

Last year was Caruthers' finest in racing; he finished second to Indianapolis-500-winner Johnny Rutherford in the 500-mile race at Pocono, Pa., and was fourth in the California 500 at Ontario. He finished the season ranked fifth in USAC Championship division point standings, and won over $100,000 in prize money.

But just before Christmas he started having back pains and went to the doctor. He was found to have a cancerous tumor around part of his heart. Since that time he has been undergoing cobalt treatment.

Doctors and USAC officials gave him permission to race in mid-February, and he promptly finished third in a 100-lap race staged by Agajanian in San Jose. He then qualified for the California 500 and was running in the top ten when engine trouble forced him out. His Phoenix win was his 20th USAC career midget victory.

He'll pilot the same Volkswagen-powered midget that he won with in Phoenix. It is owned by his father, Doug Caruthers of Anaheim, a veteran midget-car owner.

The race originally was slated for the night before the California 500, but was called off by rain. This gave Caruthers a chance to compete.

Topping the evening's racing will be the 20-car, 100-lap feature race. Other racing includes a 12-lap semi-final, four 10-round heat races, and the traditional four-lap trophy dash, which kicks things off at 8:30 p.m.

Gates open at 6 p.m. when 10,000 general admission seats go on sale priced at $5 for adults, $3 for juniors 13-17, and $1 for kids 8-12. Children under eight years of age are free, as is paved parking on the Orange Show grounds.

High school motorsports grows

Last November, some 330 riders from all over California competed at Saddleback Park in the very first State High School Motocross Championship under the banner of the Scholastic Association of Motorsports (S.A.M.)

The event was quite successful, but many people, including riders, parents, and spectators, all had the same question.

WHAT IS S.A.M.?

S.A.M., under the direction of Jim Manning and Dick DiGiorgio, was developed as a major body for high school riders, in which, they may ride in races with national recognition plus receive discounts through dealers and shops. S.A.M. is trying to be as a motorcycle association for high school students, as the A.M.A is for the professional competitors.

As Manning states, "We are trying to enable the high school rider to compete on a level in which the other high school sports have had an opportunity to compete on for many years." Manning went on to say, "In S.A.M., we will also try to give the high school rider the best possible discounts on the rider's motorcycle and parts, plus give the rider the closest possible facility for him to compete. We are trying to cut down the travel expense on the high school rider by having a track, which is centralized, running S.A.M. events."

Championships have been set up so that riders can qualify at a local racetrack, and then compete in the seasonal California State Championships at the big motocross courses throughout California.

The first championship at Saddleback was an individual event, with riders competing just against each other, however, plans are now being made to also have high school team events as well as individual competition. The time between the Saddleback championships (November) and the first qualifiers for the Super Bowl (February) was for the high school advisors and students to start getting their clubs and teams set up for the 1975 competition. Then when the qualifiers begin in February, each school can get their team and riders together each week for the local competition.

A Championship will then be held in late May, before graduation, at one of the bigger motocross facilities to determine the California State Team Champion. The event will set up with Mini, 100, 125, 250, and Open engine classes, and Beginner, Junior, and Expert riding classifications. Each school will then be able to have one rider in each engine and rider classification. A possible 15 riders may be able to compete from each school. A maximum of 15 riders from each school will be allowed, however, if a school does not have a rider in every classification, it can enter two riders in one class. But, once again, that will only be if the school does not have the classes filled, and does not have 15 riders.

Many different motocross tracks are now planning on or are already running S.A.M. motocross qualifiers, such as, OCIR, Ascot Park, Carlsbad, Indian Dunes, Antelope Valley Fairgrounds, and the Ontario Motor Speedway. These tracks will then supply the local riders with facilities to qualify for the state championships.

OCIR, Ascot Park, and Carlsbad are now holding weekly qualifiers on Saturday, respective counties (OCIR-Orange, Ascot-Los Angeles, Carlsbad-San Diego and Imperial). Indian Dunes, which will cover Ventura, Kern, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo, and part of Los Angeles Counties, will begin weekly qualifiers on Sturday, March 1st. The Antelope Valley Fairgrounds will open on February 22nd with its first qualifier for parts of Los Angeles, Kern, and San Bernardino Counties. The Antelope Valley qualifiers will be on a once a month basis. The Ontario Motor Speedway is now in the process of building a super motocross course, and the first qualifier for S.A.M. is scheduled in April.

Coverage of these weekly qualifying events will be running monthly in MOTORCYCLIST Magazine, promoter of the High School Motocross Championships.

To qualify for the Super Bowl of Motocross in July, a rider must be a S.A.M. member, which is seven dollars for one year, and all of the discounts are available only to S.A.M. members.

For any additional information, contact Jim Manning or Pattie Prestidge at Ascot Park at (213) 321-8859.

Another '64 Funny Car' night set

IRWINDALE — "The pits will look like a fiberglass car lot!" exclaims Irwindale General Manager Steve Evans whenever asked about Irwindale Raceway's 3rd Annual "64 Funny Car" night, Saturday, March 29.

"Nothing but Funny Cars—32 AA and 32 BB-Funny Cars — it's already acclaimed by the drag racing industry as the biggest Funny Car event of the year," he adds.

Heading the list of entries for the $30,000 extravaganza is the incredible Don "Snake" Prudhomme, Tom "The Mongoose" McEwen, Ed McCulloch, Mickey Thompson's Grand Am, and Jim Dunn. "And that's just a few of the cars and stars," continues a happily bewildered Evans.

Prudhomme is the reigning king of the Annual event. He has topped the field in each of the past two events and in doing so last year, set an Irwindale track record that still stands: 6.29 seconds in the elapsed time department. Just a few weeks ago, at the Bakersfield March Meet (won by the Eastern Raider, another "64" entry), the Snake set a new national record of 6.07, 238.00. He also owns the Irwindale Top Speed mark of 233 mph.

"You can't find a bigger field of nitro burners anywhere compacted into one day of racing," beams Evans, who dreamed up the idea. "That's why Coca-Cola jumped in immediately as sponsors and that is why this event carries the huge $30,000 purse."

The field will be split in half for the meet. In one bracket will be the nitro burning AA-Funny Cars and in the other, the alcohol powered BB-Funny Cars. "The quality of machinery in both," states Evans, "sets it apart from any other drag race in the World. No other strip has tried a 64 Funny Car night because it's just too big to comprehend."

First time in super stock for Sweet Sue Williams

IRWINDALE — "Sweet Sue" Williams will take a giant step upwards in the auto racing world Sunday at Speedway 605 in Irwindale as she drives in late model super stock car racing competition for the first time.

Sue is no stranger on southland speedways where she has been a regular in hobby division stock car racing for several years, driving both quarter and half-mile ovals.

Her star began to rise rapidly in 1974 as she moved up into the thick of competition in a 1957 Chevy Six prepared for racing by husband, Dave, and made regular visits to the winner's circle.

In Sunday's action at Speedway 605 "Sweet Sue" will take over the driving assignment on a former Grand National car fielded by well known southland auto racing figure, Mike Kord.

The powerful machine, a 1972 Chevelle, sponsored by Kord Tire Company of Upland in recent Winston Cup races, has an impressive background although kept from the winner's circle by minor mechanical failures.

Last August Rialto driver, Bill Osborne, qualified the car for the outside pole position front row for the NASCAR Grand National West race at Speedway 605.

In January San Diego driving star, Ron Esau, started 32 in the Winston Grand National 500 on the road course at Riverside Raceway, moving up 22 positions in the first ten laps to ride tenth.

Esau's bid for victory lane was cut short when the shift lever broke off. Failure of the $1.85 part cost the team prize money in the neighborhood of $6,000 according to car owner, Kord.

Speedway railbirds are predicting great things for "Sweet Sue" in this powerful machine Sunday on the high banks of 605.

Announce 'cycle team race league

LOS ANGELES — Speedway Motorcycle League announced its birth recently at the Los Angeles Press Club. Sharon Clayton, president of the new team racing promotion, said the league will launch its first eight-week annual season with a four-team Western division series in June, 1975.

"This will be like nothing you've ever seen before," Mrs. Clayton stated. "This is dynamite powered athletics for the industrial age." Video tapes of Speedway racing were shown. It looks great on T.V.

Co-founder Jack Long, a principal of the World Hockey Association and International Track Association said there would be a rider draft within 30 days. He admitted that the new league forsaw problems, that teams "can lose money. But," Long maintained, "the $200,000 per team that the SML requires of its owners virtually guarantees completion of a season, and it would be very difficult for them not to make some of it back."

Racer Mike Bast, who attended the press conference with his brother Steve, the current U.S. speedway champion, obliged reporters by candidly answering their questions about how much money the speedway racer earns. A racer of the Basts' caliber "can make $30 $35,000 a year," Mike said. He said he averaged $500 to $800 per week last year. "The maximum I can win league racing is $2,000 per week," he reckoned.

Long said 30 per cent of the league's riders, all Americans, are signed up already.

Steve Bast spoke up later. "I raced all 107 meets last year and won $17,000 in prize money plus $9,000 in contingency and testimonials and stuff." He said, "My team will pay me more than I've ever made. Maybe it'll be Seattle, if so, I'll go there and do my best for that team."

The Los Angeles SML team franchise belongs to Golden State Industries, headed by Jack Burk, listed in "Who's Who in Financing". The Orange County team owner is ex-Britisher Chris Pook, head of a travel agency and a second-generation speedway buff; the Seattle, Washington team is owned by Don Dorsey of Thunder Road, Inc. and several other prominent Washington businessmen, and the fourth team will be based in northern California and operated by the league in cooperation with Bob Barkhimer and Associates.

IRWINDALE — "Leapin' Larry McSweeny will attempt a Guiness Book of World Records equivalent to 20 cars on a go-kart Saturday night at Irwindale Raceway's National "64 Funny Cars Championships."

In addition, 64 of the nation's best AA and BB-Funny Cars will be chasing $30,000 at the quarter mile drag strips.

Seventeen men went to bat for Arizona in the big seventh inning as Santa Clara committed thr errors and made two wild pches.

Eric Sow scarttered six hits and his batterymate, Doug Smith, drove in two runs as JC Riverside edged Washington State, 5-3.

NBA clubs scramble for playoffs

By The Associated Press

And the days dwindle down...to a precious few...

The National Basketball Association playoffs are on everyone's minds these days. Everyone in the NBA anyway. And teams who have not yet secured their positions in the post-season matchups are scrambling.

Portland and Milwaukee are two of the scramblers but only one of them is heading in the right direction.

"That was a good one to win," said Portland Coach Lenny Wilkins after his Trail Blazers beat Atlanta Tuesday night 105-89. "It keeps us alive."

"We still have a chance but we're not getting the performance we should," said Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello after his Bucks dropped a 92-87 decision to Phoenix. "Mistakes can kill you."

Elsewhere in the NBA, Boston held off Cleveland 89-84, Chicago trimmed Houston 112-94, Buffalo whipped Philadelphia 118-103, New Orleans edged Kansas City-Omaha 112-110 and Golden State cruised past Los Angeles 139-122.

Sidney Wicks scored 24 points and Geoff Petrie had 20 as the revived Blazers kept their hopes of a playoff berth alive.

"This is the first time we've ever been in any kind of contention this late in the season," said Wilkins. "It's been a tough year for us but we've overcome some pretty serious obstacles."

The Blazers' victory lifted them with 1½ games of second place Seattle in the Pacific Division and also kept them alive in the chase for the Western Conference wild card playoff spot.

Milwaukee, on the other hand, is making its stretch run backwards. The Bucks, who lost the NBA title by one game to Boston last season, are on the ropes.

"We're going to have to make some changes in the starting lineup," said Costello after Milwaukee lost its fifth straight. "We need more firepower."

Lineup changes are probably too late to help the sagging Bucks. They had been hoping to salvage something from a dismal season by sneaking into the playoffs as a wild card choice but Tuesday night's loss left them in need of a major miracle to make it.

Charlie Scott returned to action after a four-game absence and netted 22 points for Phoenix while Curtis Perry, an ex-Buck, added 17. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 34 points for the Bucks but didn't get much help.

Celtics 89, Cavaliers 84

The largest turnout in Ohio basketball history, 18,911 fans, saw Dave Cowens score 25 points and grab 17 rebounds for Boston. The game was important to both clubs. The Celtics moved to within a half-game of Washington in the battle for the best record in the NBA, an accomplishment worth $4,500 apiece to the winners. The Cavs are trying to get into the playoffs for the first time in their five-year history and, despite the loss, remained one-half game ahead of third-place Houston in the Central Division.

Bulls 112, Rockets 94

Bob Love scored 29 points and held Rudy Tomjanovich to just two for Chicago. Bulls' guard Norm Van Lier provided some first-period fireworks when he flew into a rage after getting called for his third personal foul, was restrained from attacking referee Mark Mano, knocked over everything on the scorer's table, kicked some chairs around and was ejected from the game.

Houston remained a half-game behind second-place Cleveland in the Central Division and a half-game ahead of New York in their struggle for the Eastern Conference wild card playoff berth.

Braves 118, 76ers 103

Bob McAdoo pumped in 48 points, inlcuding 16 straight in the third period, for Buffalo. McAdoo, closing in one his second straight NBA scoring crown, has netted 190 points in his last four games.

Baseball is less affected by an economic downturn

Kuhn believes baseball is less affected by economic downturns because its tickets are cheaper than other major sports. He says "there could be expansion in the future, but the general economic picture has prompted our people to take a more careful look."

Baseball hasn't expanded since adding four teams in 1969. The National Hockey League may add two more teams in the next two years, but there is a good chance those teams may simply be transferred from other cities. The NBA has postponed a planned expansion into Canada in 1975. There is talk of contraction in the World Hockey Association.

One of the 1969 expansion teams in baseball, the San Diego Padres, made its first operating profit last year, only to find its climbing days weren't over.

The Padres paid $10 million just to join the National League. But that fee didn't include the cost of buying player contracts from other teams, the development of a scouting organization from scratch, leasing a stadium and building spring training facilities.

"It cost us at least another million in start-up costs that first year," says Peter Bavasi, vice president and general manager of the Padres. "The second year was better because we didn't have to buy the typewriters and office furniture again.

"By then we were operating on a budget similar to the established clubs, except we were burdened by interest payments and the declining balance on the $10 million entrance fee. You can make an operating profit on a yearly basis, but what about that $10 million plus interest?

"You can become an established club on the field when you pencil in a competent lineup. But from an economic standpoint, you don't become an established club until you've paid back all the obligations, all the burdens of getting into the league."

Bavasi sees future expansion teams having an even harder time.

"The floating prime interest rate is much higher than it was seven years ago," Bavasi says. "And you've got to couple that with skyrocketing costs in all areas. The franchise fee might be higher and the price of laundering a towel, cleaning a uniform and the daily meal allowance—to name just a few—will certainly be higher."

Bavasi also pointed out that a recent federal court decision in Atlanta, which may limit the depreciation allowance owners can deduct for players' salaries and means less tax write-offs for the owners, could cause potential franchise buyers to have second thoughts.

Added to all that are skyrocketing salaries and a decline in fan interest. A recent Louis Harris survey showed that fan interest in football dropped two percentage points since 1973, baseball lost four, basketball slipped two and hockey dropped six points. Of the 12 sports listed, only tennis and horse racing showed an increase in fan interest.

Franchise costs also have skyrocketed. An American Football League franchise cost $25,000 in 1960. Tampa and Seattle are paying $16 million to join the NFL in 1976. An estimated 12 NFL teams lost money last year, including Washington and Philadelphia, which each lost around $500,000 while selling every ticket for every home game.

In the NBA, entrance fees have risen from $2 million in 1968 to $3.7 million in 1970 and $6.15 million in 1974, when New Orleans joined.

According to Larry Fleischer, counsel to the NBA Players' Association, the average salary in the league is $106,000. Those wages were one reason why only Milwaukee, New York, Boston and Los Angeles showed a profit after the 1973-74 season in the 17-team NBA.

Considering all that, it's no wonder expansion has nearly stopped.

"This is a bad time for expansion or the start of any business," says Jim Bukata, an ABA official. "American Beef just closed its doors. No one has money."

Tomorrow: The ordeal of expansion.

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — When Henry Aaron, the all-time major league home run king, broke in with Eau Claire of the Northern League in 1952, he hit only nine homers in 7 games.

Judges in bitter dissent over colleagues' ruling

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A defendant in Pennsylvania now can be acquitted of certain serious crimes by showing he was too drunk to have intended to commit them, the state Supreme Court has ruled.

The 4 to 3 decision issued Monday sharply expands a previously restrictive state rule that evidence of extreme intoxication could be used to reduce the degree of a crime, but not to acquit.

In a bitter dissent, three associate justices suggested that all a criminal needs now to carry out a successful robbery or burglary would be a revolver in one hand and a quart of liquor in the other.

"Today, all too many murderers, robbers, burglars, rapists and other felons escape the imposition of justice for unsound reasons," wrote Judge Michael Eagen for the court's conservative minority. "The present ruling of this court widens that avenue of escape."

The ruling stems from the case of Daniel Graves, who was convicted of burglary, robbery and first-degree murder.

Graves told a Northampton County jury he was under the influence of LSD and wine when he and two others entered a 75-year-old man's home and robbed him in 1971.

Graves claimed he could not remember how the old man got the injuries that killed him, nor much of anything else about the night.

A psychiatrist testified he was convinced Graves was telling the truth, but the judge refused to instruct the jury it could acquit Graves of burglary, robbery and hence murder, if it found him incapable of forming an intent to commit robbery or burglary.

The high court decision means a new trial for Graves, who had been sentenced to life in prison.

Ford will make Yugoslavia trip by end of year

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is planning a trip to Yugoslavia sometime this year, according to visiting Yugoslav Prime Minister Dzemal Bijedic.

During a luncheon at the White House Wednesday, where the two leaders voiced promises of continued efforts at cooperative relations, the Yugoslav prime minister said:

"We highly appreciate your acceptance of the invitation extended by President Tito to visit Yugoslavia in the course of this year."

He added that "this confirms once again the preparedness of your government and your own, Mr. President, for the continuation and promotion of mutual friendly relations."

Ford had previously indicated acceptance of an invitation from Tito, but it had not previously been indicated that the trip was for this year.

Business briefs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Occidental Petroleum Corp. has filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission a registration statement covering the proposed public offering of $75 million principal amount of seven-year notes.

Occidental said it intends to apply the net proceeds from the sale of the securities to the repayment of medium-term bank indebtedness.

BEAVERTON, Ore. (AP) — Tekronix, Inc., Oregon's largest employer and a leading producer of oscilloscopes, announced plans Monday to lay off 8,000 workers for three weeks this summer.

A company spokesman said the recession has forced officials to shut down all operations except for the sales force.

The firm will close during holiday weeks: the week of May 26, Memorial Day, the week of July 7-11 after Independence Day and Aug. 25-29, the week before labor Day.

Tektronix said he hoped order backlogs would improve enough to avoid any further shutdowns, but he indicated another closure was possible during the Christmas season.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Air Canada said Monday that between April 8 and June 19 it will cut its round-trip fares between Los Angeles and eastern Canada by as much as 23 per cent.

The airline will offer seven-vention - nine - day excursion fares from Los Angeles to Toronto for $183 round trip, to Ottawa for $202, and to Montreal for $205.

Conditions include booking seats and purchasing tickets no later than seven days before departure, the trip must last at least seven but no longer than nine days, and the traveler must begin and end his journey on Monday through Thursday.

Nylon is a strong, long-lasting synthetic material. Its uses range from such things as sheer hosiery and fishing lines to toothbrush bristles and molded parts for machinery.

Nylon is made from common elements obtained from coal (carbon) and air (oxygen and nitrogen) and water (hydrogen).

These elements are heated, mixed and treated in such a way that they are changed into a substance called "nylon salt."

The nylon salt becomes a thick, gooey liquid when it is heated.

The melted nylon is spread out into a thin sheet to cool. When hard, the sheet is cut into chips. The chips are then melted and manufactured into final products.

To make yarn for weaving stockings and fabrics for clothes, the melted nylon is pushed through tiny holes in a metal plate.

Several threads of nylon are then twisted together into a single yarn and then stretched to make the nylon strong.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

You'll never need to wax Wards cushion vinyl flooring—just damp mop when needed, and that's it. You can lay it yourself to save on installation—a big plus for today's budget-conscious homeowner. Cut the 12'-wide lengths to fit, then "loose lay" or install with adhesive on any grade floor. Asbestos back prevents stretching after installation, means no recutting. Richly-embossed vinyl surface in colorful patterns is tough enough to handle your active family—yet not show it. But the foam core is what's really special. It softens the step, quiets the room, insulates the floor (lower heating costs!), extends the life of the flooring. You can't lose.
